Drug Brings Sextuplets

After 10 Childless Years,
Woman's Wish Fulfilled

BIRMINGHAM, England (CP) — Sheila Ann Thorns, who took a fertility drug after 10 years of childless marriage, gave birth to sextuplets today, her 30th birthday.

One of the six babies, a girl, died shortly after birth at Birmingham Maternity Hospital.

LCB Boss McGugan To Retire

By JOHN MIKA

Times Legislative Reporter

British Columbia will have a new liquor board chairman April 1 and may have a new liquor act too.

The end of an era was scheduled today when Attorney-General Leslie Peterson announced that Donald McGugan will retire March 31.

The announcement increased speculation that a major reform of the liquor law will be undertaken at the coming legislative session before the new liquor bill takes over.

Col. McGugan will be in his 80th year when he leaves the $25,000 post as a one-man liquor board which he has held since 1951.

Mr. Peterson said the government would "immediately advertise throughout Canada" so a top-flight replacement could be found for appointment "as of April 1 next."

NEW DEBATE:

The changeover in command would coincide with the closing of the next session. It is expected to see furious debate on the needs for liquor reform between virtually the entire assembly and two-tenths of the legislature.

Last spring — while Mr. Bennett was absent from the house — a major attack on "archaic" B.C. liquor laws was launched by a large number of backbench Socialists who joined opposition members in publicly demanding reforms.

And hints came from within the cabinet too that changes in law were being actively sought. Mines Minister Frank Richter, while still agriculture minister, made a public speech predicting that someday beer and wine will be sold through grocery stores in the province and there will be other changes.

Then Attorney-General Robert Bennett also hinted that a complete review of the liquor law was about when he commented on a strong public statement by Anglican Archbishop.

First reports said Mrs. Thorns, the wife of a draftsman, and all six children were well. The babies were four girls and two boys.

The couple have been married 10 years. They have no other children.

"We were expecting a multiple birth, but this was a shock," said Mrs. Thorns' mother. "We thought it would be twins."

The babies were two months premature. They weighed between two and three pounds each.

The babies were delivered by Caesarian operation.

The hormone treatment, pioneered in Sweden, has led to a number of multiple births in recent years. But in most cases of five or more births all were still-born or died within a few hours.

Mrs. Thorns was attended by one of the biggest and most eminent medical and nursing teams ever assembled in Britain for a birth. They included seven anaesthetists — one for each child and one for the mother.

LEADS THE TEAM

The hospital team was led by Dr. A. C. Crook, one of Britain's foremost authorities on fertility drugs, and by Dr. Margaret Shotton, 33-year-old obstetrician. The operation took place at Britain's newest and finest maternity hospital, built at a cost of nearly $7,000,000 and opened only a month ago.

Excitement had risen at the hospital after x-rays had shown that six babies were on the way.

The children now are under the care of Dr. Ben Wood, a consultant paediatrician at the hospital.

The babies are believed to be the first sextuplets born in Britain. Medical experts said after a quick check of records here.

World records show there have been reports of about 20 previous sextuplet births since 1960, but many of these reports were not confirmed.

Sextuplets may be becoming

Victim 24 In Gang War

MONTREAL (CP) — Provincial police investigating the shooting death of Conrad Ricard, 24, whose body was found in a ditch near Ste. Anne de la Perle, Que., late Tuesday, say they believe the man may have been the 24th victim of a wave of gangland violence.

Rusk Asks Russia To Leave Czech Soil

SHARP MEETS RUSK AT UN

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — External Affairs Minister Sharp met today with U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk of the United States.

The Canadian minister said East-West relations and the Middle East were the main topics. There was no discussion of NATO policy as such.

'UNITED NATIONS (Reuter)

U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk called on the Soviet Union today to get its troops out of Czechoslovakia and demanded an explanation of Moscow's new doctrine of the right of intervention.

In his first, and probably last, policy address to the United Nations General Assembly, Rusk also reaffirmed NATO's determination to resist "immediately to self-defence measures" if West Germany were attacked.

He warned that there is danger that the Middle East "would slip back once more towards chaos and war" unless the parties to the conflict move resolutely towards a settlement.

He assured the 125-country assembly that the U.S. fervently wants an end to the violence in Vietnam "with its tragic suffering and its risks of larger war."

"We must do all we can to turn from the war to the work of peace," Rusk said. The will to peace in the U.S., among the leaders and the people, was "deep and abiding" and an honorable settlement was possible.

"What remains is for Russia to get down to the serious business of making peace in Paris. They will find the U.S. receptive and willing to negotiate in good faith."

Hecklers in the public gallery, shouting "Stop the war in Vietnam," interrupted Rusk's address. About a dozen persons, strategically located in different sections of the big gallery, rose to their feet, some of them holding up placards with crudely drawn slogans, when Rusk mentioned Vietnam.

Their shouts drowned out Rusk's remarks. His speech was interrupted for about one minute while UN security officers moved swiftly to hustle the demonstrators out of the area.

Gibson Sets Strikeout Mark of 17

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — The St. Louis Cardinals, taking advantage of Denny McLain's williness, defeated Detroit Tigers 4-0 today in the opening game of the 1968 World Series. The Cardinals' ace, Bob Gibson, struck out 17.

Gibson struck out 17, a new record.

Mike Shannon singled home one run and Julian Javier singled home two more in the Cardinals' fourth-inning rally.

Meanwhile, Gibson was throwing down the Tigers, striking out eight batters — including five in a row — and allowing only two hits over the first four innings.

McLain, the Tigers' ace who won 21 games during the regular season, pitched out of jams in the second and third innings but couldn't do it again the fourth.

McLain made the trouble for himself when he walked Roger Maris to open the fourth and then, after Orlando Cepeda fouled out, also walked Mickey Vernon. At one point, McLain had thrown 11 balls in 14 pitches and Tiger manager Mayo Smith had to go to the mound to talk to him.

Shannon followed with a slugging single to left that scored Maris to break the scoreless deadlock. And, when left fielder Willie Horton overran Shannon's bouncing ball and failed to pick it up, McLain went to third and Shannon to second on the error.

Javier quickly drove in both runners with a line single to right to make the score 3-0. McLain ended the rally by getting Don Maxwell on a pop fly and striking out Gibson, who won 22 games this season.

Gang Gets $187,200

BRIGHTON, England (AP) — An armed gang wounded the manager of a bank and escaped with $187,200 ($25,200).

The bank was crowded when four men ran in, shouting "Give us the money." The manager was shot in the arm as he grappled with one of the men. The robbers fled in a waiting truck.

Private Industry Parity Refused

By ROGER STONERANKS

The British Columbia government has rejected all wage appeals by its employees, a union spokesman said today.

The decision affects stationary steam engineers, ferry mechanics at the Deas Island dock and 350 classifications representing several thousand employees.

In addition, said E. P. O'Connor, general secretary of the B.C. Government Employees Association, the government had told the association that comparability of wages of provincial employees should be with wages paid by other provincial governments across Canada.

This made it obvious, he said, that the government expects comparison between the wages it pays and wages paid by other employers within British Columbia.

NO COMMENTS

Education Minister Donald Stewart, chairman of a cabinet sub-committee which made recommendations on the appeals to the cabinet, was not in his office this morning for comment.

Dr. Hugh Morrison, chairman of the B.C. Civil Service Commission, was reported away until next week.

And Attorney-General and Labor Minister, Leslie Peterson, was not available in Victoria today.

The government's decision, said Mr. O'Connor, "is a corollary to Bill 33. Government employees now have a slave status. They have no right to bargain collectively, they have no further right of appeal and under Bill 33 they have no right to strike."

"Government employees cannot accept this status. If there is no relief forthcoming they will have to find ways and means of applying economic sanctions."

Government employees have a slave status. They have no right to bargain collectively, they have no further right of appeal and under Bill 33 they have no right to strike.

Last month it was indicated that if ferry mechanics did not get some action on wages they would take "appropriate action" which could mean a walkout.

A spokesman for the marine branch (unaffiliated) of the B.C. Government Employees Association said that ferry mechanics were promised parity with wages in outside industry.

Mr. O'Connor, in a lengthy statement, quoted comparisons to show government employees wages were in some cases 10% per cent below outside comparable rates in B.C.

He said the government's policy is "intentional and a rejection of the policy of both the association and the Civil Service Commission."

The commission, he said, has conducted wage surveys confined to employees within B.C. for the last 15 years. These surveys have been the basis upon which the government has granted wage adjustments to the extent that the capital sum it provided allowed, he said.

It was also a direct contradiction of policy statements by government ministers, he said.

Mr. O'Connor referred to former Attorney-General Robert Bennett stating in the legislature last January that "wage parity" would be given to B.C. workers prevailing would be more for national unity than whole-sale amendment to the constitution.

He also quoted Trade Minister Ralph Lofmark at saying last January that "wage parity with B.C. for all Canadian workers would be the greatest single step towards unifying Canada."

Bertrand Named Premier

Times News Service

QUEBEC — Jean-Jacques Bertrand, a reform-minded federalist who acted as the late premier Daniel Johnson's lieutenant, today was chosen by his Union Nationale colleagues to succeed Mr. Johnson as premier.

At a press conference after a meeting of the Union Nationale caucus, Mr. Bertrand said he had been chosen unanimously as "premier of Quebec, head of the government and interim leader of the Union Nationale."

Mr. Bertrand declined to say immediately whether he would be a candidate for the permanent party leadership at the convention expected next year. Date of the convention is not yet set. (See story Page 3.)

Nationalist members of the party, who supported Mr. Bertrand's choice as interim leader for the sake of party unity, are understood to have already asked for assurance that Mr. Bertrand would not use the interim leadership as a route to victory at the convention.

Education Minister Jean-Guy Cardinal remains in the minds of many observers the leading candidate for the permanent succession.

He is understood to have the support of most members of the nationalist wing of the party, although there is a strong possibility that one of the more extreme nationalists might also run, making it possible then for both wings to rally around Mr. Bertrand as a compromise.

However Mr. Bertrand has not yet given any commitment, at least publicly, that he will not seek the permanent leadership. And some observers believe that he may be able to use the interim leadership to gain a wider power base than he now appears to have.

Mr. Bertrand emerged from a special caucus of Union Nationale legislature members at 11:20 p.m., one hour after the meeting began, and told reporters.

"I have just been summoned by the lieutenant-governor. I am going over to his office to discuss with him when the new government will be formed."

The caucus took only 30 minutes to decide that Mr. Bertrand, justice minister in the Johnson government, should succeed the late premier.

The decision was signalled by a thunderous ovation at 11:30 a.m.

PM Accused of Backing Down

By VICTOR MACKIE

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Progressive Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield accused Prime Minister Trudeau today of backing down on the Philippe Rossillon affair during talks with French Premier Maurice Couve de Murville.

Mr. Stanfield told reporters outside the House "I can only conclude that the prime minister considers it prudent to drop the matter."

He was commenting on Mr. Trudeau's statement in the Commons that he "didn't think to ask" about the Rossillon business.

"It is extraordinary," said Mr. Stanfield pointing out that Prime Minister Trudeau had earlier this year accused France and General de Gaulle of "trying to demolish the unity of Canada." Mr. Trudeau has also taken issue with what he called the "underhanded and surreptitious" action of the French government in sending an agent (Mr. Rossillon) to Canada to meet with French Canadians in Manitoba. What made Mr. Trudeau's position in Parliament all the more peculiar was that when he was interviewed in Quebec City by reporters after his talks with the French premier Mr. Trudeau brushed off their queries. He explained he could say nothing about the talks at that time because he first had to make his report to Parliament. When asked Monday in Parliament by Stanley Knowles (NDP-Winnipeg North Centre) to make a statement concerning his conversations with Mr. Couve de Murville, Mr. Trudeau said: "I understand it is not customary to make a statement after such conversations. I had not planned to do so."

MPs were disappointed that they got no statement from Mr. Trudeau. His talks with the French premier were the first top level meeting between France and Canada since General de Gaulle's Montreal balcony scene when he shouted for a "free Quebec."

The Opposition persisted in seeking a statement from the prime minister — but without success.

Mr. Stanfield asked if in view of the serious allegations made by Trudeau on Sept. 11, "Canada has received a satisfactory explanation of assurances from the government of France regarding the activities of Mr. Rossillon while in Canada."

Mr. Trudeau replied, "I should confess that I did not think of asking about the Rossillon affair yesterday when I talked with the prime minister of France."

Snapped Mr. Stanfield: "Are we to assume from this answer that in the view of the prime minister this matter does not today seem to have the importance that it had on Sept. 11?"

Mr. Speaker Lucien Lamoureux ruled the question out of order.

Outside the house later Mr. Stanfield ripped into the prime minister. He described it law enforcement division. It was still fighting hard against post-prohibition bootleggers who drove the 1952 LCB commission to write several paragraphs about the difficulties in apprehending these "international province," Mr. McGugan added. However, I am aware, too, that there is also violent bootlegging.

Mr. Bennett tried to shag off the archbishop's call as merely a humorous quip but he was significantly more serious when asked last month about rumors being spread by important sources in Vancouver — that Sunday drinking and other changes were imminent.

"When the premier has an announcement to make, he will make it," Mr. Bennett said, "and with heavy emphasis in assuring a reporter's question."

Col. McGugan was not available for comment on the announcement of his retirement. Mr. Peterson noted that he had served the province in a difficult post under eight successive governments of differing political stripes.

"Col. McGugan started his career with the Liquor Control Board in the same year I was born, 1923," said Mr. Peterson.

EIGHT BOSSES

"At that time the late Mr. Justice Manson was attorney general and since then there have been eight attorneys general in governments of different political faiths who have relied on his integrity and ability to administer the affairs of the Liquor Control Board."

Col. McGugan has frequently been the object of considerable praise for his honesty in a sensitive post. But he also has been bitterly attacked by private and public figures for secretiveness and lack of co-operation with such civic efforts as Vancouver city council's unsuccessful drive to rationalize its cabinet licensing procedures.

Typically, after saying he was sick, his secretary replied when asked what year Col. McGugan was appointed chairman: "I am not allowed to give out that kind of information. You will have to consult the chairman if you wish to know that."

The record shows that, born in 1889 in Ontario and graduating from the University of Toronto in 1911, he came to Vancouver to article with a law firm.

IN SEAFARERS

In 1914 he went overseas as a private with the Seaforth Highlanders and he came back to British Columbia in 1919 as a lieutenant-colonel.

After several years practicing law, he was appointed supervisor of the still-drinking LCB's.

less rare because of the effects of modern fertility drugs, doctors said.

One of the most recent confirmed cases of these bizarre multiple births occurred in 1965 in Sweden where a woman who had been treated for sterility produced sextuplets. All the babies died.

Sextuplets—seven babies—also have been reported born in this century but few of these reports have been confirmed.

A woman in Mexico gave birth to eight children in March, 1967. All the children died at birth.

Other survivors of sextuplets births are reported living in Yugoslavia, the United States, Mexico and Nicaragua.

The natural chance of sextuplets being born is put by medical experts at less than 3,000,000,000 to 1.

The chief obstetrician, Miss Scott said: "We do not hold out any hope for the babies until they have lived for a week."

"extraordinary" that the Roskill affair wasn't raised during the talks. He said it is "bound to make the Canadian people wonder" whether Mr. Trudeau still views the affair as one of any consequence.

Mr. Stanfield pointed out that Mr. Trudeau in his talks with Coeur de Murville "wasn't prepared to follow up the subject with the same vigour as he did with the Canadian people." He said he "gathered" Mr. Trudeau has decided to drop the matter and not proceed any further with the issue.

Mr. Roskill is a high French government official who reports directly to Coeur de Murville. Mr. Roskill is concerned with promoting French language and culture. Mr. Trudeau told the House he did not consider it useful to "drag a problem everywhere one goes."

Mr. Justice John Parker, chairman of the commission, and the federal government, over his personal rights on the bench.

Judge Parker, in Vancouver Tuesday night, said if the dispute is not resolved, he will quit the bench and retain his chairmanship of the commission.

The act was adopted despite vigorous debate in the legislature which saw opposition members denounce the new arbitrary powers given cabinet and the tribunal as assuring more labor unrest.

Hanoi Vetoes HH Plan

PARIS (AP) — North Vietnam today officially rejected Vice-President Hubert Humphrey's proposal to quit bombing the North if Hanoi undertakes to restore the demilitarized zone to its former status.

The turnaround by Ambassador Xuan Thuy came after the United States accused the Communists of building up that zone as a base and staging area for a new invasion of the South.

Xuan Thuy told Ambassador Averell Harriman at the 26th session of the peace talks here: "Whoever the president of the United States is, he is doomed to failure unless he correctly solves the Vietnam problem on the basis of respect for the Vietnamese people's fundamental national rights."

Xuan Thuy, whose statement was released by aides, after calling attention to Humphrey's qualified campaign pledge explained why it is not acceptable to Hanoi:

"Mr. Humphrey, like Mr. Johnson, still demands reciprocity. Moreover, he even threatens to resume the bombing of North Vietnam."

"As regards Mr. Nixon, the warlike presidential candidate of the Republican party, he is clearly not satisfied with Mr. Humphrey's words, though they are doubtful ones."

"We repeat once more that we do not accept any kind of reciprocity."

CHARGES MISUSE

Harriman, who spoke first, devoted a major part of his speech to a detailed charge that the North Vietnamese are misusing the DMZ for purposes of attacking the South.

It appeared as if Harriman, without involving himself in any direct support of Humphrey's proposal—in fact was setting forth the military rationale for the vice-president's qualifications.

On emerging from the fruitless 3½-hour session Harriman disclosed that Xuan Thuy himself has come up with an "extraordinary and fantastic charge."

It was that the American purpose in South Vietnam is to have a base from which to invade the North and then to take the North under U.S. control.

In the conference itself Harriman, after charging massive Communist misuse of the DMZ, said anti-Communist allied forces currently are thrusting into the onetime buffer zone to counter the threatened invasion and then to protect their outposts south of the frontier.

Patrols have uncovered a new and complete network of trails being used by North Vietnamese forces to invade South Vietnam and to transport war supplies.

MAN ACCUSED OF EVIL EYE

NEWELL, W.Va. (AP) — Frank J. Demanger has filed suit against 10 of his neighbors who he says have accused him of being a warlock and casting spells over women, causing them to become submissive.

In his suit, filed Tuesday in Hancock County court, Demanger said they conspired to ruin his reputation and destroy his means of support by calling him a male witch.

The suit said that the neighbors, four couples and two women, told friends and business associates he used evil powers in casting spells. Demanger asked $50,000 damages.

PARIS MILITARY AID DELIVERED TO BIAFRA

By PATRICK KEATLEY
The Manchester Guardian

LONDON — French President de Gaulle's long-predicted delivery of military aid to Biafra began last week, according to information reaching London from reliable sources in West Africa.

An aircraft, estimated to have a minimum capacity of 30 tons daily, started last Wednesday in complete secrecy, the sources said. It has already reportedly provided Col. Odumegwu Ojukwu's Biafran regime with enough French light automatic weapons to equip several battalions.

Federal Nigerian commanders are believed to have begun reporting to Lagos a marked increase in the frequency of Biafran troops in the past few days.

The French aircraft fleet is reportedly a mixed group of 30 aircraft, apparently based in Gabon, which is one of the four African states that have recognized Biafra.

St. Leonard Classes Start, No Incidents Take Place

MONTREAL (CP) — About 200 Grade 1 students started school in suburban St. Leonard today, almost a month after most other children returned to their classrooms.

There were no incidents as the children arrived to begin taking their lessons at the privately-organized school where instruction will be in English.

St. Leonard, some of a contest over a local school board decision to eliminate instruction in English over a seven-year period, has a population composed almost 50 per cent of non-French-speaking persons, many of whom are of Italian origin.

Robert Boile, president of the Association of Parents of St. Leonard, which represents the English-speaking Roman Catholic parents in the suburb, said more children were expected to be registered today.

Another 150 English-speaking Catholic students are staying away from bilingual-instruction schools offering courses in Grades 2 to 5.

Mr. Boile said another 35 or 40 families have converted to Protestantism because of "the bilingual monstrosities in our own schools."

The Roman Catholic school board has softened its French-only policy somewhat with a move to pay the cost of transportation to elementary schools which choose to be taught in English.

The local board, however, has made no provision for students who wish instruction on a bilingual basis.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

An intense storm in the Gulf of Alaska is lashing the Queen Charlotte Islands with 35 to 50 miles per hour winds and will spread steadily rain to most of the north coast region this morning. Central southern regions in a ridge of high pressure felt the chill of clear skies overnight as temperatures plunged to the low twenties in the interior, and to the low thirties along the coast. The ridge of high pressure will hold sunny skies over much of southern British Columbia today but the Pacific storm is expected to move the ridge eastward and gradually spread cloud over all but extreme southeastern B.C. by Thursday afternoon. Rain will spread to the west coast of Vancouver Island and the Okanagan country by Thursday afternoon. Southeast gales are forecast to hit the west coast of Vancouver Island this afternoon.

New Test for Aid

THE NEW PRESIDENT OF THE World Bank, Mr. Robert McNamara, has moved to inject new purpose into the field of international aid, and his call for an $11.5 billion lending program could bring about significant improvement in the lot of a number of under-developed countries. Under such vigorous leadership it is gratifying to learn that Canada will play a leading part in increasing aid to countries requiring it. Finance Minister Benson's quick affirmation of support at the World Bank meeting in Washington yesterday will earn the approval of all Canadians.

The new element of population control which Mr. McNamara has introduced into foreign aid is a logical if controversial one. He proposes that development aid be linked with birth control, so that the benefits of increased productivity and prosperity through World Bank assistance will not be cancelled out by a corresponding increase in the needy population. Although Canadian aid has never been predicated on population restriction, Mr. Benson endorsed Mr. McNamara's proposal as a means of overcoming what the World Bank president describes as "one of the greatest barriers to the economic growth and wellbeing of our member states."

Such a condition, of course, is diametrically opposed to the admonition contained in Pope Paul's encyclical regarding artificial birth control. President Johnson emerges as the first head of state publicly to challenge the Pope's stand. He told the World Bank members that recent technological advances in agriculture "have bought time for family planning policies to become effective. But the fate of development efforts hinges on how vigorously that time is used."

His remarks followed those of Mr. McNamara, who said: "More than anything else it is the population explosion which, by holding back the advancement of the poor, is blowing apart the rich and the poor (countries) and widening the already dangerous gap between them."

Many nations affected are in Latin America where the Catholic church wields a strong influence. In the past they have often succeeded in making birth control a taboo subject for international aid groups such as the World Health Organization and United Nations agencies. Now Mr. McNamara, with the backing of President Johnson, has presented the challenge in clear terms: if the poorer nations want help they must be prepared to check their burgeoning populations.

The Pope's encyclical, which defies the fact of over-population and goes against the tide of current informed opinion, has created deep division within the Roman Catholic Church itself. But it should not inhibit those outside the Church in positions of leadership from carrying out needed policies.

See No Evil, Read None

NEWSPAPER MEN COINED the phrase "credibility gap" to describe the apparent disbelief of the American people when confronted with the official pronouncements of President Johnson's administration. Now it is coming back to haunt them. The credibility gap at the moment appears to lie between press and public.

Newspapers have always had to contend with skepticism on the part of their readers, and this has been helpful for both sides. "Don't believe everything you read," is still sound advice. And if the newspaper is alert and responsive this attitude should force it to make an extra effort to win the reader's confidence. One of the difficulties for the press is that it must convince the public that it is not responsible for all the statements of public figures it has quoted.

But the problem confronting the American press now is much more grave. It was brought into dramatic focus by news coverage of the violence which occurred in Chicago during the Democratic convention. Newspapers and television networks have been bombarded since by protests that their stories and picture editing were biased in favor of the anti-war demonstrators and against Mayor Daley and his police.

Some newsmen were the victims themselves of police clubs and tear gas and understandably became emotionally involved in the story they were covering. But on balance, there is little doubt that the facts were close to the way they were reported. Why then were they disbelieved? Dr. Frank Stanton, the president of CBS, put his finger on the answer the other day in an interview in Vancouver when he declared that the gap is "between what people want to see and what we're showing them."

These are the people who do not want to believe what is taking place in the cities of the United States: the revolt of the Negro and the poor, the discontent of the young over Vietnam, the violence everywhere. They are the ones turning in increasing numbers to George Wallace, who promises them "law and order", instead of getting at the roots of the problem and redressing the grievances of the disenchanted.

What should be the lesson of Chicago? Dr. Stanton says that it is "more important than ever to keep the channels of communication open and inform the people of what is going on." This is the task the press faces in the United States particularly, but elsewhere too. These are days of great stress and change and the press has an obligation to present a true picture.

Improving the Perspective

CREDITISTE LEADER REAL Caouette has returned from a visit to Paris with criticism of low wages in the French automobile industry, and of the loss of the Citroen automobile company to Italian control, and he expresses a preference to be called not "a Frenchman from Canada" but a French-Canadian.

Mr. Caouette, moreover, seems realistic in his conviction that instead of France "coming to our salvation, it is far more probable that Canada will have to save France."

The Creditiste leader serves a useful purpose in re-emphasizing the context in which many Canadians of early French origin view General de Gaulle's concept of the place of French-speaking peoples in this country. Like Mayor Drapeau of Montreal, and others who value the cultural heritage of the French-speaking people of Canada, Mr. Caouette underscores the fact that nationalism for the Quebecois is not centred in the Elysee Palace.

Mr. Caouette has delivered a short lecture on perspective.

"... maybe it's because I am lost educationally through the excessive use of mass and group techniques and the lack of opportunity to develop skills in the complex field of human relations and in the multi-media areas of communication ... moreover, the lack of humanized and personalized education, combined with ..."

As Manning Leaves the Problems Arrive

NOW that Premier E. C. Manning has made his impending retirement official, the struggle for succession has come out into the open. That his retirement was in the offing was one of the worst kept secrets in Alberta. As a result there has been a lot of speculation about who would move into his office. There is no logical successor. In the second cabinet, it was Manning first and all the rest lumped together just short of nowhere.

Despite its 33 years of existence, the Social Credit party has never had a leader chosen at an open leadership convention. "Bible Bill" Aberhart, who founded the party in 1935, collected a following around him rather than the other way round. When he retired, Mr. Manning was presented to the party by the legislative caucus as a fait accompli.

None of the current crop of leadership contenders has attracted much public attention. All are late-comers to the Social movement, though one, Edgar Gerhart, is a son of a former cabinet minister. At the moment he ranks behind Harry Strom, a lay preacher, and Ray Robinson, a former machinery salesman. All hold senior cabinet posts at present but none can identify with the original Social-Credit crusade. None has political experience outside local Alberta affairs. When Alberta's voice has been heard in the land, it was always that of Mr. Manning.

No Men of Anger

None of Mr. Manning's mooted successors is a man of anger, as Aberhart, Manning, and the others were men of anger in the original Social Credit movement. They were authentic revolutionaries who were out to destroy the Canadian financial system.

Instead of hatred of bankers and "bankers' studies", newspapers, mortgage companies and bond holders, the new group are professional good fellows, optimists, cheer leaders who come equipped with non-ending fixed smiles.

The smiles are apt to wear very thin in the years to come. The flood of gold, that has flowed better than $2,250,000,000 into the Alberta Treasury since oil and gas became a bonanza is beginning to dry up. Major new oil or gas discoveries are harder and harder to find and the time between discoveries get longer and longer.

Such speculations as Rainbow are not enough. Other big new finds are needed to keep oil money flowing into the provincial coffers for adjacent leases and reservations. Unhappily, the new glimmer discoveries have been 3,000 miles away.

Yet the tentatively named "New Party" has had trouble rounding up its share of disaffected of the left to match Mr. Wallace's fast-growing organization along the Arctic shores of Alaska. If these are followed by discoveries in the Northwest Territory it will be bad news indeed for Alberta.

Alaska oil is already taking over markets once served by Alberta crude in Puget Sound. Additional supplies from Alaska will complete the process. Domestic U.S. crude from the Gulf Coast is now moving into markets previously held in the mid-west. So with discoveries falling off in Alberta, and increasing elsewhere, the outlook for the new premier is far from rosy.

Long Term Oil Outlook

It has been his concern over long term future for revenues from conventional oil that has led to Alberta's pre-occupation with the development of its oil sands which have an almost unlimited potential. Unhappily, the market for Alberta's oil is barely half what it can produce.

Any further development of the tar sands is bound to be done only at the expense of the owners of already developed oil production from wells. The first oil sands extraction plant is still losing money and is plagued with technical problems. A second plant, however, has been proposed by a group of major international companies.

Ultimately it will be the new premier who will decide for or against further oil sands development. The head of one of the world's largest oil companies has already characterized Alberta's oil sand policy, on the basis of a single project, as economic lunacy. At least 35 per cent of all the other conventional oil producers agree with him. But the applicants for the second plant are also numbered among the biggest oil companies in the world.

Expensive to Operate

Being free of the oil sands dilemma will be the first dividend Premier Manning will collect from his retirement. There are others. Alberta's huge oil and gas development in the north have made it one of Canada's most expensive provinces to operate. Coupled with the burden of geography, the government must carry the burden of finding money for some lavish social services. Finding that money as oil revenues decline will be somebody else's headache.

But Mr. Manning's gains will be tinged with the anguish that is the lot of every prophet-before-his-time. He and Aberhart were scorned when they offered $35 a month to everybody as a solution to the ills of the depression. Then governments adopted their ideas piecemeal.

Ottawa started paying $5 a month to everybody under 25. Now even orthodox deep thinkers are calling for a "negative income tax which, to Bible Bill Aberhart as he turns over in his grave, must sound enough like his Social Credit Dividend to constitute palpable patent infringement.

FROM WASHINGTON

American Liberals Looking for a Home

THE ranks of the politically disaffected in the United States go beyond the core of left-liberals who unsuccessfully supported Sen. Kennedy, McCarthy and McGovern for the Democratic presidential nomination. A Louis Harris survey published this week shows that 57 per cent of Americans, if they had an open choice, would pick as president someone other than the three nominated candidates — Hubert Humphrey, Richard Nixon and George Wallace.

Purser

Only 49 per cent, when asked, said they thought the three represented a fair choice, while 46 per cent said they were disappointed in the list. Only 46 per cent thought the Republicans picked the best man, and only 33 per cent thought the Democrats did.

Yet the tentatively named "New Party" has had trouble rounding up its share of disaffected of the left to match Mr. Wallace's fast-growing organization of disaffected of the right. Why? asked a New Party supporter at a recent organizational meeting here. The Wallace people — the haters — have a place to go. We want to be heard, too.

The New Party's prospects are indeed dim. This may be because the left-liberals who can no longer support the Democratic party in the form that allowed it to nominate Mr. Humphrey are too varied a collection of members of minority opinion groups; to coalesce around an organization that is really a non-organization. The Wallace right, by contrast, are people of a few simple shared concerns and still simpler solutions. The handful of academics without power base or political experience who are trying to set up the New Party do not provide a rallying point for their potential crowd as Mr. Wallace does for his crowd.

But someone must complete the reorganization of the American political system by providing for the liberal-left the political outlet that now has been provided for the right. Much more hope for success lies with an organization calling itself the New Democratic Coalition (NDC). It operates within an existing power base: the Democratic party. Its organizing members have at least minimal political experience of anti-administration campaigning on behalf of Sen. Eugene McCarthy or other opposition candidates.

Working Within

Its goal is to take over the Democratic party from the inside. Achievement of this goal is foreseeable, but will be difficult. Some 200 to 300 possible leadership people will be holding the NDC's first major national meeting shortly in Minneapolis. They hope to organize financing and call a general convention for early December. Attending will be a virtual catalog of battle-hardened veterans of the Chicago convention.

The NDC has going for it the fact that its founding members represent an already sizeable element of the party — 49 per cent of the convention — and that this 49 per cent was selected by the methods of grass-roots democracy, either at the precinct level or in state primaries.

Against them will be the 46 per cent of the party still controlled by the old self-perpetuating hierarchy of labor leaders, city politicians and patronage

Food Price Disparities

When I arrived in Victoria recently, it didn't take me long to find out that food generally is much more expensive here than where I came from — even local products involving no freight. But the thing that provokes me is the wide disparity of prices among the stores. How come that a certain brand of milk can be sold at one place for 6 tins for 70c, while another charges $1.14 for the same quantity? While local salmon is sold at some stores for $1.35 per lb. (which itself is far too much), my store has the off-innate to charge $1.39. After buying sweet potatoes at the same store for 50c per lb. I saw them advertised elsewhere at 2 lbs. for 40c.

Considering that such a large proportion of our residents are retired people existing on small and fixed incomes, one would think that the food stores wouldn't want to extract the last nickel from folks who can ill afford it — or do they?—Indignant.

Passeth Understanding

One never will see the end, it seems, of the power (if you'll pardon the expression) of our expensive Premier. Now he has exceeded all possible expectations. Not only has he successfully and formally opened the Bennett Dam, whereby the largest lake in British Columbia will be created and 8,000 of those drained moose drowned. He has also made the mighty Peace flow into Lake Athabasca (instead of the Slave), and even — wonder of wonders — caused the lake to discharge its waters into Hudson Bay! Mirabile dicta! How does he do it?—C. P. Wilson, 2538 Vista Bay Road.

(Ed. Note: The writer of the offending line in Saturday's issue, erroneously describing the course of the Peace River, has been assigned to jump into it and trace the eventual route of its waters by way of the Mackenzie River to the Arctic.)

Realistic Highway Safety

The demerit system as recently announced by Motor Vehicles Superintendent Ray Haddfield represents a major step in the approach to a more realistic and just method of highway safety. And with the added rider by which an errant motorist may redeem himself for a minor infraction with twelve months good driving, the plan is even more sensible.

I have long felt that the old "ticket and fine" method was anachronous to today's modern highways. It was patently unfair and contributed little in the way of sound and responsible driving habits.

Now, the normally conscientious motorist momentarily preoccupied, who breaks the law unintentionally (it happens to the best at least once in a lifetime) is able to cleanse his record and prove his worth.

Those irresponsible types who constitute a perpetual threat to life and limb will meet stricter justice and find it is to their benefit also that they adhere to those laws they once so contemptuously flouted.—Frank E. Lockyer, Sidney.

By RICHARD PURSER

Sitting On Hands

The situation explains why so many Democrats who opposed Mr. Humphrey's nomination will be sitting on their voting hands while quietly hoping for a Nixon victory to give their party a chance to report for Chicago and to reform.

There is no telling how the new political structure will shake out. A leading NDC spokesman, Don Peterson, who cut a noble figure as Wisconsin delegation chairman at the Chicago convention, hopes for a return to the two-party system with all conservatives in the Republican party and all liberals in the Democratic party. But it is doubtful that things are simple enough any more for this either-or approach to politics. The centre, after all, needs a political home as well as do the right and the left.

There now are two parties of the centre, and one of the right. The possibilities for the future are three: There will be a fourth party of the left (using the word in its American sense, equivalent to "liberal" in other countries); the Democratic party will move left, resulting in a reformed three-party system; or the left will continue to be frozen out politically, making a violent political confrontation inevitable at some undeterminable date.

The most readily achievable and the most plausible alternative would appear to be a reformed three-party system. The American political spectrum really does not go far enough to the left to warrant four parties jockeying for position; three can adequately cover the non-crucial range of political opinion.

But at the moment they don't, and until they do, the present air of leaderlessness can be expected to hang over American politics.

Looking Back

From The Times, Oct. 2, 1968.

A world famous authority on the question of insect-ous pests in the person of Dr. Fletcher, Dominion entomologist, has arrived in the city. He has been especially commissioned by the government to make a special examination of the fruit orchards of the vast Indian reserves in B.C.

Mr. Fletcher stated that the Indians are quite conversant with the methods of spraying and pruning their trees.

IN WHITEST AFRICA—PART THREE

South Africans Lulled to Sleep

By WILLIAM R. FRYE

The danger of unrest and ultimately of revolution in South Africa being so clear, and the consequences of inaction so potentially disastrous, the obvious question is: Why don't South Africans do something about it?

There is a significant school of thought, both in South Africa and elsewhere, which argues that they are doing something meaningful about it, or that they will do something if they are given time and if outside pressures are relaxed.

This kind of reasoning sounds persuasive, but is in fact highly debatable. A close study of the South African scene does not encourage hope for self-generating peaceful change. The attitudes and practices to which so much of the world object are deeply rooted in centuries of searing experience.

The now-dominant white man, the Afrikaner, descendant of the original Dutch and Huguenot pioneers, had to fight furiously for virtually everything he values most.

The social, political, economic, and religious setting in which race conflict has arisen in South Africa is unique in the world, and militates against constructive change.

It is unrealistic to expect Afrikaner traditionalists (as distinct from Afrikaner intellectuals and the English-speaking South Africans, many of whom are more liberal) to alter fundamentally the country's course, however much time they are given and however patient and "understanding" the outside world might be.

Only a drastic change in the political balance, removing the Afrikaner extremists from power, could produce peaceful change in a constructive direction. But the Afrikaner nationalists are solidly entrenched.

Beating Back the Hordes

In the view of these nationalists, they are doing something effective about the challenge of racial strife: they are beating back the African hordes, keeping the Bantu "in their place."

As the late Adlai E. Stevenson once put it, they regard the defense as the remedy; they prescribe "for the malady of racism the bitter tonic of apartheid." They hope that by the unrelenting exercise of political and police power, the whites can remain indefinitely in control and impose a "solution" on the nonwhites. The "solution" would consist of "separate development" — forced isolation for some nonwhites and forced subordination for the rest.

In the meantime, apartheid is an ideology well suited to maintaining the Nationalists' grip on a safe majority of the white electorate. It is, in other words, a useful instrument of domestic political power.

The more frightened the whites become; the more South Africa is denounced and boycotted in the outside world; and the more turbulent, upheaval, and bloodshed there are in Black Africa, the more the white electorate tends to vote Nationalist to obtain "protection" from these perils and pressures.

Under different circumstances, it might be logical to look to the churches as an influence for constructive change. However, in South Africa the Dutch Reformed Church (Calvinist), of which a great majority of Afrikaners are devoted members, is a powerful influence for the perpetuation of racial prejudice.

Many other religious denominations, both Roman Catholic and Protestant, have broken wholly or in large part with apartheid.

Calvinism State Religion

But all these congregations are much less numerous and influential than that of the Dutch Reformed Church. And in many cases, although churches are open to all races, nonwhites have not in fact been made to feel welcome, and few attend.

Calvinism comes close to being a state religion in South Africa.

A measure of the church's importance in the community is its puritanical impact on social mores. In the largely rural Orange Free State, where Calvinism is strongest, no sports are played on Sunday, no public swimming pools are open, no bathing suits or even shorts may properly be worn on Sunday.

They Did It Before, We Can Do It Again

By ART STOTT

Prof. Alf Loft has a particularly engaging way of interesting an audience in Canadian history. He brings to his subject bright anecdotes. He has the ability to introduce his listeners to outstanding figures of our past in human terms, presenting them in a way to indicate the personal and other dimensions they faced in making decisions; and lending many episodes a cheerful sense of the ridiculous. This is a light-hearted treatment of history that avoids damaging personalities or detracting from the importance of events.

Alf helps the statue down from the pedestal and lets him breathe, bleed or bluster again, life-size. In the process he allows his audience to sense the tides that sweep nations, the aspirations which move various sectors of humanity and the forces in play between countries at given times. He manages, in his talks, to escape the thunderous rumblings of fore-ordained destiny that make some histories lugubrious.

While he was escorting some of us on 10,000 miles of Canadian history the other evening—an illustrated lecture outlining his own and his family's centennial project, a trip with a camera across the country—I found myself reverting to an old query: Do men make history or does history make men? A little of both, I suspect, with other ingredients thrown in.

At one time in my life I was subjected to the doctrines of the economic interpretation. All history, I was told, was based on the play of economics from which sprang the events on record and the personalities involved in those events. Wars were born in struggles for sources of raw material; in contests for markets, in a determination on the part of some to enjoy a fuller life at the expense of others. The seizure of the New World by the old, the Crusades, the intermittent invasions of European states, the sweep of Genghis Khan, the so-called "winning of the West," could all be explained by the play of economic forces. Some of the explanations were convincing.

Then came the Second World War and it became evident that economic considerations were not the sole elements in war and in history.

Medievalism assumed more substance than tools of the jingoists, mere flag-waving to stimulate popular support of a nation's cause. Even materialist interpreters accepted that reality—often after a battle of conscience.

Recorded history unquestionably is man-made. Man has set down the record. He has reported on the events and the trends as he saw them or deciphered them from earlier records made by men—and in this exercise he has necessarily been subjective to some degree.

So, in recent times, we have seen Hitler stamped as the creator of the Second World War. We are still left to wonder if there would have been a Second World War without Hitler—if building forces were reaching the point of explosion which would have occurred with or without the high priest of Nazism. This is a conjecture, incidentally, which in no way excuses Hitler.

We are left to wonder—and this without heresy—if the outcome of the war would have been the same without Churchill, who gave the free world courage in abundance to face adversity.

Were the personalities the governing factors, or were they the outgrowth of events? Did the men make the history or history make the men?

This, I guess, is a variant of the old chicken-and-the-egg question. History is important to us because it seeks to relate, usually with variations according to the sensitivities of an author's nationality, what men did under certain circumstances.

Alf Loft brought that point home to me the other night with a picture of the Long Portage over which the Men of the North brought their huge packs of furs to the Montreal buyers.

The significance of the Long Portage was mainly geographical. It was a trail required by the voyageurs to get around falls and rapids impossible to a canoe. Man had nothing to do with creating the falls or the rapids. Man had everything to do with the creation of the trail. He made the history.

The economic interpretation of that paragraph in a nation's story is valid enough. The history was made because there was a market for the furs. The exploitation falls short. Man made the market and man devised the means of bringing the raw resource to the market.

I think the concept is constructive and a valuable theme for contemplation today. In a widespread defeatism we feel frequently that we are caught in the tide of inexorable forces, powerless to manage our future. If the Men of the North had been seized by that belief, they would have stopped at the impassable rapids and turned back in their canoes. They didn't stop. They didn't turn back. They devised an alternative to river travel and the story of Canada expanded. It might be worthwhile to remember that small lesson in history as a guide to the future.

Measuring the Navel Gap

"It imposes on him, too, the need to measure the one-inch gap between navel and garment without stating whether the inch is curvilinear or as the crow flies."

Mr. Kalk's protest was popular with many women, but was unavailing. A majority of the town council insisted on the law.

The influence of the Dutch Reformed Church is vastly greater among the Afrikaners than among the British. The latter are widely regarded by dissenters as shining unbelievers, and the light regard is often reciprocated.

When an Afrikaner preacher in Cape Town rebuked English-speaking students at the local university for wearing women's panties during a campus shindig called "Rag Time," a Durban newspaper ran the story under the headline "Pantie Pinpointing Pains Parson."

A poster on one of the dormitory bulletin boards at the university screamed SEX: in red letters a good 15 inches high. In normal print at the bottom of the poster was the footnote: "Now that we have your attention, please don't forget the meeting of the Student Council..."

Nor would sex seem to be wholly an academic interest. A woman teacher complained to a pastor that, as he later recounted in a sermon, she had been invited to a University of Cape Town party among the sand dunes and told, when she arrived, to "undress and take part in the nude."

He dropped the story at this point, but it is clear the church has its work cut out for it among the errant ones.

The government and the church have combined in recent years to promote a wave of McCarthyism, in which advocacy of even the most moderate steps toward a multiracial, shared society is made to seem tantamount to communist sympathy.

'A Capacity for Indignation That Serves Editor, Diplomat'

By CHALMERS M. ROBERTS

WASHINGTON — "The ideal newspaperman," James Russell Wiggins said in a speech a few months ago, "is a man who never forgets which side of the spotlight he's on, who never forgets that he is a reporter, a recorder, a narrator, and not an actor, who never forgets that he is an observer and not a mover and shaker."

This has been the guiding principle of Wiggins' career in journalism, the last 21 years as managing editor, executive editor and editor of the Washington Post.

It has been this sense of journalistic integrity which set the tone for the paper through two decades. "Nothing could be more alarming or dismaying to me," he added, "or I think to any journalist responsible for a newspaper or any part of it, than to encounter repeatedly the suggestion that the reader knows from the news column what in his later years as editor he gave passion to the editorial page as well. He has had capacity for indignation which as well serves a newspaper, and which also can serve a diplomat."

The Wiggins library is jammed with books on every conceivable subject; his appetite for reading is enormous. But he has been so stay-at-home editor for he travelled to all continents to broaden his judgment and increase his knowledge of the facts.

He has been, indeed, "the soul and conscience and driving force" at the paper, as Mrs. Katharine Graham, the Post's president, put it.

Russ Wiggins, first of all, has been devoted to the career of journalism which, in his case, goes back to a country weekly in Minnesota in 1922 and today includes the ownership of a similar weekly in Maine.

His passion, if there is a single one above all others, is the people's right to know. In the pursuit of this objective he often tangled with the government, including a notable battle which he led and which forced Secretary of State John Foster Dulles to withdraw an embargo on the right of American newsmen to go to China.

As Wiggins wrote in a preface to a second edition of his widely praised book, "Freedom or Secrecy," "one of the worst consequences of secrecy is the license it confers upon deceit."

Wiggins has never been a recluse from officialdom; yet he has never been a crony. He has known Hubert Humphrey as long ago as the day he served on Humphrey's Second World War draft board but he has never called him anything but "Mr. Vice President" since he attained that office.

His wit and wisdom, and doubtless the power of his editorship, appealed to Presidents Kennedy and Johnson. While he has been a White House guest, he has not been a White House intimates.

The post of American ambassador at the United Nations will be his first venture into government, though there have been offers before. He remarked that "I had a presidential commission once before — in the United States Army Air Corps. I'm accepting this one in the same spirit."

James Russell Wiggins (or J. R. Wiggins — he disdains the alternative of J. Russell) came to the Post in 1947. He never had a college education, a fact which doubtless is amazing to the many who know him as a scholar of American history, a Jeffersonian expert, a man of catholic tastes and an expert in the use of the English language.

When he came to the Post it was a small and struggling newspaper. He gave its news pages time and integrity and

This has the effect of powerfully discouraging the expression of liberal opinion and minimizing pressure for significant change. It never seems to occur to the government that racial integration could be an important blow against, rather than for, communism.

So far as the ruling Nationalist Party, the dominant church, and their supporters are concerned, therefore, there is no visible likelihood of self-generated reform. No doubt it is necessary for the Nationalists to moderate their practices in order to stay in power, ideology would be best to the requirements of politics.

But there is no such necessity at present; on the contrary, the Nats. appear to have a solid grip on the electorate—because, not in spite, of the policy of apartheid.

Right-centre in South African politics (though of late more right than centre) is occupied by the United Party. Since Sharpeville, at least, the UP has been drifting steadily toward the government point of view, until today its differences with the Nationalists are primarily of degree and method.

It might permit the urban African to put down roots, to have a family life, and in many cases to take jobs for which he is qualified, but it would not give him the right to vote on the common roll.

It would set up what it calls a "racial federation," which means separate representation in Parliament for each race, or "nation," the number of representatives for each being determined in such a way as to assure majorities for the white "nation."

The Progressives, at the left-centre of the political spectrum, embrace much of the active white opposition to apartheid—the people who, like the ladies of the Black Sash and the intellectuals of the Institute of Race Relations, feel strongly enough about government folly to try to do something about it.

The "Progs" got 69,042 votes (less than 10 per cent) in 1961, their first election, and 32,805 (less than 3 per cent) in 1966. It is considered surprising that they elect even one member of Parliament.

Liberal Party Outlawed

Until recently legislation made multiracial political parties illegal, there was also a Liberal Party, under the renowned novelist Alan Paton, at the far left of the spectrum. It called for universal adult suffrage.

Contesting few seats, it polled exactly 2,461 votes (less than one-third of one per cent) in 1961, and ran no candidates at all in 1966. Even if all the people who voted for the UP, the Progressives and the Liberals had united in support of a single ticket, they could not have defeated the Nationalists in 1966.

One reason for this virtual collapse of the political opposition is that many whites simply do not know what is happening around them. A kindly lady took me by the arm

Secrecy, he said, offers "the temptation to sugar-coat every disaster and gild every triumph."

If government can enforce secrecy, he wrote, it "can manage the news to its taste. It will speak with one voice and, however much that voice may err, there will be none to say it nay."

(The Washington Post)

ALAN PATON

ADLAI STEVENSON

after church one Sunday and parred: "Look around you. Our blacks are content."

A man prominent in a denomination whose basic tenets include the Golden Rule told me, in perfect seriousness, "We ARE blessing the Natives."

Paton said they were "seduced." Diplomats stationed in South Africa sometimes call it "brainwashed." The East London Daily Dispatch wrote that the government had "mesmerized" the whites in the Transkei. I like the latter word; it could be applied more generally.

A great many South Africans have been mesmerized not just subconsciously by fear and by material prosperity, but quite deliberately by a government highly skilled at propaganda distortion: The Nationalists' pitch is often made in terms of high morality.

"The finest blend of cruelty and idealism ever devised by man," Paton has called it. "The cruel man stomachs the idealism for the sake of the cruelty; the idealist stomachs the cruelty for the sake of the idealism." Nationalist followers will be found speaking proudly of the fine hospitals built for "our blacks" — unaware, it would seem, that ward after ward is filled with African children suffering from malnutrition and tuberculosis as a result of the submarginal wages paid their fathers.

Thus, many South Africans have been lulled to sleep. They do not know anything serious is wrong; they are sure others are misinformed about them.

Even pro-government circles sometimes acknowledge the extent of this aberration. The Nationalist newspaper Die Transvaler said in an editorial, "Every white person will have to be made to recognize that there is a race problem."

Time Come to Wake Up'

"How this knowledge can be brought to the whites is a problem nobody has yet solved. The time has truly come for thousands of whites who are in ignorance to wake up."

In some respects this state of mind is reminiscent of the Germany of the 1930s. Some Germans knew the meaning of Hitlerism and condoned it; but many more were genuinely ignorant of what was happening in Berlin and Buchenwald.

Anything that would contribute to opening up South Africa to a freer exchange of ideas and fuller knowledge of itself would be immensely beneficial.

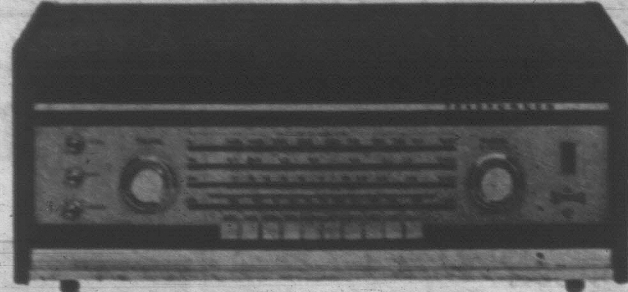

Those who contend that merely by a "lowering of voices" in criticism of South Africa, by patience and "understanding" of her "special problems" (though this is needed), the outside world can encourage or bring about peaceful change, are deceiving themselves.

Of the three essential preconditions for change — discovery that nonwhites are capable of sharing power, cooperation among white opposition parties, and escape from the government's mesmeristic spell — only the second (unity among moderates) is practical without outside help.

If the outside world wants peaceful change in South Africa in the direction of the twentieth century's single most compelling secular precept — that a man is to be judged by what he is and what he does, not by the color of his skin — it will have to raise, not lower, its voice. And it will have to do more than talk. It will have to act, with supreme skill.

Use the Naran Plan to Lose Ugly Fat

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this home recipe yourself. It's easy, no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your drug store and ask for four ounces of Naran Concentrate. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoonsful a day as needed and follow the Naran Plan.

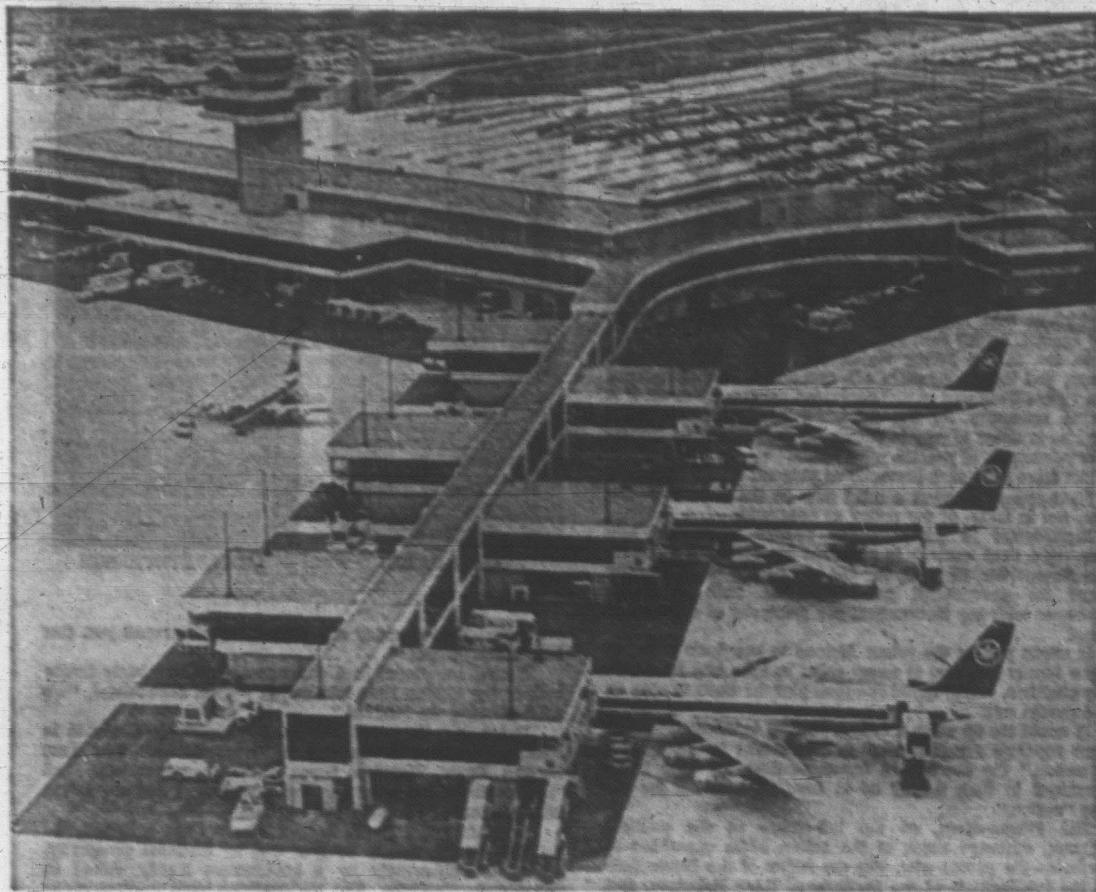

If your first purchase does not show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow this easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back lustrous curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly that disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active.

Accept no substitutes. Stick to NARAN PLAN

Humphrey Warns of Wallace

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Vice-President Hubert Humphrey, campaigning hard against George C. Wallace in the South, called the former Alabama governor a "creature of the most reactionary underground forces in American life."

Humphrey, the Democratic party presidential nominee in the Nov. 5 election, warned that the troubled times the U.S. now faces could produce the reactionary element similar to the kind that brought Hitler to power in the 1930s.

He told a University of Tennessee audience in Knoxville Tuesday:

"You say those things could viciously hope and pray that you are right.... But I know from deep personal experience we are closer to this possibility than I would have ever believed possible."

TAKING CHANCES

Humphrey's Republican opponent, Richard Nixon, accused the vice-president of taking chances with the Paris peace talks.

Nixon told a Detroit news conference that Humphrey could be gambling away the U.S. negotiating team's "only trump card" with his statement on a North Vietnamese bombing halt.

Unless Humphrey clarifies the statement, the Republican candidate said Tuesday. Nixon may read it as an indication it can get a concession from Humphrey in January it can't get from U.S. negotiators in Paris now.

HALT IS TRUMP

"The trump card that our negotiators have in order to secure any success is the bombing halt," Nixon said.

"Now if that trump card is played by either of the presidential candidates by indicating that we in January might do something the negotiators have refused to do in Paris, it means that all chance for these negotiators to succeed will evaporate."

Nixon said he will remain silent on his own Vietnam peace plan while the exploratory peace talks in Paris have a chance for success.

At Knoxville, Humphrey called Wallace an "apostle of hate and racism" and added the charge that Republican opponent Nixon has "deliberately courted the most radical, extremist elements in his own party."

While Wallace is running on a platform of law and order, Humphrey said, as governor of Alabama he disobeyed courts, harassed judges, and headed a state "with the highest murder rate in the nation."

Wallace, the American Independent party presidential candidate, said both the Republicans and Democrats have "supported every movement in the streets that have now led to anarchy."

Wallace appeared to take heavy heckling at steps through Michigan Tuesday in stride. He told hecklers in Grand Rapids their behavior had "gotten me 300,000 votes here."

Trial Defence Tests Voice Identification

VANCOUVER (CP) — Defence lawyers for 10 young men charged with confining and indecently assaulting a Vancouver man produced their own recorded evidence Tuesday after the prosecution used recordings of telephone conversations taped by police.

Monday, prosecutors T. G. Bowen-McLure and S. Martin Toy entered tape-recorded evidence from a city police wire-tapping scheme in which telephone calls in and out of a motorcycle gang's clubhouse last Feb. 22 were secretly recorded.

James Cumman, who alleged he was illegally confined and indecently assaulted Feb. 22 at the clubhouse, listened to the police tapes and testified Monday that he recognized certain voices as those of some of the persons who took part in the incidents.

Fast Train Better Plan Than Tunnel?

VANCOUVER (CP) — Consulting engineer John W. Southin said Monday that plans for a new $100,000,000 crossing of Burrard Inlet should be scrapped in favor of commuter trains.

He said trucks from Horseshoe Bay could use existing trackage and the rail crossing at Second Narrows.

He said capital costs would be $8,000,000, with operating costs of $600,000 a year. Interest alone on the $100,000,000 needed to finance a bridge or tunnel would be $12,000,000 a year, he said.

Mr. Southin said a train service, with half-hour service during rush periods and a bus link to the business district from the CPR and CNR stations, could be operated by a public transit authority.

"A club car would be included so you could have breakfast on the way in and get drunk on the way home," he said.

Charged are Robert Wayne Pearson, David James Black, Herbert Albert Spivey, Charles Allan Dumont, Victor Gregory, William Cross, William Stone, Gary Wilbur, Laverne Schmidt and Aubrey Baker. All are from the Vancouver area except Wilbur, from Red Deer, Alta., and Baker, from Edmonton.

Dennis Gaba, who was charged along with the 10 men but who later decided to give prosecution evidence, also listened to the secretly-recorded telephone calls and said he recognized the voices of Black and Schmidt.

Tuesday, defence lawyers brought in their own taped recordings of telephone conversations and asked Cumman and Gaba if they could identify voices.

E. A. D. Oliver, one of nine defence lawyers, said the dialogue was taken from a transcript of a Supreme Court trial. He did not explain the mechanics involved in getting the conversations on tape.

Cumman listened to the tape recordings of several voices and told the court he believed he recognized the voices of Gaba and Schmidt.

He also said he believed one of the voices belonged to a lawyer in the courtroom, and pointed to defence lawyer Marvin Storrer.

Mr. Oliver did not say whether the identifications were accurate.

The hearing continues.

Better Offshore Managing Urged

ELECTED vice-chairman Tuesday of the UN General Assembly's 15th committee was Paul A. Beaulieu of Montreal, Canada's 35-year-old ambassador and associate permanent representative. The committee's main work, under chairman Guerodot Tchermouchenko of the Soviet Union, is to review and approve next year's UN budget.

Red Cross Workers Shot In Biafra

LAGOS (Reuters) — Two international Red Cross workers and two British missionaries working for the World Council of Churches were killed by stray bullets in the battle for the strategic Biafran town of Odiwu, diplomatic sources said here today.

The Red Cross workers, a Yugoslav and a Swede, were the first Red Cross personnel to stay in an area captured by federal troops, rather than flee with retreating Biafran forces.

The Yugoslav was identified as Dr. Dragan Herold, 32, a medical expert from Belgrade working with Yugoslavia's only relief team in Nigeria.

In Geneva, the International Red Cross Committee named the dead Britons as Albert Savory and his wife Marjorie, both in their late 30s, of the World Council of Churches.

The Swedish worker was named as Robert Carlsson, 32, a member of the Swedish relief distribution team.

Prices Follow Pay Increases

PARIS (Reuters) — Some 15,000,000 Frenchmen got an average 3 per cent pay raise Tuesday under an agreement between the government and unions following last May's national strikes.

The agreement provided for an average raise of 10 per cent, 7 per cent of which was paid June 1.

However, rail fares went up today by some 5 per cent and telephone-rentals were raised 20 per cent. Bread, milk, cigarettes, electricity and gas also have all gone up in price since June.

OTTAWA (CP) — Fisheries Minister Jack Davis wants Canada to take the lead in advocating fisheries management and conservation policies in international waters off her coasts.

The minister said in an interview today:

"We should be pressing more aggressively for better management of the fisheries off our continental shelves—let Canada take the initiative in this."

He was commenting on remarks he made to the Vancouver Board of Trade Monday which he said had been misinterpreted as a bid to scrap Canada's 12-mile fishing limit.

"Not only do I not want to scrap the limit, we're busy at work drafting co-ordinates for additional areas off Canada's coasts," Mr. Davis said. Two areas off the east coast already had headland-to-headland co-ordinates.

Negotiations were still under way with nations who have historic fishing rights off Canada's coasts in order to reach agreement on other specific baseline co-ordinates setting out the 12-mile limit.

SEEKS AGREEMENT

However, Mr. Davis would like to see Canada "and the fishing nations of the world" reach agreement on resource management policies to be followed in international waters, far past the 12-mile limit.

Such agreement might well require United Nations co-ordination but it is a goal worth striving for, Mr. Davis said.

The continental shelf on the Pacific extends between 50 and 100 miles off the British Columbia coast, and on the east coast, for 50 to 120 miles into the Atlantic.

The minister said the continental resource management theory is his own and not federal government policy.

Some other nations now protect their continental shelves and require foreign fishing fleets to be licensed before allowing them to intrude.

He anticipated the U.S. would oppose any restriction of ship movement on the shelves because it would hamper movement of its warships.

Czech Censor Blocking Magazine

PRAGUE (AP) — Czechoslovakia's new press control board has withheld approval for publication of a new magazine by the outspoken Czechoslovak Writers Union.

The board, created in response to Soviet demands for tighter information controls, approved the registration of 11 new periodicals Tuesday while postponing decisions on the applications of 10 others, the official CTK news agency said.

A proposed new Writers Union magazine called Listy, meaning Letters, was among those not approved, informants said.

It would have been successor to Literarni Listy, the Writers Union organ branded as "counter-revolutionary" by Moscow and discontinued after the Aug. 20 Soviet-led invasion of Czechoslovakia.

Literarni Listy had been regarded as a symbol of the free expression and discussion permitted before the occupation.

War Memorial Shift Pondered By Saanich

Saanich will ask the Canadian Legion what its members think of a suggestion that the peace memorial on Shelbourne Street be moved to the municipal hall area on Vernon Avenue.

The parks and outdoor recreation committee considered three landscape designs Tuesday night for the peace memorial in Gore Park. They would cost $5,000, $6,500 or $8,000.

Mayor Hugh Curtis said the ceremony each Armistice Day would be enhanced if moved to the municipal hall area before money was spent on the present site.

"It is our tribute to the dead of two wars any less if we transfer the memorial to the municipal hall?" he asked.

Committee chairman Ald. Alan Newberry opposed any move.

"I think that it is an historic site associated with the former memorial avenue," he said.

NEW SAANICH

"The fact that today it is surrounded by a commercial area and apartments is meaningful. It is part of the new Saanich. In the old days, when it was in a rural area, it was part of the old Saanich."

"It would be the removal of something that to a great many people, even though many may not now be alive, was a meaningful thing."

Ald. Leslie Pussmore said the ceremonies are not well attended and if officials, Boy Scouts and other organization members who "had" to attend were taken away, there wouldn't be many left.

Ald. Edward Lum suggested leaving the memorial where it is and having Armistice Day ceremonies at the new arena.

Navigators To Obtain Severance

VANCOUVER (CP) — A unique 10-year labor agreement has been signed by the Canadian Airline Navigators Association and Canadian Pacific Airlines. It was announced today.

It covers severance pay for men being replaced by electronic equipment. It also provides for pay increases based on the consumer price index and gross national product.

A spokesman said navigators would be replaced gradually during the life of the contract.

Covered by the contract, announced jointly by the union and airline, are 25 navigators in Vancouver, 17 in Montreal, two in Amsterdam and one each in Honolulu and Mexico City. The contract is retroactive to Oct. 1, 1987, and runs until Sept. 30, 1997.

The complex severance arrangements provide for one month's pay for each year of service if the navigator is displaced due to "technical redundancy."

Machines are expected to replace navigators within the 10-year life of the contract, said the spokesman.

NATO Value Not Doubted Says Martin

OTTAWA (CP) — Senator Paul Martin said Tuesday night that just because Canada is reassessing her role in Europe it does not mean that she will withdraw from the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

The former external affairs minister, now government leader in the Senate, told the upper chamber:

"No one doubts, I think, the value of NATO." The organization had "served a very essential purpose" in maintaining peace in Europe.

Senator Martin decried the Aug. 20 Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia and said NATO members had acted wisely in the situation and had not made an already tense situation worse.

New Alberta Rail Line

OTTAWA — The opposition Tuesday supported a resolution to allow the CNR to build a $30,000,000 northern Alberta line.

It would serve new sulphur recovery plants at the Pan American Petroleum Corporation's Bigstone property on the Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas Co. Ltd. property nine miles south of South Saskatchewan.

The act authorizing construction, which was first reading in the Commons, was introduced by James Richardson, Winnipeg financier and a minister without portfolio, who was piloting his first legislation.

Fugitive Caught

BURNABY (CP) — Police and prison guards recaptured a 21-year-old Oakalla Prison Farm fugitive two hours after he escaped from a work gang Tuesday. Camille Davis was serving a three months definite and 18 months indefinite sentence for breaking and entering.

Mr. Richardson said the 60-mile line may result in the development of two other sulphur recovery plants in the area and development of timber resources. It would make a substantial contribution to economic development of a remote area.

Gerald W. Baldwin PC-Peace River noted that the line is about 75 miles from the south terminal of the Pine Point railway, the construction of which was criticized when the Conservatives were in government.

Mr. Baldwin said his party supports development of the North and hopes the new railway gets rapid parliamentary approval.

ARENA FORMAL OPENING FOLLOWED BY OPEN HOUSE

Saatchi will hold "open house" at its first arena Sunday.

Official opening, by former Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes, is set for 3 p.m. and 300 guests have been invited.

Arrangements have been made for the arena, named after Mr. Pearkes who lives in Saatchi, to remain open until about 9 p.m. for the public to have its first look.

It will be placed a few days after the official opening and the arena is expected to be in full operation by the middle of the month.

The arena, which cost just over $200,000 was built by E. J. Henders and Sons Architects were Wagg and Humberston.

FIRST STAGE

It is the first stage of the four-part indoor recreation program, which ratepayers approved in a referendum 18 months ago.

Second stage, the $200,000 senior citizens activity centre at Hampton Park, is expected to open in about one month.

Provisional planning is proceeding on the third stage, a swimming pool and community centre at the municipally-owned Lumbark Estate in Gordon Road. The referendum set aside $450,000 for this project.

Final stage will be a community centre on the municipally-owned McRae Estate, in the Cedar Hill area, at a cost of $200,000.

Mr. Leslie Pannone, chairman of the council committee responsible for planning and construction of the arena located behind the Tillamook drive-in theatre, will be chairman of Sunday's ceremony.

Queen Disappointed Over Pictures

LONDON (AP) — The Queen is definitely not amused at a press photo showing her in the royal boudoir.

Pictures showing Her Majesty in bed—published by the French magazine Paris Match and the Daily Express—got a frosty reception at Buckingham Palace today.

"The Queen would rather not have seen them published," said a palace spokesman.

The palace expressed disappointment that the pictures, which it described as being of a "personal and intimate" nature—should have been published in Britain.

The Express ran one of the pictures across half its front page, showing the Queen sitting up in bed after the birth of Prince Edward in 1934.

MANAGING IN BED

The pictures, which show the Queen wearing a bed jacket, smoking and diamond earrings, appeared first in the Paris Match which said it got them from an Englishman "whose identity is not being revealed." The Express limited at least one of the photos was taken by Princess Anne, the Queen's daughter.

The palace spokesman said: "Nobody disputes these are very, very charming pictures which people will enjoy looking at."

"It's just that we are completely at a loss to suggest how they ever got to the hands of the Paris Match."

Serge Lennihan, London editor of Paris Match, said: "Forty-two thousand copies of the magazine will be on sale in London tomorrow."

"If demand is great we will have more flown in."

Lennihan said his magazine has received no request from the palace to stop distribution of the issue here.

Brown Calls for 'Great Debate'

By LOUIS HEVEN

BLACKPOOL, England (AP) —

Former foreign secretary George Brown called today for "a great debate" on the issue of the future to prepare the Labor party for victory in the next general election.

Brown, the party's strong pet, who resigned in a half from Prime Minister Wilson's government six months ago, spoke to the annual party convention in his capacity of deputy party leader.

He was presenting the national executive's "mid-term manifesto." It appeared to be the opening gun in the battle for re-election.

But in the debate that followed, speaker after speaker attacked the manifesto because it made no reference to further nationalization of industry.

MP Eric Heffer criticized the Wilson government for abandoning Socialist principles and he appealed to the party "to turn to the left."

Brown said that "the immense majority of the British people are immeasurably better off in material terms than they were when we came into office four years ago."

PROBLEMS CHANGED

Now, he said, they have different problems and different priorities. He warned that the Labor government of Clement Attlee lost power in 1951 because it had lost touch with the people, failing to realize their worries.

"We must spend the next two years," Brown said, "thinking."

New Many Wear FALSE TEETH With More Comfort

To overcome discomfort when dentures slip, slide or become loose, a new type of denture has been developed. It is called the "New Many Wear" denture. It is made of a special material which is soft and comfortable. It is also very strong and durable. It is the only denture that can be worn with or without false teeth. It is the only denture that can be worn with or without false teeth. It is the only denture that can be worn with or without false teeth.

Police Search of Women Said Not Job for Male

OTTAWA (CP) — Arrested women should be searched by policewomen since intimate handling by policemen arouses long-standing hostility and bitterness in female offenders, the Canadian Corrections Association said today.

In a 50-page brief that handled delicate questions with little allusion of words, the association told the royal commission on the status of women that police should avoid giving an arrested woman "the impression she is no longer a woman."

"No woman offender should have to appear in court without a chance to wash, comb her hair and apply the cosmetics."

Subdivisions Explained To Ratepayers

The Saatchi planning department issued a subdivision guide for residents today.

Entitled Subdivisions and Cities, it discusses what subdivision is about, why local government regulates subdivision and gives the reader an insight into subdivision procedures.

Contents of the pamphlet are arranged in question-and-answer form with charts and plans to illustrate points.

Council recently approved a new subdivision bylaw which will regulate these matters for some time to come.

The new pamphlet is available free of charge at the municipal hall. Two years ago the planning department issued an informational pamphlet for the public on zoning.

$600 Donated To Sally Ann

GANGES—More than 3000 men raised this year for the Salvation Army charities.

Directing the campaign this year were Lieutenant-Colonel Desmond Crofton and bank manager James Merrett.

the wants in complete privacy," the brief says.

Police forces should be hiring more policewomen to provide proper care for female offenders.

Prostitution should continue to be subject to some legal sanctions, the brief suggests, but prosecution of prostitutes should take place only in cases of public soliciting.

"Private sexual intercourse between two consenting adults should not be subject to prosecution."

While on the subject, the association adds that male prostitutes, who now are not liable to arrest for soliciting, should be made subject to prosecution on the charge as are female prostitutes.

DRUGS LESSONS

The brief says prison breeds lesbian relationships; that the frequent offender tends eventually to give into the pressures to join lesbian groups, and that this part of her life is apt to continue outside prison and help keep her in the criminal environment.

It recommends that persons working in female prisons receive special training in dealing with the problems of female offenders.

The association says attempts of suicide should no longer be treated as a crime and that drug addicts might be controlled and treated outside the law.

The brief says that 250 men in 130 women were convicted in 1965 for attempted suicide. It suggests such offenders have serious mental problems and would be better off in hospital than in jail.

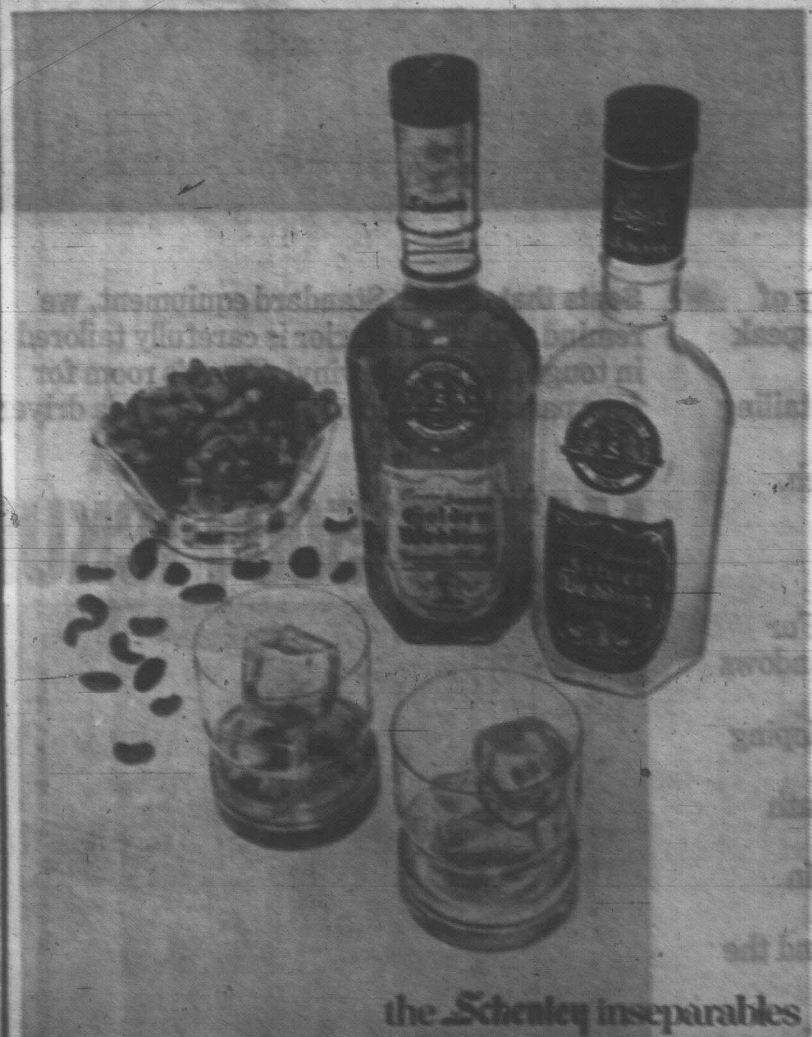

Drug trafficking and possession should be subject to legal controls but "drug addiction and dependency should be recognized as a social and medical problem and the user recognized as a person in need of treatment."

In another brief, the Canadian Teachers' Federation, 62 per cent female, says women teachers get equal pay and fringe benefits with men teachers but do not have equal access to promotion.

"Women teachers do not in general have equal access to such positions as secondary school principal, superintendent, dean of education and member of teachers' association staff."

MAZDA 1500 SEDAN

$2320<sup>00</sup> You're taking your first look at the car Japanese drivers trade up to. After you read about and drive it, you'll know why.

Styled by Bertone. We'll let the artistry of this famous Italian automotive stylist speak for itself. But we'd like to say a few words about the care we've taken in detailing the Mazda's fine lines. The panel fit is worthy of a car costing twice as much.

So's the paint. Deep. Smooth.

Mazda is pretty.

Inside, Mazda is pretty and practical. For example: Mazda's curved glass side windows are a tasteful styling feature, but they also add inches to interior space. The sloping hood and large glass areas make for great visibility. And great looks. Beneath the attractive rear deck, you'll find room for four or five big suitcases. Sit in a Mazda, and you'll sit behind round, readable instruments. Lots of them. And the instruments sit in a woodgrain dash. Just like on an expensive European GT. Remember, this is a $2300 car.

Seats that recline. Standard equipment, we remind you. The interior is carefully tailored in tough, attractive vinyl. There's room for four passengers and one smiling Mazda driver.

Japan is here!

Mazda has heart. And it begins with a smooth, responsive overhead cam engine. The kind of powerplant you'd expect from the people who developed the famous Wankel rotary engine. The gearbox is the nicest in the business: a slick, 4-speed all synchro masterpiece that would do justice to a $15,000 import. For the shiftless, there's an optional 3-speed automatic. The only other options are a radio and a power aerial. Mazda stops smartly with a power assisted front disc, rear drum brake setup. And it goes 20,000 miles between lube jobs. Even the cooling system is sealed.

Thoroughly tested in Canada. Mazda is currently being sold very successfully in many countries throughout the world. Some of them present pretty rough driving conditions. Australia for example. But before we decided to introduce Mazda to Canada, we spent over a year testing it and adapting it specifically to Canadian driving conditions. What we learned shows up in the heating and ventilating system. And in our elaborate rust-proofing measures. The Mazda you buy will be built to order for the driving you do.

Words, words, words. You'll still have to see it. If you're in the market for a car costing around $2300, see Mazda. In fact, if you're in the market for any 5 passenger sedan, regardless of price, you should at least look at Mazda. You may save yourself a couple of thousand dollars. Or, you may decide to buy two Mazda's.

Gold Slumps

The price of gold today slipped $1.15 to $38.30 U.S. a ounce—the sharpest drop in a morning since the London free gold market was formed April 1, and the lowest level since mid-June.

Dealers said the fall was a reflection of greater confidence in the pound and the U.S. dollar. A London bullion firm spokesman said the turnover was not heavy.

The further relaxation in currency tension has prompted some of the speculative holders of gold to liquidate," he said.

Ogilvie Acquisition

Ogilvie Flour Mills Co. Ltd. said Tuesday it has taken over the bakery division of William Dyck and Sons Ltd. of Niverville, Man., and Man-O-Mat Poultry Farm Eggs Ltd. of Winnipeg, at undisclosed price.

The president of Ogilvie's food service division, Henry J. Mulaner, said management of the two companies will remain unchanged.

Sydney Steel Up

Steel production at the Sydney Steel Corp. mill reached 624,000 tons Tuesday, surpassing 1967's total output of 617,000 tons.

Sydney Steel is a Nova Scotia government corporation set up to take over operation of the steel mill from Dominion Steel and Coal Corp.

Iron production after nine months in 1968 reached 465,000 tons, up 21,000 tons from 1967's 12-month total. Doseco announced last Oct. 13 that it would close the mill April 30 because it was uneconomic.

Imp. Tobacco Merger

Imperial Tobacco of Canada Ltd., subsidiary Innotron International Ltd., and the San Francisco firm S. and W. Fine Foods Inc., have agreed in principle to merge.

Innotron, the buyer, would then be involved with a major U.S. food company as part of the diversification policy begun by Imperial several years ago.

Canada Bread Stocks

TORONTO (CP)—Shares of Canada Bread Co. Ltd., Canada's second largest bakery, rose $1.12 to a 38-year high of $18.57 on the Toronto Stock Exchange Tuesday.

Careful Canuck Myth

TORONTO (CP)—Canadian investors are less conservative than Americans, according to a study of the Canadian equity market.

The study, compiled by Professor G. R. Conway of York University for the Toronto Stock Exchange, says this is because the proportion of taxpayers who report income from share dividends rather than from fixed interest investments is greater in Canada than in the United States.

"The old myth of the conservative Canadian investor becomes even more of a myth if one compares the components of the investment incomes of Canadians to that of Americans," the report says.

It says that although American individuals on average keep more of their money in stable fixed income securities, the investment habits of Canadians vary in different provinces.

Residents of British Columbia and the Maritimes receive the highest proportion of their investment income from share dividends, while Saskatchewan residents receive the least.

Dividends are a more significant source of income in big cities than in smaller communities.

OWN 40 PER CENT

By the end of 1968, the study says, Canadian individuals owned about $14 billion or 40 per cent of the total market value of all listed Canadian equities. On top of this, Canadians held another $3.2 billion or 9 per cent indirectly through the financial institutions such as mutual and pension funds.

The value of foreign stocks owned by Canadian individuals was about $2 billion, with another $1 billion held through institutions.

The study found that equity holdings are more evenly distributed among different income groups in Canada than in the United States.

Canadian share ownership is almost equally divided between individuals in three broad income

In 1939 shares sold as high as $19.50, but in 1952 they declined to a low of $1.

Stock analysts attribute the current price to increased profits last year.

Canada Bread has seven bakeries in Ontario and Quebec, and employs more than 2,500 workers. More than half of the company's 305,000 common shares are owned by Maple Leaf Mills Ltd. of Toronto.

Canada's largest bakery chain is George Weston Ltd. of Toronto.

Air Licence Urged

NELSON (CP)—The Provincial Tourist Advisory Council will recommend granting a licence for another airline in British Columbia.

The council approved a resolution suggesting this at its Tuesday session of the semi-annual meeting here.

The council decided to endorse a resolution urging the federal air transport committee to grant a licence to one of the applicants for one-day travel in the province connecting with other air carriers from the rest of the world.

Kimberly Clark

Kimberly Clark said Tuesday a roll-back in its price increase for newspaper is to be effective in the U.S. South and some Southwest and Mexican border states is effective Jan. 1.

The company said its price increase for newspaper will be $4 a ton, instead of $5, in Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas, Missouri, West Virginia, Virginia, Kentucky and all states south of there.

Power Corporation

Power Corporation of Canada Ltd. has agreed to purchase the shares of Dominion Glass Co. Ltd. held by Consolidated-Bathurst Ltd. in a deal worth about $9 million at current market prices.

The transaction would increase Power Corporation's interest in Dominion Glass to about 57 per cent from the 35 per cent now held.

Power Corporation plans to acquire 3,500 preferred and 55,000 common shares of Dominion Glass from Consolidated-Bathurst.

When the deal is completed, it will give Power Corporation a total of 11,000 preferred and 1,368,344 common shares of Dominion Glass.

Open Trading to All

By KEN SMITH
CP Business Editor

CALGARY (CP)—While Canada should actively participate in multilateral trade deals, it should also be negotiating with the United States and other countries to set up an Atlantic free trade area, Prof. Ronald J. Wonnacott of the University of Western Ontario said Tuesday.

He said the 39th annual meeting of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce that such a market should be open to all comes, including the European Common Market.

Speaking at a panel discussion on international trade, he said it is becoming increasingly difficult for Canadian business to prosper with a domestic market of 20 million when world trading is fast-paced on markets of 200 million or more.

One way of overcoming such market limitations was special industry agreements such as the Canada-U.S. auto pact, but it was not likely that such a scheme could be extended to other industries successfully.

The other choice was a regional free-trade area, Mr. Wonnacott said.

"On political grounds, the Canadian view generally has been that the larger the number of participants the better. However, a strong economic case can be made for an initial move to free trade with the U.S. only, as a first step toward a broader arrangement."

He said Canadian manufacturers would win an immediate advantage over European competition in the U.S. market, while their position against U.S. industries would be better than most people believed.

"When Canadian costs are examined in detail, it turns out that higher costs are to be explained by inefficiencies associated with the small Canadian market," he said.

"Successful competition with U.S. producers, therefore, is not blocked by an inherent Canadian cost disadvantage. Instead, it has been limited by the tariffs, both U.S. and Canadian, that have backed Canadian producers into a low-volume domestic market."

A free market with the U.S. would enable Canadian manufacturers to turn to specialized, long-run outputs.

"Thus Canadian producers would typically drop many or most items in their broad range of products, and concentrate on high volume production of selected items in which they enjoy some labor or resource advantages."

NEW OPPORTUNITIES

Arnold F. C. Hean of Burnaby, told the panel that Canada should be paying more attention to the trade potential of the Pacific Ocean countries.

By the year 2000 the population of the U.S., Canada, Japan, Australia and New Zealand will be almost 500 million promising fresh trade opportunities, he said.

Indicating the growth that is expected in these countries, he noted that Japan's average income is expected to rise to the second-highest in the world, from its present 20th ranking.

Calling for full Canadian participation in Pacific rim affairs, he said it will have a profound effect on Canada's second century as Atlantic countries did on the first.

"We must examine our total capabilities relative to Pacific rim present and future needs. We must consider the possibility of abandoning areas of trade in which we cannot meet realistic competition."

ADJUST

"More importantly, we must be prepared to adjust our manufacturing and other processes so as to provide for ourselves a competitive advantage not available to others."

J. H. Warren, deputy minister of trade and commerce, told the panel that because of the wide range of goods and resources which Canada exports "it is difficult to see how we could find markets large enough for all our major exports within a limited and strictly regional trading area."

He said this did not rule out the possibility of Canada entering such an agreement, but "we would still have to search out markets for many of our exports in all parts of the world and sell wherever we can find potential customers for our goods."

Care Firm Formed

A major move toward entering the privately-owned extended nursing care field has been taken by Security Capital Corp., a subsidiary of Federal Savings and Loan Corp.

Security stock opened Tuesday on Toronto Stock Exchange at $104, up $25, on news that a new company, Medcon Nursing Homes will be formed to build nine units by the end of 1970.

Alcan Increases U.K. Capacity

LONDON (CP)—Alcan Aluminum Ltd. of Montreal is taking up a larger share of the British aluminum fabricating industry now that it has government permission to set up a $10 million smelter in Northern England.

A deal announced Friday gives Alcan a 30-per-cent stake in James Booth Aluminum, one of the four major companies in the semi-manufacture market.

Delta Metal, a British group, sold its holdings in Booth for $15.6 million.

Kaiser of America owns the other half-interest in Booth.

Alcan and British Aluminum each has about 30 per cent of the semi-manufacturing business now, and the deal would give Alcan another 10 per cent.

He would pick the location in or near metropolitan cities. Each home would average 150 beds and management of the group would be by doctors having a degree in hospital administration.

Catering will be done by Versafood Services.

The company said it had realized $500,000 from the sale of 250,000 treasury shares, in which such institutional investors as Guardian Growth, Venture Fund and Loomis Sayles International took part for between $3.33 and $5 per share.

Guardian, already heavily invested in the U.S. firm Medcon, centres of America, sees a great future for homes where nursing care can be provided at moderate cost, both taking the pressure off acute care hospital facilities and reducing the cost of medical care to patients.

THE ACCOUNTANT'S ADVICE

Two Bosses Make Chaos

By EDGAR A. DOWNEY, C.A.
(This is a service provided by The Times and the Institute of Chartered Accountants of British Columbia.)

Two-headed monsters are a horror in business. A corporation or department under the control of two bosses inevitably becomes a nightmare for the bosses and the staff.

If there is more than one authority then the eventual result is always a breakdown of control.

Most people are best motivated by a sense of achievement of a job well done, providing the job is worth doing. But, if they are not given clear direction by decisive leadership there will be doubt as to the worth of doing the job.

To be effective, management must be resolute and firm but not arrogant or harsh. A clear chain of command is essential, with property defined authority at each level of responsibility.

COUNTERMANDING

One of the most common causes of dissension arises from a senior manager countermanding the instructions of a subordinate to junior staff. This is certain to destroy the respect for the subordinate manager's authority in the eyes of his subordinates and leaves everybody in a confused position for the future. If any order must be changed the change should be made by the person who gave the first order.

This may seem to be the long way around when the need to make such a change arises, and in an emergency situation it might be necessary to jump a link in the chain of command and put the man who does so must recognize that he has put a "kink" in that chain and it then becomes his responsibility to straighten it again.

When management and control is in the hands of a committee the problems become more difficult. Every member of the committee must respect the resolution of the majority and help to ensure that it is effectively carried out, even though he may not personally agree.

By its very nature, a committee is a multi-headed monster, usually with one principal head as chairman. Its instructions must still be carried out through a chain of command and performed by individual people.

WORK OR QUIT

If a dissenting member cannot accept the committee decision he may destroy the whole organization if he works against it. His only reasonable course is to work for it or to resign.

In a business enterprise this course is usually quite clear because few business managers can tolerate internal opposition for very long. But many societies, clubs, and other non-business organizations are plagued with personal politics among their members. This is one of the reasons why such organizations may take years to accomplish things which a business could do in a month.

Every executive of every rank, whether he be president, junior foreman, or the newest member of a club committee, has a personal responsibility to work with the team for the good of the whole.

Vascon Takeover

Vascon Ltd., which distributes and markets high speed tool and specialty steel, has acquired all outstanding stock of Bell Foundry Co. Ltd. of Winnipeg, the company said Tuesday.

Bell Foundry supplies parts for agricultural and other machinery, and paper mill and logging equipment.

Vascon is controlled by Vascon Metals Corp. of Ladbroke, Pa.

G. H. D. HOBBS

J. F. M. DOUGLAS

Cominco Ltd. announces the appointment of F. E. Burnet as vice-president at Montreal and G. H. D. Hobbs as vice-president at Vancouver, and J. F. M. Douglas as vice-president, corporate services.

Mr. Burnet, in addition to assuming general administrative duties at Cominco's head office, will be responsible for the company's corporate development in all areas except the Pacific Region. He will retain his position as chairman of Cominco's wholly-owned United States subsidiary Cominco American Incorporated.

Mr. Hobbs, in addition to assuming administration of Cominco's activities in the Vancouver area, will be responsible for the company's corporate development in the Pacific Region. Mr. Hobbs retains his position of chairman and chief executive officer of Western Canada Steel Limited and chairman of the board of Pacific Coast Terminals Co. Ltd. Both companies are Cominco subsidiaries.

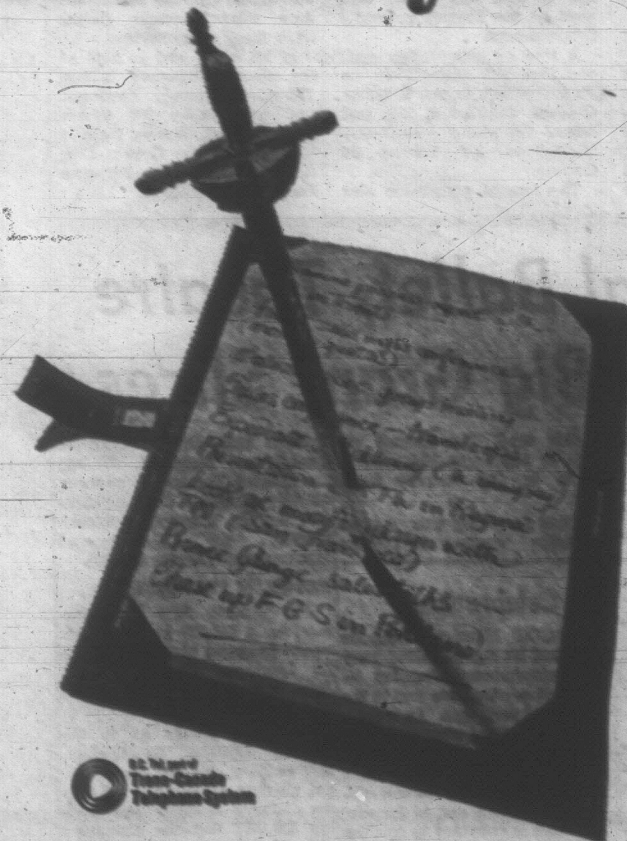

In his new position, Mr. Douglas takes over administrative responsibility for research, personnel, data processing, public relations and advertising.

Aircraft Identity: Sorry, Wrong Number

Aircraft — and the numbers used to identify them — get bigger and bigger, but not yet as big as the Times indicated Tuesday.

Funeral Follows Route Of Pioneer Quebecers

By ELIZABETH FORBES

The fact that I was in Quebec City such a short time ago and that I walked the few blocks from the Legislative Buildings down St. Louis Street to Notre-Dame-Quebec Basilica, made it very easy to visualize the Daniel Johnson funeral procession along the same way last Monday. I thought of the green, white and gold Legislative Assembly Chamber where so many said their farewells during the days before the funeral. And of the black walnut and gold carvings on the doors to that Chamber and the dates 1792 and 1867 traced on two of the central leaves.

The first date marks the beginning of constitutional government and the parliamentary system in Canada and the second the date of Confederation for Quebec Province.

In memory I saw again the main entrance to the Legislative Buildings fronted by its fountain and bronze grouping of an Indian family and an Indian spear-fishing.

I could see the niches along the front of the building where life-size statues of Canada's pioneer greats from Jacques Cartier, Champlain, Frontenac, Wolfe and Montcalm to Lord Elgin and de Salaberry, looked down on the funeral cortege as it moved along the curving driveway to the Grand Allée and the St. Louis Gate.

Grand Allée was once the pathway down which Indians came in earlier days from their settlement at Sillery to sell their furs within the city. The original St. Louis Gate was built in Frontenac's days, one of six constructed for defence. Beyond the present gate, Grand Allée becomes St. Louis Street, one of the oldest thoroughfares in Quebec City.

Moving slowly on this narrow, cobble-stoned street, the procession passed the site of what was once the home of Angélique des Molaises (later the wife of Chevalier Hughes de Pean) one of the chief characters in the story Chien d'Or (The Golden Dog).

It was here that the lovely ladies of the 18th century used to sit on the balcony and admire passing cavaliers. Here, too, was centred for a time the social life of early Quebec. Where the Governor, the Intendant and sometimes Montcalm, spent their evenings.

Farther on there is the site of the surgeon's house where Montcalm died. And a few steps beyond, at the corner of des Jardins Street, the little house with the sloping roof, dating back to 1678. Legend has it that this house was used as the French general's headquarters.

A step or two further and you look left along little du Parloir Street to the Ursuline Convent, founded in 1639 and one of the oldest educational institutions for women in Canada.

The funeral procession also neared Kent House, once home of the Duke of Kent, father of Queen Victoria, and where the surrender of Quebec was signed on Sept. 18, 1759.

Then it turned into the square where the Basilica and the city hall face each other across a monument shaded green and where the English Cathedral and Chateau Frontenac are only nodding distances away.

There's a statue to the memory of Louis Hébert, Quebec's first farmer whose lands were in this vicinity and whose stone house was situated where the city hall now stands.

There is also the bronze monument erected to the memory of Cardinal Taschereau. In his robes of office, this first cardinal of Quebec faces the Basilica and with arms upraised seems to bless it and Laval University just beyond.

The Basilica itself, part of which dates back to 1647, is a place of dignified beauty. Despite the fact that it was partially destroyed during the siege of Quebec and that it burned again in 1922, it holds many treasures.

These include famous paintings (originals and copies) by Van Dyck, Carre and Halle. Also silver vessels dating from the French regime.

In its crypt and in that of the adjacent seminary, Bishop Laval, Frontenac, Vaudreuil and more than 900 others sleep in death. Among them is the hero of the Golden Dog (Chien d'Or) story, Nicholas Jacquin dit Philibert.

National Ballet, Theatre Receive Big Grant Slices

OTTAWA (CP) — The National Theatre School of Canada in Montreal and The National Ballet School in Toronto are the recipients of major Canada Council grants announced Tuesday.

The grants, for operating expenses in the 1968-69 fiscal year, are $225,000 for the theatre school and $100,000 for the ballet school. In 1967-68 the organizations received council operating grants of $180,000 and $80,000 respectively.

Both organizations provide training to candidates from across Canada on the basis of merit.

The grants to the schools are part of $576,583 in assistance to the performing arts announced at this time. The council expects to pay some $6,500,000 in grants in the current fiscal year.

No Celebrations

LAGOS (Reuters)—Nigeria marked its eighth anniversary of independence Tuesday, without celebrations and in the midst of civil war. In a message to federal troops tightening a noose around breakaway Biafra, head of state Maj.-Gen. Yakubu Gowon called for a quick end to the war—which is expected to cost the nation at least $250,000,000 in reconstruction.

Toronto $125,000; the Comedie Canadienne, Montreal, $70,000; the Citadel Theatre, Edmonton, $45,000; Theatre Calgary $30,000; Instant Theatre, Montreal, $20,000; the Montreal International Theatre $15,000.

PROGRAM PLANNING

The Toronto Arts Foundation receives a $15,000 grant for advance program planning for the St. Lawrence Centre for the Arts, due to be in full operation at the end of 1969.

In music, grants go to the Theatre Lyrique du Quebec, Quebec City, $60,000; the Festival Singers of Toronto $37,000; the Calgary Philharmonic Society $20,000; and the Saskatoon Symphony Society $10,000.

The Canadian Music Council receives $12,000 for publishing a report of its 1968 conference and for its 1969 conference on Contemporary Music and Audiences, to be held in Montreal in March.

The Toronto Repertory Ensemble receives $2,585 for a four-concert series of contemporary music. The Ottawa Choral Society receives $2,500 and the Vancouver Bach Choir $2,000.

The council has also set aside $50,000 for its 1968-69 theatre arts development program, to aid in technical training in the fields common to theatre, opera and ballet companies. Under this scheme specific professional arts organizations are allotted funds to train technical apprentices, press officers and potential directors.

Hey, Bartender, Program Me a Drink

BOSTON (AP) — Stephen Krause says his computerized bar won't do away with bartenders—it will just give them more time to talk to the customers.

Krause's computerized electronic dispensing machine has recipes for 1,000 drinks stored in its memory banks. The machine was unveiled Monday in the bar of a Boston hotel.

"I don't want to do away with bartenders or waitresses," Krause said, sipping a machine-made martini. "I just want to make them more efficient."

Krause, president of an electronics firm in Baltimore, Md., says the machine can mix in four seconds any drink it is programmed for.

We fill prescriptions. But saving you money is our business.

After all, when you bring your prescription to a Woolco Pharmacy, prompt and courteous service is just one benefit you receive.

As we said, saving you money is our business.

Last year thousands of Canadians brought their prescriptions to Woolco.

Our success is largely due to our pricing policy on all prescriptions. The policy is simple: we offer the lowest prices that we possibly can on every prescription. These prices are in effect every day of the year.

There are reasons other than just the pharmacy that so many Canadians trust Woolco:

1. Every name brand Health and Beauty Aid item on Woolco's shelves has a low everyday price ticket. We try to undermatch everyone.
2. We run more special sales on Health and Beauty Aid and Drug items per month than any other major competitor.
3. Maybe we should call our Drug and Pharmacy the Savings Department. As we said, we fill prescriptions, but saving you money is our business.

NORM VAN BROCKLIN
... long-term pact

Colorful Norm Accepts Atlanta Grid Challenge

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—Norm Van Brocklin, one of pro football's most colorful characters, Tuesday was given the job of building the hapless Atlanta Falcons into a National Football League contender.

"Van Brocklin has been controversial" Atlanta owner Rankin Smith said in announcing the firing of Norb Hecker as coach and the hiring of Van Brocklin. "But he has one of the finest minds in pro football."

Van Brocklin, 42, has been given a long-term contract and promised a free hand in trading and drafting players, Smith said. Terms of the contract were not disclosed.

The former NFL quarterback and coach of the Minnesota Vikings for six years was still at his home in Medicine Lake, Minn., when the Falcons announced the coaching change.

MEETS COACHES

Van Brocklin arrived in Atlanta at dusk, met with assistant coaches and then held a news conference, where he announced all the assistant coaches had agreed to stay with the Falcons for the rest of the season.

Van Brocklin said he realizes that he faces a challenge with the Falcons, but he added, "We're going to try to win every football game we're in."

He said he probably would stick with the current system followed by the Falcons "because it's much easier for me to change than for 40 players and the coaches to change at this time of the season."

Van Brocklin was beaming at the news conference, where he said, "I am glad to be back in football. I love football."

Smith said he fired Hecker after "an agonizing night" because "the club was not making the kind of progress I had anticipated."

"I was concerned with whether I had given Norm enough opportunity to develop a team," Smith said. "I decided he had enough of an opportunity."

Hecker said he did not plan to stay with the team, although he will continue to draw his salary of an estimated $40,000 a year for the remainder of his contract which runs through 1989. He is a former end with Canadian playing experience with the 1964 Toronto Argonauts.

Betsy Rawls Wins Tourney

FALLBROOK, Calif. (AP) — Betsy Rawls of Spartanburg, S.C., fired a four-under-par 68 to win the eighth annual Mickey Wright Invitational golf tournament — her first victory since 1965.

Good putting was the key as Miss Rawls edged out Kathy Whitworth of Dallas, Tex., by four strokes.

Why All the Panic About School Shifts?

By DON DINGWALL

DUNCAN — Principal Grant Garnett is not a bit dismayed by the shift system imposed at Mount Prevost junior secondary school.

Because of a major reconstruction program, the school started a shift system in September.

Mr. Garnett has found in operation, the system has advantages as well as disadvantages. Even some parents prefer it.

He said Tuesday he likes the flexibility which is allowed in drawing up class timetables.

He said the shift system allows some students to do remedial work at Grade 8 in the morning while doing regular work at the Grade 9 level in the afternoon.

Other students are using the school facilities in off-shift time.

The Grade 8 classes start at 8 a.m. and finish at 12:30. Occupational classes run from 9 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. and the grades 9 and 10 from 12:30 to 5:30 p.m.

Mr. Garnett said the reason for the occupational classes starting at the same hour as all other schools is because Mount Prevost serves the whole district with these classes and must therefore co-ordinate them with the bus schedule.

He said Mount Prevost students are getting their full time allotment in all subjects except physical education.

The school has no physical education facilities at present as the existing gymnasium is involved in the expansion program.

Mr. Garnett said: "I don't think the youngsters are suffering as far as course subjects are concerned. They are working well and attendance is good."

He said it is a distinct advantage having a smaller number of students in the school at any one time during construction work.

The only overlapping is with the occupational and Grade 8 classes in the morning.

Mr. Garnett said the only real problem he has noticed is not having the whole student body in school at one time making it impossible to have assembly.

The principal said: "The students miss the socialization."

Chief reason for the shift system is the shortage of classrooms.

Because of the reconstruction program the school would have been on classroom short to accommodate last year's total enrolment of 447 students.

With the enrolment increased to 506 the school was left short of eight classrooms.

When the building program is complete the school's net gain will be six classrooms, including one finished and one unfinished science laboratory.

The expansion will include a cafeteria which will serve as a training centre for occupation, cooking and food service students.

Mr. Garnett listed the difficulties of the shift system as the necessary earlier rising for Grade 8 students, the spacing of home routine, and the additional load on the school bus system.

He said most schools which have a cafeteria operate a staggered noon hour of some sort.

Mr. Garnett said that to make full use of the school's new library they needed either an extended school day or a shift system.

He said the same was true in regard to making full use of the school's workshops.

He praised the co-operation of his staff and the parents, and said a number of parents have indicated a preference for the shift system.

Mr. Garnett said: "It's been an interesting experiment, and it's hoped to revert to the regular timetable at Christmas."

Some Mount Prevost teachers are working on all three shifts, and most are working two.

But in agreement between the school board and Cowichan District Teachers' Association, no teacher is in the school longer than seven hours in one day.

SILENCERS FOR MILL WORKING THIS MONTH

LADYSMITH—Town council learned Tuesday that special equipment to reduce noise nuisance at Ladysmith Forest Products, Ltd., sawmill is expected to be installed later this month.

In reply to residents' complaints, Mayor Kay Grouhel said she had been assured by mill manager Joseph Frumento that the company has the equipment on order and is awaiting delivery.

Flying Brothers Survive Crackup

PORT ALBERNI—Two Seattle brothers who spent three days without food in a cabin near the lake where their light plane crashed Saturday are in fair condition in hospital today.

A. V. Harmon and his brother

Louis were picked up Tuesday afternoon at Nahmint Lake, 20 miles west of here, by an Air Sea Rescue helicopter, RCMP said.

They left Seattle Saturday morning in the float-equipped plane on a fishing trip and were attempting to land in the lake when a pontoon apparently struck a deadhead.

STAYED IN CABIN

The men climbed free of the sinking plane, swam ashore and found a cabin where they stayed until the helicopter found them.

RCMP were notified the men were missing Monday and a search was begun.

Apart from scratches and bruises the men were unharmed. The hospital said they suffered from hunger and exhaustion.

Memorial Rites Held For Khan Descendant

DUNCAN — A private memorial service was held Monday for Dee Shoolingin, 68, who died Sept. 27.

Mr. Shoolingin, who claimed to be a descendant of the last of the Mongolian Khans, was born in Tientsin, China, and lived in the Far East for many years.

He came to Canada in 1952 after living in the Dominican Republic for several years.

Mr. Shoolingin farmed in the Duncan district before ill-health forced him into semi-retirement and he worked as janitor of the local IWA office.

The memorial service was held at the home of his friend and financial secretary of Dun-

$1.1 Million Lowest Bid For L. Cowichan Road Job

Ten bids were received Tuesday for reconstruction of 12.9 miles of the Lake Cowichan Road with the lowest price quoted at $1,125,195.

The low tender was submitted by Jervis Inlet Gravel Ltd. of Vancouver but highways department officials will have to study all bids before the contract is awarded.

A $57,000 dredging and sewer outfall extension at the department's ferry terminal in Campbell River was the only Vancouver Island project involved in some $10 million worth of work — most of it for rebuilding deteriorated roads — approved by the treasury board, according to an announcement by Premier Bennett.

He also amended his Sept. 23 announcement that the B.C. School Districts Capital Financing Authority was authorized to borrow $8 million for more school construction.

Mr. Bennett said the new figure is $10.1 million. His amendment conforms to an order-in-council on which the Sept. 23 statement was based.

Largest of the treasury board approvals for highway work is a

$1.1 million rebuilding program for the McNeil River-Fraserhorne Lake section of the northern trans-provincial highway near Prince Rupert.

Also scheduled for the north are: paving of arterial Eighth Street in Dawson Creek at a cost of $335,647; frontage road and storm drains in Smithers for $63,000; and replacement of the Lees Bridge on the Chilcotin-Bella Coosa Road for $120,000.

A $250,000 graveling project will be undertaken by the department to make a 35-mile deep trail passable for ordinary cars between Lillooet and D'Arcy, the halfway point to Pemberton on the proposed extensions which ultimately will link Lillooet to Vancouver by road for the first time.

SALMON ARM

A $1,125,000 contract for work on the Sorrento to Salmon Arm section of the Trans-Canada Highway and tender call for an estimated $200,000 road between Robson and Spryngs Creek in the Kootenays also were approved.

Highway department tenders call for an estimated $350,000 project making Vernon's 32nd Street into an arterial highway, reconstruction and paving work.

$1,000 on Princeton Avenue in Peachland, $300,000 for sub-structures for the Willow River and Bowron River bridges in the Prince George area, and a $488,000 improvement of McCulloch Road in Abbotsford also were authorized.

GANGES GREASED PIG RACE ON OCT. 12

Slippery Characters Boost Fund

GANGES — The Centennial Park maintenance committee will stage a greased pig race Saturday Oct. 12 to raise money for the park.

An annual cash budget of $1,000 is required to keep the park in good shape and to pay caretakers' fees, the committee decided at a recent meeting.

Farmer John Stapanik has offered 13 piglets worth $15 each to the committee which has in turn asked community organizations and resort owners to donate the pigs to the committee for contest purposes.

The contest is open to boys and girls aged 10 to 15 years who have obtained a subscribed number of pledged donations from businesses, organizations and individuals.

"The child who catches the piglet and delivers it to the judge in each race will be entitled to keep it or dispose of it as he or she wishes," a committee member said.

A total of 12 children are expected to compete in the contest on the Ganges school grounds.

Czech Refugees Pour In For New Life in Canada

By KEN CLARK

OTTAWA (CP) — The steady flow of Czechoslovak refugees to Canada will likely push the final total well above early estimates, officials say.

Government officials thought an influx sponsored by the Canadian government, have at least 1,000 to 2,000 might choose Canada as a new homeland because of the Russian occupation, Aug. 20.

But about 70, most of them admission and Vancouver. The other, with 122 aboard, will land at Montreal and Toronto.

On Oct. 6, another flight arrives in Toronto. On Oct. 3, one flies to Winnipeg, Edmonton and Vancouver. Flights are also tentatively booked for Oct. 13—Montreal and Toronto—and Oct. 15—Toronto and other eastern points.

Besides the charters paid for by the Canadian government, there is a trickle of refugees entering on regular commercial flights. There are usually at least one or two aboard each arriving flight from central Europe.

Canadian officials expect at least 2,000 immigrants in Canada by the end of October, and there is no sign the flow is abating.

It is anybody's guess as to how high the total will go.

Most of the 100,000 or so Czechoslovaks on holiday when the Russians came are still hiding their time, waiting to decide whether to return home or go to Canada or some place else.

Some are going to the United States and Australia.

Officials say the publicity surrounding the exodus has led to many job offers for the new arrivals. Most of them are highly qualified.

A check of the manifests of a couple of the early planeloads showed the adult male immigrants to be doctors, dentists, scientists, technicians, university students, members of the arts and so on. Sometimes the wives are also professionally qualified. There were no laborers on board in the planes checked.

But over Czechoslovakia, the Communist states could not stand by "in the name of abstractly understood sovereignty" when they saw their ally threatened by counter-revolution, the paper says.

Just how seriously the doctrine should be taken is not quite certain. If it was to be followed to its logical conclusion the Soviet Union should long ago have intervened in China, as well as Albania and Yugoslavia.

But its existence probably will make the task of Communist parties in the non-Communist world, many of which have proclaimed their aim of winning power through the ballot box, much more difficult.

The French party, for example, has suggested that it might work within a multi-party system if it won power and might even accept being voted out of office. But under the new Kremlin teaching other Communist countries would have the right to prevent the ousting of a Communist government.

Kremlin Promotes Right to Invade

By ROBERT EVANS

MOSCOW (Reuters) — The Kremlin is promoting a new doctrine which gives it the right to intervene in any Communist country when it feels Soviet-style communism might be in danger.

The doctrine is clearly intended to justify in retrospect the Soviet-led Warsaw pact invasion of Czechoslovakia, but its proponents are emphasizing that it has universal application.

As outlined in the Communist party newspaper Pravda, the doctrine apparently reserves for the Kremlin the right to decide when "deviations from Marxism-Leninism" are taking place and when to intervene.

It also specifically excludes the possibility that any country which has a Communist government could revert to "bourgeois" or even "reactionary" rule without Soviet intervention.

The need for the new doctrine was brought about by the failure of any Czechoslovak leader to come forward after the Warsaw pact invasion and declare that he joined the troops in.

Originally the Russians announced that "leaders of the Czechoslovak party and government" had asked them to come, but this legal justification now has been dropped.

Even a "white book" giving the Soviet version of events before and after the invasion and published here last week did not mention the original claim that the Warsaw pact forces were invited.

Having discarded the original excuse, the Soviet Union apparently felt compelled to seek justification for its move in Marxist-Leninist theory, creating the new doctrine in the process.

It says Communist countries have no right to "abstract sovereignty" and must always trim their policies to suit the interests of the world Communist movement.

Although the doctrine permits Communists in each country to apply Marxism-Leninism in a manner fitting to local conditions, it says that if they break away from orthodox communism and create a threat to the security of their allies, the other countries have a right to move in to restore order.

Pravda indicates clearly that the doctrine of intervention applies only to Communist countries. "The Socialist countries respect the democratic norms of international law," it says.

COULDN'T STAND BY

But over Czechoslovakia, the Communist states could not stand by "in the name of abstractly understood sovereignty" when they saw their ally threatened by counter-revolution, the paper says.

Just how seriously the doctrine should be taken is not quite certain. If it was to be followed to its logical conclusion the Soviet Union should long ago have intervened in China, as well as Albania and Yugoslavia.

But its existence probably will make the task of Communist parties in the non-Communist world, many of which have proclaimed their aim of winning power through the ballot box, much more difficult.

The French party, for example, has suggested that it might work within a multi-party system if it won power and might even accept being voted out of office. But under the new Kremlin teaching other Communist countries would have the right to prevent the ousting of a Communist government.

Ont. Farmers Continue Corn Protest

WOODSTOCK, Ont. (CP) — Southwestern Ontario corn growers resumed their tractor drive to Ottawa Tuesday to back demands that the government change corn-price policies and block the export of United States corn.

The farmers, members of the Ontario Farmers' Union in nine area counties, decided during the weekend to wait until Monday for back-to-back word from Ottawa. No word came.

Attention Wives! — Strike Just Sends Husband on Fishing Trip

STOCKTON, CALIF. (AP) — Unwashed dishes and clothes piled up for the third day Tuesday while Mrs. Tom Wagner picketed for "better working conditions in the home."

Signs in the front yard proclaimed: "Unfair to wife" and "On strike."

"Tom" works 40 hours a week for pay, I work 120 for nothing," explained Sandra Wagner, 25. "Then he comes home and asks, 'What have you been doing all day?'"

She said she doesn't have any minimum demands: "I just want Tom to sit down and negotiate."

She cooks for her three children, 6, 7, and 15 months, and washes clothes for the youngest. That's all her housework.

"When it gets so I can't stand it in the house I just have to go outside and do some picketing," she said.

HUSBAND RAN OUT

When her husband saw the signs on the lawn Monday, he laughed and walked around a bit, but then his good humor ran out and he went fishing.

Wagner told reporters later: "This is her game. She started it. She can finish it. I won't negotiate."

"At first I thought it was kind of funny. But now it's not funny—a little bit farther than the neighbors. After a while it is embarrassing. I guess."

Wagner, a layout designer for a sign company, expects some reaction from his male friends.

Some of these guys are going to laugh—but if their wives do it, they'll find out. The best way to cope with a woman is to ignore her. Am I right?"

Arthur Mayse

A reader who correctly assumes that our news is on the level has called my attention to a three-line squib tucked into last Friday's paper. It is headed "Giant Among Birds", and its poker-faced type informs—the reader thus:

"The mature bald eagle may be 10 feet across and weigh one ton."

Such a King Kong among birds would constitute a shocking peril to mankind, and I for one would dive into the nearest thickets at the merest suspicion that it was on the hunt. You will, however, be relieved to learn that in actual fact, the mature bald eagle falls far short of these proportions.

To set the record straight, I called Dr. Cliff Carl, director of our spanking new Provincial Museum. Dr. Carl compared notes with artist-biologist Frank Beebe, and they came up with the following specifications:

The fully-grown bald eagle has a wing span of six and a half to eight feet, and its weight according to sex, ranges from seven pounds for the male to 12 for his mate.

"The male," said Dr. Carl cheerfully, "is just a little squint."

He then went on to tell me that the "rain-curtains" at either end of the disputed Nootka whaling scene, far from over-humidifying the museum atmosphere, are serving a very useful purpose.

The building lacks a humidifying system, but by manipulating the flow of water down the rain-curtain tubes, museum experts have found that they can supply the required degree of moisture to the air.

A makeshift, certainly, but a useful one.

Going back to where we started, the item that so madly misinformed the eagle is what we call a filler. I doubt there's a newspaper composing room in the land that doesn't have a tray or two of these well-named capsules within reach.

When the clever insertion of metal strips called "leads" won't snug a story into the column space allotted to it, the printer may grab a filler of the correct length from his store of unrelated facts.

"The rough skin of the shark," it may read, "was widely used as a smoothing agent before the invention of sandpaper."

Since we usually have current news items in all sizes jostling for precious space, fillers are used only once in a while moon, and then on a way-back page. They aren't staff-written; in fact I haven't the least idea who produces them. Little old man in square-cut glasses, I expect, with a vast stock of reference works beside him, and a tricky sense of humor.

Camp Protest sits on well-manufactured turf by University of Victoria's ring road. Its tents eloquent of a problem that our growing university has not yet faced up to.

This is the dearth of low-rental housing in Victoria for the boarding student whose funds will not stretch to meet standard rates.

There are still a few spots available for the single student who can pay $30 a month for room and board, and calls from would-be renters are still being received at the campus placement office.

But the young person who faces a university year with an inadequate stake, and the young marrieds whose finances are strictly limited, are caught in a cruel bind. This year, sharp curtailment of federal student loans has made their situation even worse.

The answer, I think, should come from the university itself, in the shape of low-rental basic housing on a campus which is plentifully large enough to accommodate it.

This situation grows more vexing year by year. It will continue to do so until the university administration quits looking to the community for aid with its distress cases.

I'm aware that campus housing is rarely pretty... but is that really the heart of the matter?

YUMMY YUMMY says the bunny as he's fed celery by squirrely girls who visited Beacon Hill Park today to advertise a new type of peanut butter. "Yummy, yummy" said male passers-by as Times photographer Irving Strickland posed Phyllis Binnie, left, and Carolyn McDermott. The Vancouver girls will visit 14 cities. They will high-tail it out of here Thursday.

'Something for Servicemen Always Knocked' by Chamber

Servicemen deserve a break in the price of consumer goods and to heck with the Chamber of Commerce.

This was the reaction today from a Belmont Park housewife who favors service-run retail stores—featuring lower prices—on armed forces bases.

"It's something for the servicemen, they've got to knock it," she said.

Greater Victoria Chamber of Commerce at its annual meeting last week reiterated concern that the defence department outlets known as Canex will be unfair competition to the public business community.

Housewives in the DND housing project at Colwood say the chamber is taking a characteristic narrow view.

They acknowledge Canadian Forces Exchange System is meant primarily for personnel serving in areas with inadequate retail facilities.

But they say service people should get some consideration for the inconvenience of service life.

"People in the service deserve something like this," a wife said. "We are pushed from pillar to post and some don't have the opportunity of getting to know the local stores in the short time they are here."

It was pointed out that servicemen pay income taxes like everyone else; they are frequently transferred from one part of the country to another, which is hard on personal and household effects; they don't have the same opportunity to possess a place of their own.

FOOD, TOO

Another service wife said she would favor the Canex system for buying household appliances, clothing, radios, TVs, cameras, toys, fishing gear and gifts.

It would be a "good thing" if it included food as well, she said.

"In Halifax I have known the grocers to raise their prices when the services were granted a pay increase," she said.

"The existing base store outlet, which has operated about five years, has a limited range of consumer items, but will order those not carried in stock."

"I imagine there are a lot of people who take advantage of it. They are foolish if they don't," the woman said.

Another said she would not use it for regular purchases, but rather for special items like Christmas buying.

Base controller Cmdr. J. H. M. Cocks said it is not intended that Canex compete unfairly with the community.

Price tags are kept slightly below the going rates. And Canex cannot compete with downtown "sales," he said.

Mr. Holmes noted in his report that a government decision has not been made on the scope of Canex. But he added "there is every indication that its retailing operation will go into general merchandising including electrical appliances, TV sets, garden tools and machinery, household furnishings, service stations and new car purchases through the Service Auto Club."

And if the service is extended to DND civilian personnel and their families, Canex could jeopardize the spending power represented locally by an estimated $42 million annual payroll, he said.

The Canadian Chamber of Commerce is expected to meet at a major issue at its meeting this week in Calgary.

The list of persons who benefit under the scheme is provided by the Saanich welfare office. Both the persons and the locations of the houses are kept confidential.

Welfare administrator Mrs. Betsy Marshall says priority is given to those in most need of the accommodation.

"We are limiting them to welfare families and we still have many waiting in a desperate situation," she said.

Saanich housing commissioner Roy Broughton, a member of the three-government agency handling the scheme, said rents match the shelter component of social assistance benefit.

A mother with two children, for example, would have a shelter component of $80 a month, and this becomes the low-income house.

A welfare people are paying $30, $30 and $30 (for private accommodation) but in our low-rental scheme they can get better accommodation for whatever is the size of their shelter component," he said.

Saanich program, which is financed by the federal and provincial governments, was initiated two years ago by Ald. Edith Gunning, then chairman of the health and welfare committee, and former welfare administrator Frank Heston.

They said that some Saanich residents live in semi-slum conditions in houses which should be torn down. As much as half the welfare allowance was being spent on rent and heating.

Dam Proposed To Hold Back Polluted Water

Tough Sledding For Low-Income Housing Plan

The increasing shortage of low-priced houses plus a lack of sewerage in Saanich has cut deeply into a $700,000-50-home low income project.

In eight months, only 11 of the planned 50 houses located in different areas have been acquired and rented to families on welfare.

"The price of houses went up and they are harder to obtain than we anticipated," said Chris Dowling, manager of Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation which is handling the acquisitions.

"There are just not that many available in Saanich because they have got to be on sewer."

To fit into the $700,000 approved by the federal and provincial governments, the price for each house must be approximately $14,000.

Asked when all 50 houses might be acquired under the program, Mr. Dowling said "I really don't know. It may be some time at the rate we are going."

The low-income housing scheme is unique in British Columbia because it disperses those who need such accommodation in different areas, rather than grouping them together in one project.

The list of persons who benefit under the scheme is provided by the Saanich welfare office. Both the persons and the locations of the houses are kept confidential.

Welfare administrator Mrs. Betsy Marshall says priority is given to those in most need of the accommodation.

'Major Alternative' In Study of Gorge

By JIM HUME

A dam across the Gorge to hold back polluted water entering from Victoria's Inner Harbor could be the first major step towards restoration of the famed waterway.

Design engineer Frank Neate, a member of a team at present preparing a report on the future of the Gorge and Portage Inlet waters for Saanich Municipality, said Tuesday the building of a dam is one of the major alternatives that could be taken to eliminate pollution.

He was commenting on a brief submitted to the Victoria public works committee Tuesday morning by John Bullivant, 1141 Harwood Street.

Mr. Bullivant was asking Victoria City council to consider the possibility of a dam to prevent the heavily polluted waters of the Inner Harbor from flowing into the Gorge on a rising tide.

The committee referred the brief to Mr. Neate's Saanich committee studying the problem.

"We are aware of Mr. Bullivant's thoughts on the problem," Mr. Neate said.

The general idea of a dam is one we have had under consideration for some time and will be one of the major alternatives we intend to offer."

Mr. Neate did not reveal what the other "major alternatives" would be when his committee presents its report towards the end of this year. But he did state that the, often proposed canal linking Portage Inlet with Esquimalt Harbor would not be among them.

"The canal idea is as dead as a door nail as far as I am concerned," Mr. Neate said.

"Unless I am instructed otherwise by council I do not intend to waste any more time even considering the proposal."

By holding back the tide we would also be holding back one of the major sources of pollution. The fresh water flowing into the Gorge and Portage Inlet would, over the course of roughly a year, give us a fresh water body with pollution considerably reduced."

Mr. Neate is attached to the Saanich municipal engineering staff and is engaged on special projects as opposed to routine administration.

The team studying the problem of the Gorge and Portage Inlet is comprised of engineers, fish and wildlife experts and scientists.

NEVER RELEASED

In his brief to Victoria council Mr. Bullivant calls for a dam to rise two feet above maximum high tide level "to plug the Gorge and prevent polluted water from backing up with every rising tide."

Mr. Bullivant notes that because of the nature of the inland waterway the already polluted waters of the Gorge are never really released.

"A large proportion of the volume of water in this waterway is never, never carried out before the tide reverses and starts to flow the water back into the waterway again thus increasing the amount of pollution," his brief states.

Mr. Neate said his committee's final report on the Gorge should be ready for presentation to council towards the end of November or by mid-December.

Let George Do It.

Such was the working slogan of George Cox when he operated his own auto body building workshop at the corner of Vancouver and View Streets.

His slogan, posted outside the workshop, was backed by fine craftsmanship, friends said today.

Mr. Cox died in St. Joseph's Hospital Tuesday at the age of 83.

Requiem Mass will be celebrated in St. Andrew's Roman Catholic Cathedral Friday at 10 a.m. and followed by interment in Hatley Memorial Gardens.

HAND TOOLS

Born in Sedgwick, England, Mr. Cox was apprenticed as a coach builder at Wolverhampton, when this work was arduously performed with hand tools.

With the advent of the motor car, he turned to auto body building and worked with the Sunbeam auto manufacturing company.

Soon after he came to Victoria in 1932, Mr. Cox opened his "Let George Do It" shop at Vancouver and View. Some years later he built a modern shop on Pandora Avenue and operated it successfully until his retirement 16 years ago.

Mr. Cox is survived by the widow, Mary, at their residence, 1254 Fort Street; a son, John S. (Jack); a daughter, Mrs. J. E. (Evelyn) Phillips; nine grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren, all of Victoria.

Prayers will be offered in McCall Brothers Chapel Thursday at 8 p.m.

The engineer added that even if the $2 million required to build the canal, lock gates and controls, were available the "flushing" action claimed by some proponents of the scheme, would not take place.

"I have been claimed that by introducing the waters of Esquimalt Harbor into the Gorge we would establish a flushing action which would clean the Gorge and Portage Inlet," Mr. Neate said.

"Unfortunately that is not true. There would be a flushing action, but not of sufficient strength in the water flow to move the sediments we need to move if we are to have a relatively pure body of water."

"And I think we should remember that the waters of Esquimalt Harbor are not exactly the cleanest in the world. Because of these things, and because of the tremendous cost, we have dismissed the canal proposal entirely."

CONTROL DEPTH

What would a dam across the Gorge achieve?

"Basically it would give us a controlled water depth of around eight feet," Mr. Neate said.

"At present on a low or even medium low tide most of the Gorge and Portage Inlet is covered by only very shallow water—in fact much of it isn't covered at all."

"By holding back the tide we would also be holding back one of the major sources of pollution. The fresh water flowing into the Gorge and Portage Inlet would, over the course of roughly a year, give us a fresh water body with pollution considerably reduced."

Hairpiece Can't Fool All the People

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am a young man of 23. If you can call 23 "young," I have plenty of hair around my ears, and also in the back, but I am very thin on top. O. K. I'll dye it. I'm bald!

I recently bought a very natural-looking hairpiece, and, if I say so myself, it improves my looks 100 per cent. I get along fine at dinner parties and shows, but what do I do when I'm invited to go swimming or boating with some of my new friends who don't know I wear a rug? And how about when I'm making out with a girl and she wants to run her fingers through my hair?

PHONY
DEAR PHONY: You can fool some of the people some of the time, but they're usually the wrong people, so don't try to fool anybody. Tell your new friends you've got store-bought locks, and carry on accordingly.

Sugar and Spice Not Always Nice

By PENNY SAVER

The old song tells us that little girls are made of sugar and spice. I remember having strong doubts about the wisdom of this statement, especially when my own daughters were in the get-into-everything stage, the mud-pies and becom-flower tea period, not to mention the tons-of-unflattering-makeup era. Now they have both reached an age where they can sustain a moderately adult view of the world, sometimes for a whole week, and my own thoughts on the sugar and spice theory have mellowed somewhat. Perhaps little girls are made of sugar and spice after all, and it just takes them several years to discover the fact.

My belief in the sugar-and-spice theory was reinforced when I saw a thoroughly "all things nice" dress for girl-type toddlers. Any girl who wears this dress can't be bad. It is made of velvet with rows and rows of snowy white lace and costs $6.50. The velvet yoke and gathered skirt come in red or blue. The crisp white collar is edged with lace. The short sleeves are tiers of lace. Tiers of lace peek out from between the scalloped edge of the velvet skirt, giving the effect of an overshirt with a fancy petticoat. This dress is available in sizes up to 24 months. Later, velvet and the "frilly look" are very chic this year, and with dresses like this one available a lot could be more fashionable than her mother.

Set Combines Fluff and Flowers

Another outfit that would give a girl that "sugar and spice" look even if she had a snake hidden behind her back is a slacks set with a fluffy white pile top. The slacks are available in green or orange. The collar on the top matches the shade of the slacks. The top features long sleeves and buttons down the back. Embroidered flowers of yellow, orange and green march across the bottom hem, contrasting the white pile in both color and texture. Why, I wonder, don't they make such attractive outfits for big girls as well? In any case, this set fits toddlers up to 24 months and is $6.95.

It would be unfair if I stuck to sugar and spice clothes and ignored the "wise and snazzy" contingent. There are many dashing outfits that are quite manly enough for any boy. For example there is a stretchy slacks set (very comfortable) in two shades of blue or in deep green and gold. Straps (complete with brass buckles and grommets) are built right into the clip-on top which also features a full turtle neckline. The sleeves are long. This $7.95 outfit is available in sizes up to 24 months.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Are you jogging your way to health, or running toward health? Or do you stir up your old education with dancing, tennis, golf, badminton, brisk walking or special exercises? Even a hard game of ping-pong is a help. It is becoming startlingly apparent that more folks rust out than wear out, that more die because of a sedentary life than because of over-exercise.

Naturally, individuals vary greatly in their capacity for physical activity and must, therefore, use good judgment. It is essential to have a check up first and then to build up gradually, both the amount and strenuousness of exercise.

Exercise stirs up circulation, causes us to breathe more deeply and increases our oxygen intake. It tones muscles and causes all of the systems and organs of the body to function more efficiently. It relieves tension. It speeds up the removal of body waste products.

Exercise is an aid in reducing. It is thought to be a factor in preventing hardening of the arteries, and strokes, heart attacks, high blood cholesterol and thinning of the bones. Regular exercise increases your chances of recovering from a heart attack if you have one. There is no doubt that it will keep you looking and feeling younger longer!

Today I have an exercise which is a good muscle toner and may be more enjoyable, since you must do it with someone. Sit on the floor facing one another, legs separated and soles of your feet touching your partner's feet. Take your partner's hands.

One partner leans back, pulling the other toward her. Return to upright position. Now the other partner leans back, pulling her partner toward her. Continue slowly. This is more strenuous than it looks.

Vietnam Defeat a Fact Says Speaker

By PAT DUFOR

According to Mrs. C. R. Macpherson, past national president of the Voice of Women, Americans are the only people who don't know they've been defeated in Vietnam.

Here from Toronto on a speaking tour, Mrs. Macpherson made the statement when she spoke at a public meeting in the Provincial Museum Tuesday evening. She based her assumptions on experiences gained when she visited North Vietnam for two weeks in late May.

Mrs. Macpherson told her audience she had been assured that when the Americans pull out of South Vietnam there would be no blood baths or reprisals. "The Vietnamese have a history of being tolerant toward their former enemies."

SUSPICIONS OF US

She added that a United Nations settlement was out of the question at this time. "Unless the UN demonstrates that it is a mere neutral from, they (North Vietnam) are not going to accept it. They are intensely suspicious of the UN because of its domination by the United States."

In an interview, Mrs. Macpherson reiterated the Voice of Women's demand that Canada stop the shipment of arms to the United States. She offered two solutions when asked how the loss of revenue from such action would be counteracted.

"Canada could increase her production and exporting of copper. Now that such countries as Rhodesia and Zambia aren't competing in world markets, Canada can take up the slack."

SOULTE HOUSING

She also felt that national concentration on solving the housing shortage could be another solution.

Could Canada play an effective role as a participant in observer or peacekeeping commissions? Mrs. Macpherson didn't think so. "I met the Indian commissioner when I was there. It seemed to me that all they could do was point boats in the harbor."

In spite of obvious bomb damage, Mrs. Macpherson reported Hanoi as "a busy bustling city with individual air-raid shelters lining the streets, made out of sewer pipe, each with a concrete top. In addition, many buildings were equipped with communal shelters."

Mrs. Macpherson took exception to pictures released that showed starving Vietnamese children. "We saw no poorly-fed children," Mrs. Macpherson made the tour with another Canadian, Mrs. M. Murray of Port Arthur, Ont., and an Englishwoman, Mrs. Betty Vaughan.

She said the North Vietnamese had solved their agricultural problems with the aid of village co-operatives, irrigation and the sowing of two or three rice crops a year.

She'd also been convinced by her visit that the North Vietnamese had solved the education problem. "When they were occupied by the French there was 50 per cent literacy. Now, there is none. There is a 10-year program which provides education from the age of seven to 17. Only 50 per cent of the university students have to pay. In 1965 there were 35,000 university students and 2,500 professors. Now there are 72,000 and 5,500 professors."

According to Mrs. Macpherson there is no problem of student unrest either. They're too busy.

NO TIME LEFT

"I visited the Hanoi Medical University, where the students have built 400 buildings. There are 2,000 enrolled in the first year of the six-year course. They study from 5 a.m. to noon, work in the fields in the afternoon, and are on call for military defence when the city is attacked by planes. In addition, they build shelters, carry out rifle practice, get an education program in public health and take part in physical education programs. At night, they put on musical shows."

She described their sleeping quarters as "mattress beds, four to a building" and wondered how they found time to use them.

Mrs. Macpherson said that the North Vietnamese had asked for musical instruments, medical and surgical supplies, and money.

She said that they were mainly interested in receiving money "because they can get all the war supplies they want from Saigon, Hong Kong, or almost anywhere."

Mrs. C. R. Macpherson, currently on a speaking tour of Canada, visits Victoria to tell of her recent visit to North Vietnam.

Expert Gives Tips On Picture Framing

By KARIN MOSER

MONTREAL (CP) — If you want to frame a bat — the nocturnal, mouse-like kind — take it to Jacque.

Jacque, who graduated from l'Ecole des Beaux Arts in Montreal, has been an expert on picture framing, "or framing anything else for that matter," for the last 15 years.

"Really, I've framed some of the oddest things — not to mention some, shall we say, most suggestive subjects."

A twinkle comes to her eye as she recalls the young bachelor who had managed to lay his hands on some erotica from Pompeii, Italy.

"It was really amusing because he made the frame a more-conservative picture on one side and then create a frame for his controversial work of art on the reverse side. He had a bachelor apartment and would turn the paintings to whichever side was best suited to the company he was entertaining."

On a more sober note, though, the expert-in-private life Mrs. A. Kaufmann — has some timely tips to offer anyone interested in collecting and framing oils, prints, lithos, watercolors or other forms of art.

SHUN GLASS FOR OILS

Never frame an oil painting under glass even if you have seen it done in a museum.

"Museums sometimes do frame oils under glass to protect and preserve them, but the process is done in an expert manner and ensures that no humidity can form within the glass that might cause the paint to peel from the picture."

Never allow a frame to detract from the subject.

"The frame should be an extension of the picture itself, but it should be subtle, never overbearing in elaborate design and never make someone say at first glance 'Oh what a lovely frame.'"

Always look to a reputable restorer for any work you may want done to a painting. "The museum is usually your best bet for a good recommendation as it is in constant touch with expert restorers. The one I use is a Polish man who used to look after the Polish art treasures here."

Never frame a painting to suit a particular room.

"So many clients come into the shop and ask for a frame for the bedroom or the living room. And I keep telling them, frame the picture for itself and you'll be able to hang it anywhere in the home or office."

DON'T HURRY JOB

Jacque concedes that at times a print or graphic to be hung in an office might be framed more sedately, depending on the personality of the client.

"You really have to be a bit of a psychologist and size up your client's personality to match what he or she may like in a total effect."

"I tell my clients never to bring anything in to be framed unless they have plenty of time to discuss the matter. You can't rush through framing. It's extremely creative work and often takes much thought and deliberation."

Jacque, whose customers come to her from many parts of Canada and even New York, says that if a person has enough money and has invested in one of the original old masters, it is well worth the time and effort to have a period frame of that particular era copied at a cost of several hundred dollars.

"But in many cases, just because someone has spent $1,000 on a painting does not mean they must spend huge sums on frames. A simple frame is often most effective."

Since there are many excellent prints on the market, she advises people with a limited budget to invest in a good print rather than in a poor original.

"Remember that prints are reproductions of the great masters — and can't be nearly as bad as some of the oils which are around today."

THIS IS A BALL GOWN?

Mr. Victor Wilson threw up his hands in disbelief when his wife gave him a preview of the jewel-encrusted creation she intends to wear at the Royal Jubilee Hospital's annual ball. The event, sponsored by the Alumnae Association of the Royal Jubilee Hospital's School of Nursing, will take place this coming Friday at the Empress Hotel.

OF PERSONAL INTEREST

Pre-Wedding Events

Mrs. Llewellyn Williams was honored at several parties prior to her recent wedding.

Miss Maureen Campbell gave a shower in her Ford Bay Road home. Guests included the bride's co-workers at the Bank of Montreal's main branch. Cossages were presented to the bride and the principals' mothers, Mrs. James Waller and Mrs. Florence Aspinwall.

Twenty-three guests attended a shower given by the bride's aunt, the Misses Dorothy and Vera Waller of Service Street.

The mothers of honor, Mrs. D. G. Williams, and Mrs. H. Dule, entertained their sister-in-law in the former's Wilbur Road home. The party took the form of a grocery shower.

Bridesmaid Miss Colton Blackwell gave a linen shower in her Graham Street home. Linen cossages were presented. Mr. and Mrs. James Waller gave a post-rehearsal buffet luncheon in their Vista Crescent home.

HONORED AT PARTIES

A round of showers has been held to honor recent brides. Mrs. Brent Adams, fellow office workers from Yarrow's Limited were among the guests at a shower co-hosted by Mrs. John Paul and Miss Julia Louisa at the Pauls' Michigan Street home. Mrs. Adams and her mother, Mrs. A. Ferguson, received cossage cossages.

Yellow and bronze chrysanthemums on cossage were presented to the honor guest and her mother at a surprise shower held by Mrs. A. M. Bell, Mrs. G. Bellagente and Mrs. C. Baker at the Avebury Avenue home of Mrs. Bell.

A picnic basket held the gifts at a shower held by Mrs. E. Mason and Mrs. A. Regesse at the Highrock Place home of the former. Cossages were presented to the honor guest, her mother, and the grandmother of the groom, Mrs. F. Hill.

Miss Carol Ogden and Mrs. Earl Anthony entertained at a linen shower at the home of the former. Cossages were presented to the honor guest and her mother.

CHURCHES OPPOSING LOTTERY LEGISLATION

TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian Council of Churches Tuesday released a brief opposing the federal government's proposed legislation of lotteries which was presented September 9 to Prime Minister Trudeau and Justice Minister Turner.

Terming lotteries unfair, ineffective and irresponsible, the council says the government "cannot outlaw gambling completely by legislation but it has no right to be in the business of promoting it, either directly or by implication."

'Strangler' Seeks To Protect His Name

BOSTON (AP)—Albert Century Fox and his brother, Desha Fox, who says he is the Boston Strangler, has asked the courts to halt the showing of a film based on the exploits of the strangler.

Desha's lawyer, Thomas J. Tray, said the film involves his client's personal and private rights and its showing would prejudice any future trial Desha might have.

The film, The Boston Strangler, was made by 20th Century Fox and is to be released later this month.

Desha, 36, says he was responsible for the deaths of 13 women in eastern Massachusetts between 1962 and 1964.

He is serving a life term in prison for assaults on four women. The assaults were not connected with the stranglings.

The petition was filed Monday in Suffolk Superior Court. A hearing is scheduled Wednesday.

He Starts 15 Minutes Late, But Can He Play!

By BERYL FROEDMAN

Battles raged and youthful appeals went unheeded in some of Victoria's one-television homes recently when Vladimir Horowitz' television debut replaced The Smothers Brothers. Zorba the Greek, Bachelor Father and Bonanza took second place to the unique appearance of this legendary pianist as far as most music lovers were concerned.

A full-length article in TV Guide, describing the particular case that had been taken to ensure that the television should not disturb the nervous maestro added a sense of fearful expectancy to the audience both in the hall and at home.

When, despite the shoring and carpeting of the stage and the bedroom-clopper technicians, a slight sound twice momentarily disturbed the pianist, viewers held their breath, afraid of an eruption.

Horowitz only glanced questioning toward the camera and then turned his full attention back to the keyboard and everyone relaxed.

Horowitz' dramatic decision to leave the concert stage in 1953 and the fact that despite appeals and signed petitions from the public he never returned until 1965, has given him a name for eccentricity which he hardly deserves.

DISLIKED TRAINS

He has always limited his appearances to 35 a year so that he need not get too tired. He dislikes trains and hates to fly so that he will not travel far. He will only play in the afternoon for he gets nervous if he has to wait all day and he finds a dressed-up evening audience more tense than the casual afternoon one.

He always starts concerts 15 minutes late and though he likes to be well paid he will not be bought to play works he does not like, and will not appear when he feels that such an appearance will lower his reputation.

These idiosyncrasies, all have practical reasons behind them and are rather the result of a genius than eccentricities.

The most puzzling of all his activities to many people is that, at the height of his fame and success he decided to withdraw from public for such a long time. This withdrawal can be reasonably explained too.

HEctic TIME

At 18 he graduated from his conservatory and his parents who had reared him like a housewife plant, planned that he should continue to study for 10 years before approaching the concert stage.

Almost overnight, revolutionary conditions in Russia made it necessary for him to earn food for his family and so, unprepared for such a life he plunged into a hectic whirl of concert work.

Even at 18 he was technically so proficient that by his 20th year he had won sufficient fame to make his debut in Carnegie Hall.

On that historic occasion when he raced Sir Thomas Beecham through the Tchaikovsky 2 and arrived at the winning chord four bars ahead of the orchestra, he established a reputation for brilliant impetuosity which made him into a sort of superman of the piano.

Five years later, in 1933, he married Toscanini's daughter Wanda, and fame and fortune were his.

NEEDED PEACE

By 1932 he felt that he had been before the public and the critics for long enough, with no time to think and learn.

Disatisfied with some of his performances and afraid that the critics were right in judging him heartless and mechanical in his brilliance, he longed for peace to think, read, practice, reassess his ideas, learn some modern works and study more of the classics—so he retired.

After a two-year break he went on recording but after a few years he began to feel a need for something other than a dry studio and recording equipment. He began to give private concerts for his family and friends in a locked Carnegie Hall.

The newspapers heard of a young man from the New York Times is reported to have made the Maestro decide to return to the public which had been begging him to return for twelve long years.

WAVED TO STUDENTS

Commenting on the world of difference between live and recorded performances the reporter pointed out that a whole generation of young people had grown up since 1933 and they had only heard Vladimir in recordings.

This story may be apocryphal but when Horowitz finally returned in 1965 he made a particular point of smiling at and waving to the students who thronged the upper galleries.

Having deprived himself of public applause for so long Horowitz felt ready to face cheering audiences. Aware that his rare appearances have given unusual, hysterical expectancy to his audience.

Once he came to America he never returned to Russia and Carnegie Hall has become a second home to him. It was there that he made his impetuous debut in 1928, there that he played his Silver Anniversary Recital before he retired in 1933.

In that hall too he realized that he was ready to return to more frequent appearances.

MORE RELAXED

His rest has cured him of the nervous fidgeting of earlier performances and allowed him to bring more mature interpretations to the works he plays.

Once he came to America he never returned to Russia and Carnegie Hall has become a second home to him. It was there that he made his impetuous debut in 1928, there that he played his Silver Anniversary Recital before he retired in 1933.

In that hall too he realized that he was ready to return to more frequent appearances.

a clamoring public and there that his first reappearance in 1965 started a new life of public appearances.

Last Sunday's television appearance, another first, was naturally telecast in Carnegie Hall too.

Next Tuesday is his 66th birthday and now that he has taken the opportunity to finish his education and allowed millions of viewers to marvel at his fabulous technique, may we hope that he stays before the public as one of the greatest pianists of all time.

City to Investigate Legality of Tower

Victoria city council will do a double check on the small print before granting permission for the construction of a second high-rise apartment on Belmont Terrace.

The first of two apartments planned for the area is already occupied and looms over the city near the old water tower.

City manager Dennis Young asked the authority to retain outside legal opinion to ascertain just what the city's rights and responsibilities were as set down in a 1980 covenant when the twin towers were first planned.

Until Tuesday it had always been understood that eight years ago city council tied itself to a commitment to "permit construction of both buildings."

But after studying the covenant I am not satisfied that the claim that the developers have the right to build is correct," said Mr. Young. "I may be wrong, but I have been told that I am wrong, but I feel that there is sufficient doubt to call for a completely independent legal opinion."

DISQUALIFIED

City solicitor T. P. O'Grady has divorced himself from the legal study because he owns property near the apartment now in service.

"I think what we are trying to find out here is just what our rights are and also what our obligations are," said Ald. Ian Stewart.

The committee agreed to retain lawyer Louis Lindholm to study the original covenant and bring in an opinion.

SUCCESSOR William Bender as president of the Pacific Northwest Personnel Management Association is Don Watson, personnel officer at City Hall. Other officers elected last week are Russ Lindstrom, secretary, and Scott Dixon, treasurer.

Police Chief Orders Shoe Cleaning Probe

VANCOUVER (CP) — Deputy police chief John Fisk said Tuesday he will investigate an admission by a police constable that an 18-year-old student arrested in a stolen car case was ordered to clean the officer's shoes.

"I had no knowledge of this until this morning," he said. "I have asked for a report and the matter is now being looked into."

Constable Harvey David Fisk, under cross-examination by defence lawyer John Davis, said in magistrate's court he and other officers apprehended Doan Dec Aug. 24.

Constable Fisk admitted striking the teen-age, tall boy with a baton as a means of preventing Doan from escaping.

Under further cross-examination, the policeman said Doan was taken to police headquarters within 10 minutes of apprehension.

"When you came to the station, did you require Doan to clean your shoes?" asked Mr. Davis.

The policeman replied: "Yes, your honour. This occurred after the party had been charged."

When the prosecution asked what relevance this had, Magistrate James said: "I don't know, but I suppose we'll find out."

Magistrate James found Doan guilty of car theft and remanded him in custody until Oct. 7 for pre-sentence report.

In his finding, the magistrate said: "Certain aspects of the apprehension brought out by cross-examination do not appear to be factors that I must decide in these proceedings."

Merger Proposed

KIMBERLEY (CP) — About 2,000 taxpayers in Kimberley, Nureville and Chapman Camp will decide Oct. 15 if the three incorporated areas should amalgamate, creating a city of about 5,000.

Returning officer Don Teregen said Tuesday a 60-per-cent majority is needed for amalgamation.

Hunters Meet Death In Trailer

ROCKY MOUNTAIN HOUSE, ALTA. (CP) — RCMP Tuesday identified three men whose bodies were found in a camper trailer packed in a campground near Nardage, Alta., 50 miles west of Rocky Mountain House.

The three, all hunters from Wainwright, Alta., 130 miles southeast of Edmonton, were identified as Archie McLean, 62, Harold Marsden, 65, and Colin Clark.

Police said the hunters had apparently been dead two or three days and probably were the victims of carbon monoxide poisoning. The trailer contained a gasoline heater.

The bodies were found by RCMP patrolling the Hardoch campground adjacent to Highway 21 which runs from Red Deer through the Rocky Mountains to the Banff-Jasper highway.

Rocky Mountain House is 50 miles west of Red Deer.

Vietnam Enemy Toll Passes 400,000

SAIGON (AP) — The number of Viet Cong and North Vietnamese troops killed during eight years of American involvement in the Vietnam war has passed the 400,000 mark, South Vietnamese headquarters said Tuesday.

The toll reached the 400,000 mark sometime last week, when 2,866 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese were killed, the government said. This boosted the toll since Jan. 1, 1963, to 408,389 by South Vietnamese count.

For the same period, through the week ending Sept. 22, 28,211 Americans were killed in action in Vietnam and another 17,656 wounded.

South Vietnamese headquarters did not say how many government soldiers had been killed since Jan. 1, 1963, but South Vietnamese military sources said that since 1963 about 65,000 government troops have been killed. In the four years before that, best estimates put the South Vietnamese losses at 40,000.

The government's weekly casualty summary reported that 216 South Vietnamese soldiers were killed during the seven-day period ending at midnight Saturday night. The figures compared with 473 government troops killed the previous week ending Sept. 21.

U.S. casualty figures are released Thursday.

AIR LOSSES CONTINUE Meanwhile, American headquarters reported the loss of a fighter-bomber over North Vietnam and two helicopters over South Vietnam, all shot down by ground fire.

American pilots flew 208 missions over North Vietnam's southern panhandle.

South Vietnamese headquarters reported insurgents infiltrated into a civilian resettlement camp near Quang Ngai City along the coastal islands and set fire to 40 houses.

A government spokesman said 30 of the houses were destroyed. There was no immediate report on casualties.

Meal-On-Wheels To Serve District?

Times Bemoans U.K.'s Absence At Johnson Rites

LONDON (CP) — The Times says the British government's failure to send a minister to Canada for the funeral of Quebec Johnson "was certainly unkind and probably discourteous."

The newspaper says it was "unfortunate" that at a moment when it was important for Britain to be suitably represented, she had no high commissioner in Canada.

There was a gap between the departing Sir Henry Lisson and appointee Sir Colin Cross.

"The liaison might have been a suitable occasion," The Times adds, "to send someone from London, perhaps the Commonwealth secretary George Thomson or Lord Shepherd (junior Commonwealth minister), to represent Britain adequately."

Crash Kills Three

BANGKOK (AP) — A U.S. Air Force KC-135 tanker, loaded with jet fuel, crashed in flames at Udon, Thailand, a base for B-52 bombers flying missions over South Vietnam. A U.S. embassy spokesman said three of the crew were killed.

Sanich hopes to expand its meal-on-wheels service to Shun.

"My hope is that it will extend to the Greater Victoria area because there is a need for it," says Ald. William Noel, chairman of the health and social services committee.

First task, however, was to build up the service in Saanich to take care of the needy there.

"We are hoping to have a donation from a service club to buy another oven," he said.

The revamped service, which began Sept. 3, serves 30 Saanich residents and there is room available for only six more customers without a new oven.

FIVE A WEEK

The program provides one meal a day, five days a week, to Saanich residents who have difficulty in shopping or cooking for themselves.

It began in 1966 and is believed to be unique in British Columbia.

Meals now are prepared at Goodwill Enterprises, kitchens and delivered to homes by a commercial company.

The meals are bought from Goodwill for 40 cents a plate and sold for 30 cents but the small profit is quickly consumed by operating expenses. The service runs at a deficit.

Contractors Reject Board Award

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Amalgamated Construction Association said Tuesday it has rejected a conciliation report recommending wage increases for nearly 10,000 British Columbia construction workers and teamsters.

Laborers' unions immediately called for elimination of a government-supervised strike vote to avoid a possible strike delay.

The unions had already accepted the report, which recommended an 85-cent hourly increase in a two-year contract. Present base rate is $3.40 for drivers and $3.25 for laborers.

Joe Whiteford and Dunc Currie, joint chairmen of the union negotiating committee, said contractors were delaying matters with a request for clarification of the board recommendation.

The officials said employers' representatives also indicated they would not give official notification of rejection until the Oct. 15 deadline.

Meanwhile, the association said the employers reluctantly accepted a conciliation board report for operating engineers and improvements which employers estimated at 25.3 per cent.

Germans Shout Sieg Heil To Mock Neo-Nazi Party

BOON (Reuters) — Demonstrators throwing chairs and tear gas grenades Tuesday night broke up the first political rally organized by far right-wing leader Adolf von Thadden in the West German capital.

The Prussian aristocrat tried to leave it out against hundreds of cheering young men and women who totally drowned his speech with roars of "Sieg Heil" and "Nazi out of this town."

When fighting broke out and dozens of demonstrators tried to rush through National Democratic Party guards onto the stage police stepped in and closed the rally.

Later von Thadden said he would almost certainly abandon mass meetings and concentrate on the printed word for publicity. He said the party president would consider the matter today.

FIGHT WITH STEWARDS

The estimated 1,500 persons inside the hall at least three quarters of them anti-NPD, fought repeated scuffles with party stewards as they tried to form a battering ram to charge the stage.

It was impossible for NPD supporters to hear more than a few words of their leader's speech over non-stop shouts of derision and the crashing of chairs.

Students cheered wildly when von Thadden, flushed and with tears caused by the gas streaming down his face, turned his back to the microphone as police announced that the rally was over.

It was the second setback for von Thadden's party this week. Sunday the NPD polled a disappointing 5.2 per cent of the vote in Lower Saxony local elections. During the all-out election campaign von Thadden was pelted with eggs and tomatoes and hounded down by chanting left-wing students.

5 PRIESTS FIRED AND 33 RAPPED

By WILLIAM B. MACKAYE
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Patrick Cardinal O'Boyle, Roman Catholic Archbishop of Washington, Tuesday dismissed five of his priests from the public ministry and administered lesser penalties to 33 others.

The action, announced by the archdiocesan chancery, represented the cardinal's final judgment in the cases of 47 priests who publicly disagreed with him in the interpretation of Pope Paul VI's encyclical against contraception.

Among the priests removed from public ministry was the Rev. John E. Corrigan, chairman of the unofficial association of Washington priests and leader of the dissenters. The cardinal ordered Father Corrigan to move out of his quarters at St. Gabriel's Church here by next Friday.

Neither the announcement from the chancery nor the information the association could assemble in the immediate aftermath provided full details on the judgments and on related events, but there were these developments.

Two of the dissenters, Rev. Lavonne Newman, Newman Chaplain at George Washington University, and Rev. William Meyer, assistant at St. Gabriel's Church, asked for and were granted one-year leaves of absence.

In addition to Fathers Corrigan and McDermott, priests directed to leave their parishes — and thus effectively excluded from ministering in the diocese — were Rev. John Feslin, assistant at St. Mary's Church, Rockville, Md.; Rev. Joseph Schubert, assistant at St. Anthony's Church, Leonardtown, Md.; and Rev. T. Joseph O'Donoghue, former assistant at St. Francis De Sales Church, on whom such a penalty has been in effect since Sept. 1.

After the 31 award, Mr. Gorenko appealed to the Ontario Court of Appeal asking that it be increased. The Ontario court found fault with the trial judge's charge to the jury and ordered a new trial.

Mr. Justice Emmett Hall, writing the majority decision of the high court, said he saw no reason for retrying the issue of libel.

"A jury has already made a valid finding on this aspect of the case," he said.

However, he found that the trial judge confused and misled the jury on the matter of compensation. The new trial, therefore, should be restricted to the issue of damages only.

In a dissenting judgment, Mr. Justice Wilfred Johnson said he did not believe the judge belittled the damages Mr. Gorenko might have received.

"If there is to be a new trial, the better course would be to direct that it be both on liability and damages," he said.

Harbor Light To Be 'Brighter'

The Salvation Army's extended Harbor Light Centre at 516 Yates will be officially opened by Dr. James A. Taylor, B.C. deputy health minister on Saturday, Oct. 19 at 3 p.m.

Several months ago, the Harbor Light acquired a bakery building next door. This has been converted to provide a clinic, special care facilities for alcoholics, a recreation room and a dormitory.

Guests at the opening will be taken on a tour of the two buildings.

Welsh Girl Topples Beatles' Pop Throne

LONDON (AP) — A shy 15-year-old Welsh girl has toppled the Beatles' pop throne, discovered her, from the top of the British pop music charts.

And Dad stepped in quickly to appoint a chaperone for his blonde daughter.

Quiet-spoken Mary Hopkin, just out of school at a small Welsh town called Pontardun, ousted the Beatles with the catchy ballad "These Were the Days."

It marked a swing away from the "Yeah, Yeah, Yeah" beat that made the four Beatles millionaires.

Mered Hopkin, Mary's father, appointed her sister, Carole, 22, as the singer's manager to replace the Beatles' manager, Gerry Doran.

"I haven't spoken to Mary's father, but maybe he felt that I was too 'off-beat,'" Doran commented.

Doran, fuzzy-haired and flower-shirted, had been put in charge of Mary's affairs after she was discovered by model Twiggy and Beatle Paul McCartney.

"Mary's only a kid just out of school and needs someone with her," Carole said. "I'm giving up my teaching career to act for her and Mary will be sharing an apartment with me in London."

Mary will stay with the Beatles for recording on their Apple label.

HOME GARDEN

Shrubs for Fall Colors

By HILDA BEASTALL

The phenomenon of fall coloring is again with us to delight our senses. Easterners may justly brag of mounds of color splashed over miles of countryside by their native maples, sumachs and birches, but we in our gardens may grow dozens of shrubs to give us the flames of fall.

Some are seen frequently enough to be familiar to most gardeners but a few of the choicest need to be sought out with diligence.

E. n. kianthus cuneatus is one which is treasured by those Victoria gardeners who have acquired it.

A shrub of tiered branches, it bears small leaves and, in summer, dainty little bells, cream colored veined with red, hanging in clusters beneath the leaves.

In fall, the leaves turn from green to rich yet soft shades of red and dull rose. Liking an acid loamy soil, erikanthus makes a lovely accent to a sheltered, sunny border bed, for its ultimate height is around six or seven feet, well spreading at ground level.

Another acid lover for peaty, moist soils is Clostris alba, also a member of the hyacinthaceae family. This is a well-branched shrub of medium size, having August flowers with a spicy fragrance.

Full coloring is an additional feature, running through shades of dull red, bronze, rose and ochre.

Eucryphia glutinosa is perhaps the most handsome of all these rather hard-to-get shrubs, for his is densely twiggy from a broad base up to about six feet.

Some specimens are slow to come to blooming stage, but the splendor of orange-red foliage for a long period into winter makes the waiting painless.

This too must have a moist acid loamy soil and be grown quickly to size or the plant may never produce its lovely though fleeting white saucer-shaped blooms in early August.

YOUR HEALTH

Take Note Of Coughing By Children

By DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

As every mother knows, small children put everything they can lay their hands on into their mouths. Then perhaps if an older brother slaps the child on his back or bumps into him, down goes the button or safety pin or marble or coin or one of his sister's jacks, or even a small clothes pin. If it goes down the gullet and gets into the stomach, it may go on down and be passed from the bowel; but if it gets stuck in the gullet, or worse yet, if it goes down the trachea—the tube that carries air into the lungs—an expert has to pass a tube down to the object, and, with a special lung forceps, fish it out. The men who do this work have to have a special instrument that will close an open safety pin so it can be pulled out.

In some cases the mother may not know while she was out of the room her child swallowed a small object; all she will know is the child soon came down with what looked like a bronchitis with a good deal of cough, and perhaps some sputum. Finally, perhaps after months, the mother will realize she had better take the child to the doctor, and when he gets an X-ray film made of the child's lungs, he finds a dime, a button, a paper clip, a key, a screw or a little nail, and this then has to be removed.

Hence, it is whenever a mother realizes her child has been coughing for weeks, she had better think of the possibility it is a foreign body in the lung, and she had better have an X-ray film made. The most remarkable story is of Dr. Paul G. Bunker of South Dakota, who told of a woman of 49 who had had a miserable cough and fever since she was five. When she began to cough up blood, she went to a doctor; he X-rayed her lungs, and lo and behold, there was a large, open safety pin in her lung—a pin which must have been inhaled 35 years before!

At a place like the Mayo Clinic they always have to have three experts who can remove foreign bodies from the lungs, the trachea or the bronchi. They have three because one may be on a vacation, and one may have to leave town for an emergency, and that will leave one man working in the hospital every morning. These doctors maintain no child under five should be given something to eat like a peanut or a piece of popcorn, or a bit of carrot, or a bit of crisp bacon, which might get down into his lung.

Curiously, older people sometimes get something stuck in the gullet, perhaps a big piece of meat. This can happen when a person eats carelessly after he has been drinking too much.

Through the years, Dr. Paul H. Hollinger of Chicago, and his associates, have removed some 5,000 objects from the throat, lungs and intestines of children. Last year they took out a 22 calibre bullet and a Goldwater campaign button; I found this note in an interesting article written by Jean Carter in that fine little journal "Today's Health."

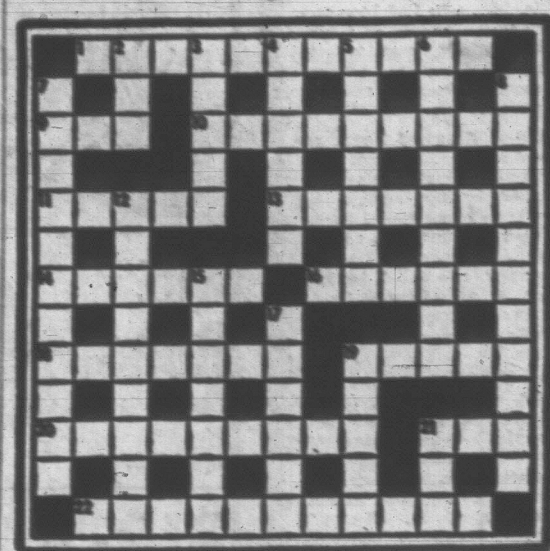

According to the U.S. Safety Council, in the year 1965 more than 1,000 youngsters choked to death on some foreign object. Dr. Hollinger believes 90 per cent of the foreign body mishaps can be traced to the carelessness and lack of knowledge on the part of a young mother.

SOLUTION FRIDAY

FLASHBACK ON CANADA

First Parliament Passed Severe Laws

The first parliament in what is now Canada opened in Halifax Oct. 2, 1758. It was three years after the expulsion of the Acadians and the "planters" from New England, who had been brought in to take over the Acadians' lands, demanded a more democratic system of government.

Actually Britain intended Nova Scotia to have a Parliament. When Edward Cornwallis was sent to found Halifax in 1749 his instructions included "to summon and call general assemblies of the Freeholders and Planters according to the usage of the rest of our colonies and plantations in America."

The people of Nova Scotia were certainly well-represented in their first Parliament. There were 26 members for the entire province, four of them from Halifax, and two from Lunenburg. As soon as any community had a population of 50, it could elect two members. They voted to serve without pay, at first, and the opening session cost only 250 pounds of which 100 went to the clerk.

"POPISH RELIGION"

The first Parliament opened in the court house at the corner of Argyle and Buckingham streets and remained in session until April 11, 1758. The Church of England was the official church, but Protestant dissenters were allowed freedom of worship and conscience. Members of the "popish religion" were denied similar privileges.

Use of profane language was a criminal offence and a persistent user of cuss words could have his tongue cut out. Penalties for other criminal offences were very severe and included public flogging, being put in the pillory, branding, having ears cut off, and

ASK ANDY

In these columns you want to know: Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other attractive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who would like questions to which to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question concerned with the recently published 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second volume a World Book Atlas.

Andy sends a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Alex Hernandez, age 12, of Fontana, California, for his question:

How does the spiny anteater bear her young?

This little mother is a native of Australia, home of most of the world's marvelous marsupial animals. So we might expect her to carry her babies in a pouch, perhaps like the one that a mother kangaroo has on her tummy. Although she is not a member of the marsupial family, she does indeed carry her young in a built-in pouch.

We tend to assume that birds and snakes lay eggs and think of the mammals as a separate group because they bear live young. True, all the birds do hatch from eggs, but after that the rule relaxes a little. Some of the snakes bear their young alive, and a very few of the mammals lay eggs. One of them is the unbelievable duckbill platypus. Another is the spiny anteater, alias the echidna. Both of these mammals are natives of Australia where, perhaps, their oddities go unnoticed amidst the assortment of weird and wonderful wild life.

Animals are not classified as mammals on the basis of their live-bearing habits. The key factor is the feeding of the young. All mammal babies are fed on mother's milk. The term "mammal" is coined from the mother's built-in breasts that supply the baby formula. The spiny anteater has such breasts and her baby is fed on mother's milk. This factor qualifies her as a mammal—even though she does lay eggs.

Australian natives call Mrs. Echidna a porcupine because her back and sides are covered with bristling spines. She is a small, rather chubby little animal about 20 inches long. Her tail is not worth mentioning, but her nose is a long sort of beak. Actually it is a sensitive tube for probing out ants and termites. Her mouth is a small hole at the tip and her long, sticky tongue is kept inside, always ready to whip out to gather a quota of scurrying bugs. Her dark, brownish-gray hair covers her underside and mingles with the spines on her back and sides. Her feet are sturdy shovels with strong claws for digging.

Shy Animal

As a rule, the little mother lays only one egg at a time, usually in May. She uses her beak to get it into a kangaroo-type pouch on her abdomen. This cozy pocket acts as a nest and an incubator. The egg hatches in a few days. Junior looks like a small copy of his mother, but the spines mixed with his hair are still soft. His feeding tacet is right there inside the pouch—but it is not like the little buttons worn by most mammals. It is merely a special patch of skin with large pores through which the baby sucks his formula. Junior does not repose in Mama's pouch very long for a very good reason. His soft spines soon begin to harden and the prickles irritate the living lining of his mother's pouch. She removes him and places him in a safe hiding place, perhaps under a stone or fallen log. Soon he is ready to accompany her on her nightly forages for ants and termites. Barring accidents, he can expect to enjoy his ant-eating life for 15 years.

The spiny anteater is a very shy animal. When scared he uses his shovel paws to burrow down so fast that he seems to be sliding into the ground. Strange to say, the shy little fellow with such odd ways makes a splendid pet. Of course, he sleeps through the day and enjoys company only at night. But he seems fond of people and soon becomes very friendly. After a period of this friendship, he loses his natural shyness toward human beings.

Other events, Oct. 2:
1758—Port Royal surrenders to New England fleet and the name was changed to Annapolis Royal.

1847—Telegraph service opened between Montreal and Quebec.

1857—A sturgeon eleven feet nine inches long and weighing 822 pounds was caught at Ladner, B.C.

1955—Canadian Unemployment Act came into effect.

Man Paddles Across Nation

ROCKY MOUNTAIN HOUSE, Alta. (CP)—An English insurance man is on the last leg of a transcontinental canoe trip by an old far-travel route.

Robert Sanders, 36, of London, an official of Lloyd's, the insurance firm, is on a lone voyage from New York to the Pacific.

What makes a man from London undertake such an expedition?

"It began when I attended Upper Canada College in Toronto during the war years. I started canoeing, and became fascinated with the history of the Canadian fur trade. The idea of trying to cross the country began to intrigue me."

Hard-Luck Tory To Live on Coast

KAMLOOPS (CP) — E. Davis Fulton, a former cabinet minister, and an unsuccessful candidate last year for leadership of the federal Progressive Conservative Party, said today he has decided to move to Vancouver to practice law.

Mr. Fulton, defeated in the June 25 federal election in the Kamloops-Carleton riding by Liberal Len Marchand, issued a prepared statement but did not mention his future political plans.

Mr. Fulton, 52, a partner in a law firm here founded by his father in the 1890s, said in the statement:

"As a result of the election I am faced with the necessity of establishing a new career and have had a variety of attractive offers from both eastern and western Canada.

"As between the alternatives offered, my love of B.C., the fact that this is my own home and has been my family's home for generations and our confidence that this province stands on the threshold of exciting and virtually unlimited growth, have decided us in favor of Vancouver."

Mr. Fulton said he could not disclose the name of the firm he will join in Vancouver, but said the move will take place immediately.

Mr. Fulton was elected to the House of Commons in 1945 and re-elected in 1949, 1953, 1958 and 1962. He resigned his federal seat to assume leadership of the B.C. Conservative Party in 1963, but was defeated that year in the provincial election. He was returned to the House of Commons in 1965.

Ottawa Favors Bertrand in Quebec

MONTREAL (CP) — Jean-Jacques Bertrand is chosen today to succeed premier Daniel Johnson, the Quebec government could possibly adopt a more pro-federalist attitude, says State Secretary Gerard Pelletier.

"In any case, a government under Mr. Bertrand would not be more nationalistic than it was under Mr. Johnson because the former has stated he agrees with Mr. Johnson on the constitutional issue," Mr. Pelletier said.

The federal cabinet minister told reporters during a visit Sunday to Montreal and his World that he is impressed with the knowledge Mr. Bertrand, Quebec justice minister, has shown of Ottawa and the system of federalism.

"As a student at the University of Ottawa, the Quebec minister frequently sat in the public galleries of the House of Commons," Mr. Pelletier said.

Mr. Bertrand, who was acting premier of Quebec while Mr. Johnson recuperated in Bermuda for 7 1/2 months following his July 3 heart attack, is high on the list of those thought likely to succeed the late premier at a Union Nationale caucus today.

CONVENTION COMING

The Union Nationale party is said to be planning a convention in six months time at which Mr. Bertrand could seek rank-and-file endorsement as party leader.

Mr. Bertrand is a federalist with a good "constitutional sense," Mr. Pelletier said. "He is a man of good will, wholly Canadian and wholly Quebecois."

The Quebec justice minister

Russia Doubles Profit Companies

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union said Tuesday it has nearly doubled the number of businesses operating on the profit-based system of management to include many small enterprises.

Nikolai Balashov, chairman of the state planning committee (Gosplan), said more than 25,000 enterprises are now operating under the new plan. He said these businesses account for 10 per cent of the Soviet Union's total output and 50 per cent of industrial profits.

"But if a person like Jean-Noel Tremblay, Quebec minister of cultural affairs, known for his outspoken nationalism were chosen, then we could all expect a stalemate in a movement toward more amicable Quebec-Ottawa relations," Mr. Pelletier said.

He said he disagrees wholly with Pierre Bourgeois, leader of the Rassemblement pour l'Indépendance nationale, who said last week the death of Mr. Johnson will probably aid the cause of separation.

"It will probably be the reverse of that," the secretary of state said.

DIVORCES

Divorces were granted in Victoria Law Courts Monday to Dorothy E. Lader, 3044 Jackson Street, Victoria, from Evert J. Lader, 448 Freeman Street, Prince George. They were married at Victoria in 1965.

Marie Bunch, 3855 Gower Road, from George K. Bunch, 301 Langford Street. They were married at Victoria in 1957.

Mary E. McDonald, 1342 Thurston Road, from Alexander J. McDonald, 325 Michigan Street. They were married at Victoria in 1953.

Helen A. Eager, 1863 Hollywood Crescent, from Palmer Irwin Eager, 1227 Stride Avenue, Burnaby. They were married at New Westminster in 1942.

Gary F. Gallwey, 880 Nicholson Street, from Eileen Gallwey, 1729 Carleton Street. They were married at Victoria in 1955.

Airless Trailer Kills Man

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — One man died and 12 others were taken to hospital Monday night of apparent heat prostration and suffocation after they were locked in the trailer of a two-ton truck for more than 11 hours.

The men were among 46 Mexican nationals who crossed the border into the U.S. at Eagle Pass, Tex., when they were promised jobs in Chicago. The men paid 100-150 pesos ($12) each to be taken to Chicago.

The 150-mile trip to San Antonio was described as nightmarish by one of the last victims. He said there was no ventilation and the men were hoarse around the clock.

They were discovered locked in the two-ton truck Monday while it was parked outside a rented San Antonio home. Neighbors heard pounding inside the truck and called police, thinking there was a fight.

PM Pressed for Time On Constitution Talk

BY ALEX FARRELL

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau will soon have to decide whether to resume the federal-provincial constitutional conference before Christmas, as planned, or wait a few months longer.

The first session was held here in February. The next is tentatively scheduled for late November or early December, a time that two provinces now may find important.

The death of Daniel Johnson on Thursday leaves Quebec with an acting premier, Jean-Jacques Bertrand, who will approach the conference with an uncertain mandate if it takes place so soon.

In Alberta, Premier E. C. Manning plans to resign after his Social Credit party chooses a successor at a leadership convention in December.

WIDER POWERS

In the efforts to rewrite Canada's constitution, or draw up a new one, the premier of Quebec, whoever he is, is obviously a key figure. Mr. Johnson asserted Quebec's claims for broader powers and for international competence in its fields of jurisdiction, notably education.

He seemed less concerned about the French fact outside Quebec. His predecessor, Jean Lesage, who is still the Quebec liberal leader, put strong emphasis on support for French-speaking minorities in other provinces and on the idea of Quebec as protector of their culture.

19 Die in Floods

TAIPEI (Reuters) — Widespread floods following 24 hours of continuous torrential rain in Formosa left 13 persons dead and set off landslides, cutting rail and road traffic, police reported Tuesday.

Fifteen persons are missing in the floods, which washed away 127 houses.

Mr. Manning, dean of provincial premiers for many years, has been a cautious figure in constitutional discussions.

Former of Alberta, since 1963, he told the constitutional conference in February that language rights for French-speaking minorities in the English provinces might prove to be a "paper victory."

It would be a "constitutional handicap," he said, if the English granted such rights in the constitution and then found that Quebec had not made all its demands known.

Mr. Jiggs Traffic Stopper

CHICAGO (AP) — Residents of a North Side neighborhood have been seeing a lot of monkeybusiness lately.

Traffic comes to a standstill along busy Clark Street many afternoons as Mr. Jiggs—a four-foot-tall, 50-pound chimpanzee—stares about on his daily errands.

"I thought it was a hippie," a startled woman pedestrian admitted Wednesday as Mr. Jiggs sauntered past her in his red jacket and black trousers, carrying a bag of groceries.

Mr. Jiggs just smiled and waved.

Grocery shopping is one of his favorite errands. He likes to test the freshness of the fruit with a quick bite.

The chimp has been living in a North Side apartment with his owner, Sam Winter, while he performs nightly in a downtown hotel.

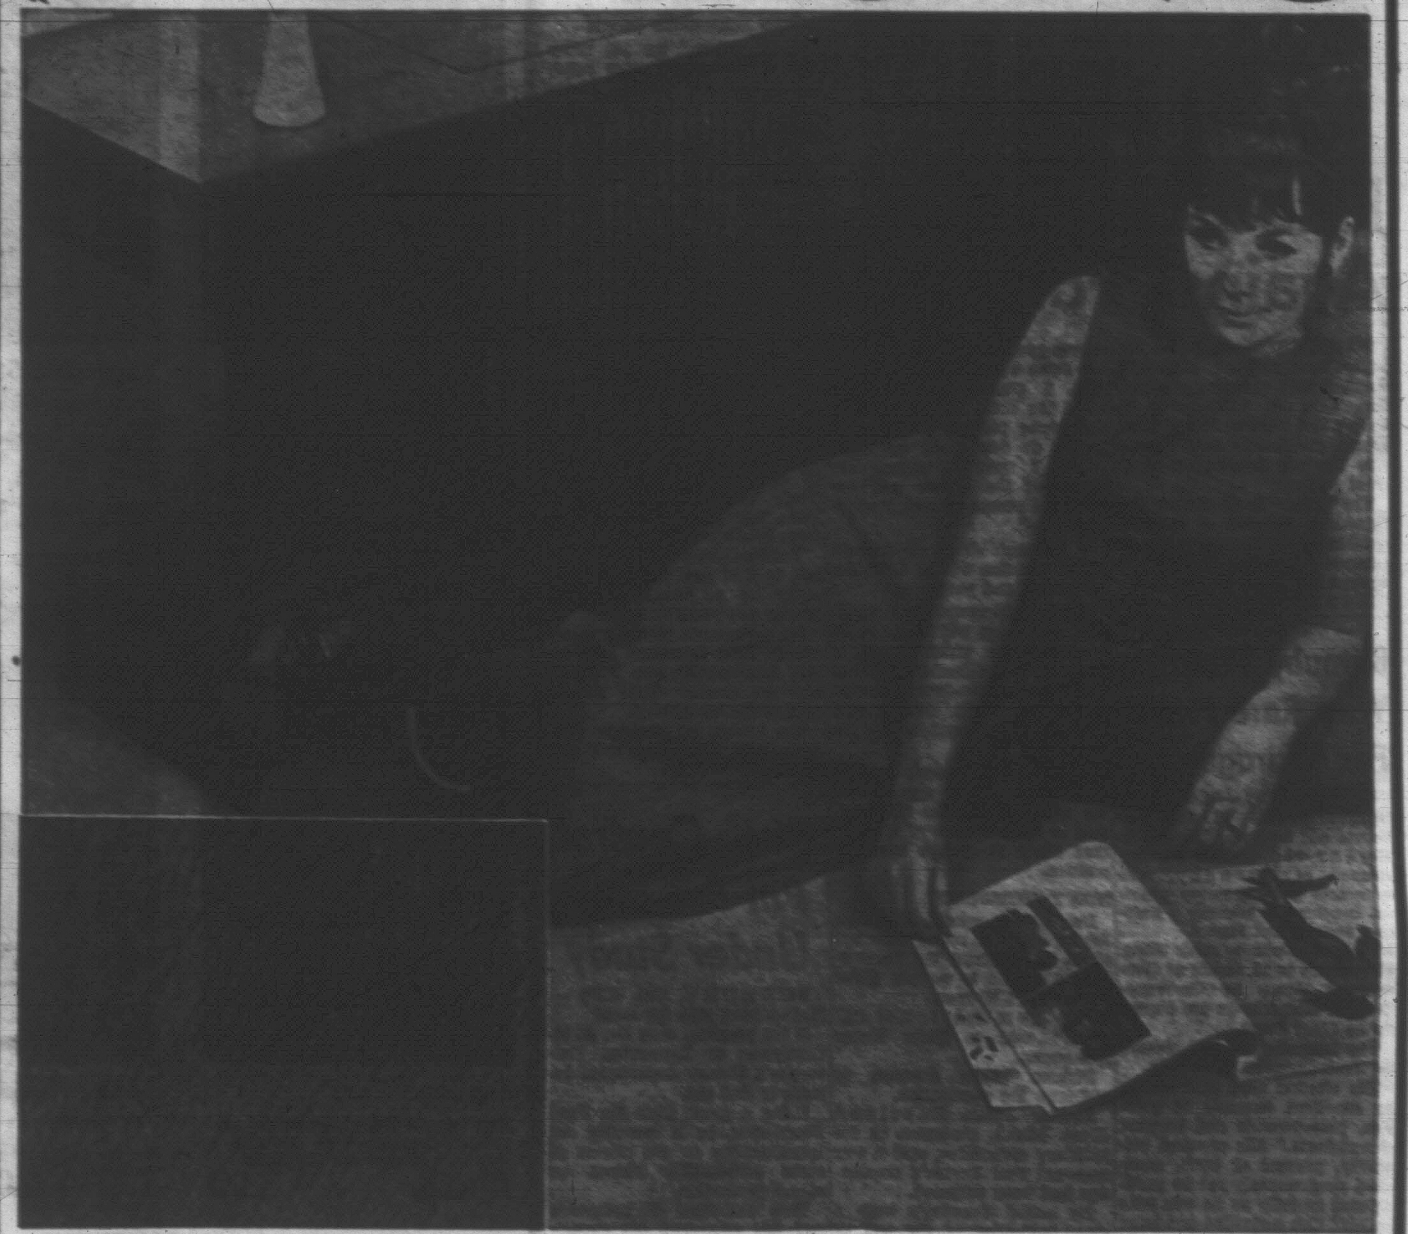

There he rides a motorcycle, plays a violin, does acrobatic tricks and takes pictures of patrons with his camera.

Out on the street he does an occasional hand-stand, nonchalantly turns around, nonchalantly turns around, and—if a passing girl catches his eye of 40 will be seen dead within a mile of it."

Burnaby Scout Wins Rare Honor For Courage

OTTAWA (CP) — One of the highest awards of the Boy Scouts will be made Monday to 16-year-old Martin Barclay Brethel of Burnaby, who overcame a progressive physical handicap to become a first- rank scout patrol leader.

The award will be made along with others to 20 Scouts at Government House by Governor-General Michener in his capacity as Chief Scout.

The Burnaby boy will receive the Jack Cornwall decoration. His citation says that he "is an excellent example of courage, perseverance and buoyant cheerfulness." His physical disability, present at birth, worsened progressively yet he participated as fully as he was able in Wolf Cub activities and later in a Boy Scout troop.

The Cornwall badge is named for Jack Cornwall, 16-year-old member of a gun crew at the naval battle of Jutland during the First World War who stayed at his post despite wounds after other members of the crew were killed.

Martin is the only Canadian boy receiving this award.

Sailors Rescued

HONG KONG (Reuters) — The 31 crew members of the abandoned 4,144-ton Panamanian freighter Bangkok Trader have been rescued by ship, the Hong Kong marine department reported today. ## State Senator Quits In Face of Threats

By CAROLYN LEWIS
The Washington Post

MONTGOMERY, Ala. — Tom Radney, the young Alabama state senator who last month announced he would place the name of Sen. Edward Kennedy in nomination for the Democratic party's presidential candidate, says he is withdrawing from politics because of threats against his family.

Radney changed his plans for the nomination in Chicago when Sen. Kennedy indicated he was against the move, but the 35-year-old Alabama cast his vote for the senator, anyhow.

Radney, who traces his Alabama ancestry back 180 years, and whose grandfather fought in the civil war, then became one of the few southern delegates to support either Kennedy or Sen. Eugene McCarthy — "liberal heretics" in the eyes of some southern conservatives.

After Radney stated his case for Kennedy on network television in Chicago, crude and threatening telegrams began to flood in from Alabama. It was a forebode of what was in store for him back home.

Radney and his wife, Marjorie, have been harassed by persistent and malicious tele-

Union Orders Wildcatters Back To Work

WASHINGTON (AP) — Top United Mine Workers officials insisted today to check spreading wildcat strikes that have made idle about 30,000 men in the soft coal fields.

Union officials said there were 20,000 strikers in West Virginia, 7,500 in Pennsylvania, and 2,500 in Southern Illinois who apparently believed the Mine Workers two-year contract expired Monday night.

Five mines were shut down in Kentucky but no estimate was available on how many men were involved.

Union President W. A. Boyle said expiration notice served on the Bituminous Coal Operators Association fixed the contract expiration date at midnight next Tuesday.

Other union officials explained that Monday was the earliest possible date for termination of the old contract, but the final expiration date of Tuesday was set when the union furnished 60 days notice.

SENDS MEMBERS HOME

Boyle ordered the 152 members of the union's wage policy board back to their home districts to "get the mines back to work."

The wage committee had been standing by in Washington in anticipation of a new contract for 80,000 coal miners in 22 states.

Departure of the committee indicated a snag in the talks, which had been going on since mid-September.

The talks, which remain in session, were reported hung up on the refusal of U.S. Steel Corp., a big coal producer and user, to promise it would buy only union coal.

Reports from the negotiations last month indicated agreement on an increase in wages and fringe benefits of $1 a day. Basic pay in the mines ranges from $2.25 to $3.50 a day.

The increase would be equivalent to that won after a 23-day strike by as many as 60,000 miners two years ago.

An agreement with the Bituminous Coal Operators Association traditionally sets the pattern for another 45,000 miners outside the association.

The association members produce half of the country's soft coal.

Birth-Control Pill For Men Under Study

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — Birth-control pills for men?

If it's possible, then Dr. A. H. Lalshman of Laurentian University's biology department intends to find out.

Using a grant from the Ford Foundation, he is carrying out investigations on the effects of some anti-fertility agents on sperm production.

He's examined 28 hormones and has narrowed his experiments to one—a steroid known as "cholesterol."

"Of 28 hormones tried, this is the only one with no side effects," said Dr. Lalshman, who has used white rats and hamsters to test the hormone.

He said that besides having no side-effects, 19-hour is reversible, meaning that once its use is discontinued, normal sperm production returns in a short time.

Dr. Lalshman's work is a continuation of research he carried out in 1965 with Dr. Gregory Pincus, developer of the oral contraceptive for women. Dr. Pincus died last year.

LCB Boss McGugan To Retire

By JOHN MIKA

Times Legislative Reporter

British Columbia will have a new liquor board chairman April 1 and may have a new liquor act too.

The end of an era was scheduled today when Attorney-General Leslie Peterson announced Col. Donald McGugan will retire March 31.

The announcement increased speculation that a major reform of the liquor law will be undertaken at the coming legislative session before the new liquor chief takes over.

Col. McGugan will be in his 50th year when he leaves the $29,300 post as a one-man liquor board which he has held since 1953.

Mr. Peterson said the government would "immediately" advise throughout Canada so a top-flight replacement could be found for appointment "as of April 1 next."

NEW DEBATE:
The changeover in command would coincide with the closing of the next session. It is expected to see further debate on the needs for liquor reform between virtually the entire assembly and two-latter Premier Bennett — unless the premier heads it off with appropriate legislation.

Last spring — while Mr. Bennett was absent from the house — a major attack on "archaic" B.C. liquor laws was launched by a large number of backbench Socialists who joined opposition members in publicly demanding reforms.

And hints came from within the cabinet too that changes in law were being actively sought. Mines Minister Frank Richter, while still agriculture minister, made a public speech predicting that "somebody better and wiser will be sold through grocery stores in the province and there will be other changes."

Then Attorney-General Robert Bennett said that a complete review of the liquor law was afoot when he commented on a strong public statement by Anglican Archbishop.

All B.C. Wage Appeals Denied by Government

Private Industry Parity Refused

By ROGER STONERANKS

The British Columbia government has rejected all wage appeals by its employees, a union spokesman said today.

The decision affects stationary steam engineers, ferry mechanics at the Deas Island dock and 350 classifications representing several thousand employees.

In addition, said E. P. O'Connor, general secretary of the B.C. Government Employees Association, the government had told the association that comparability of wages of provincial employees should be with wages paid by other provincial governments across Canada.

This made it obvious, he said, that the government rejects comparison between the wages it pays and wages paid by other employers within British Columbia.

NO COMMENTS
Education Minister Donald

Scobie, chairman of a cabinet sub-committee which made recommendations on the appeals to the cabinet, was not in his office this morning for comment.

Dr. Hugh Morrison, chairman of the B.C. Civil Service Commission, was reported away until next week.

And Attorney-General and Labor Minister, Leslie Peterson, was not available today.

The government's decision, said Mr. O'Connor, "is a corollary to Bill 33. Government employees now have a slave status. They have no right to bargain collectively, they have no further right of appeal and under Bill 33 they have no right to strike."

"Government employees cannot accept this status. If there is no relief forthcoming they will have to find ways and means of applying economic sanctions."

STRIKE PENDING:
Last month it was indicated that if ferry mechanics did not get some action on wages they would take "appropriate action," which could mean a walkout.

A spokesman for the marine branch (unlicensed) of the B.C. Government Employees Association said then that ferry mechanics were promised parity with wages in outside industry.

Mr. O'Connor, in a lengthy statement, quoted comparisons to show government employee wages were in some cases 26 1/2 per cent below outside comparable rates in B.C.

He said the government's policy is "inevitable and a negation of the policy of both the association and the Civil Service Commission."

The commission, he said, has conducted wage surveys confined to employees within B.C. for the last 15 years. These surveys have been the basis upon which the government has granted wage adjustments to the extent that the capital cost is provided allowed, he said.

CONTRADICTION:
It was also a direct contradiction of policy statements by government ministers, he said.

Mr. O'Connor referred to former Attorney-General Robert Bennett stating in the legislature last January that "wage parity across the nation with B.C. would preclude world do more for national unity than while-said statement to the constitution."

He also quoted Trade Minister Ralph Lofthouse as saying last January that "wage parity with B.C. for all Canadian workers would be the greatest single step towards unifying Canada."

BERTRAND
... takes over

Bertrand Named Premier

Times News Services

QUEBEC — Jean-Jacques Bertrand, a reform-minded federalist who acted as the late premier Daniel Johnson's lieutenant, today was chosen by his Union Nationale colleagues to succeed Mr. Johnson as premier.

At a press conference after a meeting of the Union Nationale caucus, Mr. Bertrand said he had been chosen unanimously as "premier of Quebec, head of the government and interim leader of the Union Nationale."

Mr. Bertrand declined to say immediately whether he would be a candidate for the permanent party leadership at the convention expected next year. Date of the convention is not yet set. (See story Page 29.)

Nationalist members of the party, who supported Mr. Bertrand's choice as interim leader for the sake of party unity, are understood to have already asked for assurance that Mr. Bertrand would not use the interim leadership as a route to victory at the convention.

CARDINAL LINKED
Education Minister Jean-Guy Cardinal remains in the minds of many observers the leading candidate for the permanent succession.

It is understood to have the support of most members of the nationalist wing of the party, although there is a strong possibility that one of the more extreme nationalists might also run, making it possible then for both wings to rally around Mr. Bertrand as a compromise.

However, Mr. Bertrand has not yet given any commitment, at least publicly, that he will not seek the permanent leadership. And some observers believe that he may be able to use the interim leadership to gain a wider power base than he now appears to have.

Mr. Bertrand emerged from a special caucus of Union Nationale legislature members at 12:30 p.m. one hour after the meeting began, and told reporters:

"I have just been summoned by the lieutenant-governor. I am going over to his office to discuss with him when the new government will be formed."

The caucus took only 10 minutes to decide that Mr. Bertrand, justice minister in the Johnson government, should succeed the late premier.

The decision was signalled by a thunderous ovation at 11:30 a.m.

Rusk Asks Russia To Leave Czech Soil

SHARP MEETS RUSK AT UN

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — External Affairs Minister Sharp had a private 15-minute meeting today with State Secretary Dean Rusk of the United States.

The Canadian minister said East-West relations and the Middle East were the main topics. There was no discussion of NATO policy as such.

UNITED NATIONS (Reuters)

U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk called on the Soviet Union today to get its troops out of Czechoslovakia and demanded an explanation of Moscow's new doctrine of the right of intervention.

In his first, and probably last, policy address to the United Nations General Assembly, Rusk also reaffirmed NATO's determination to resist "immediately to self-defence measures" if West Germany were attacked.

He warned that there is danger that the Middle East "would slip back once more towards chaos and war" unless the parties to the conflict move resolutely towards a settlement.

He assured the 125-country assembly that the U.S. fervently wants an end to the violence in Vietnam "with its tragic suffering and its risks of larger war."

"We must do all we can to turn from the war to the work of peace," Rusk said. The will to peace in the U.S. among the leaders and the people, was "deep and abiding" and an honorable settlement was possible.

"What remains is for them to get down to the serious business of making peace in Paris. They will find the U.S. receptive and willing to negotiate in good faith."

Hecklers in the public gallery, shouting "Stop the war in Vietnam," interrupted Rusk's address. About a dozen persons, strategically located in different sections of the big gallery, rose to their feet, some of them holding up placards with crudely drawn slogans, when Rusk mentioned Vietnam.

Their shouts drowned out Rusk's remarks. His speech was interrupted for about one minute while UN security officers moved swiftly to hustle the demonstrators out of the area.

HELICOPTER AMBULANCES SHOT DOWN

SARGON (AP) — Two evacuation helicopters loaded with wounded Americans were shot down by North Vietnamese troops during a fierce battle in jungled foothills south of Da Nang, military spokesmen reported today.

U.S. headquarters said several soldiers, wounded in the ground fighting, were unaccounted for and presumed dead. They were aboard one of the helicopters that was destroyed while trying to evacuate them to a field hospital. Seven men were rescued.

The U.S. command declined to say how many men were missing while a search was still on for their bodies.

Delegate Exodus Kills Summit Bid

BUDAPEST (Reuters) — Russian hopes of re-establishing its authority over the world Communist movement recoiled today as delegates from 58 parties prepared to leave the Hungarian capital without scheduling Moscow's much-awaited Communist summit conference.

The delegates unanimously agreed Tuesday to postpone the gathering because of the many parties still at loggerheads with the Russians over the Warsaw pact invasion of Czechoslovakia.

Instead of a summit originally scheduled for Moscow Nov. 25, the delegates agreed only to return to Budapest Nov. 17 to consider "the method for further preparation."

The delegates decided to return home and consult their central committees over a new date for the summit, despite months of laborious work for the meeting by the Soviet leadership.

DOUBLE DUTIES were in order for Bob Peterson Tuesday when he took over as Spanich Deputy Police Chief and head of a United Red Feather-Red Cross Appeal canvassing section. He wanted list includes several hundred Spanich Municipal employees to help the United Appeal reach its $305,000 goal.

Mr. Peterson, formerly an inspector with Spanich Police, succeeds Joseph Armstrong as Deputy Chief.

PM Accused of Backing Down

By VICTOR MACKIE

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Progressive Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield accused Prime Minister Trudeau today of backing down on the Philippe Roussillon affair during talks with French Premier Maurice Couve de Murville.

Mr. Stanfield told reporters outside the House "I can only conclude that the prime minister considers it prudent to drop the matter."

He was commenting on Mr. Trudeau's statement in the Commons that he "didn't think to ask" about the Roussillon business.

"It is extraordinary," said Mr. Stanfield pointing out that Prime Minister Trudeau had earlier this year accused France and General de Gaulle of "trying to demolish the unity of Canada." Mr. Trudeau has also taken issue with what he called the "unbridled and surreptitious" action of the French government in sending an agent (Mr. Roussillon) to Canada to meet with French

Canadians in Manitoba.

What made Mr. Trudeau's position in Parliament all the more peculiar was that when he was interviewed in Quebec City by reporters after his talks with the French premier, Mr. Trudeau brushed off their queries. He explained he could say nothing about the talks at that time because he first had to make his report to Parliament. When asked Monday in Parliament by Stanley Knowles (NDP-Winnipeg North Centre) to make a statement concerning his conversations with Mr. Couve de Murville, Mr. Trudeau said: "I understand it is not customary to make a statement after such conversations. I had not planned to do so."

MPs were disappointed that they got no statement from Mr. Trudeau. His talks with the French premier were the first top level meeting between France and Canada since General de Gaulle's Montreal balcony scene when he shouted for a "free Quebec."

The opposition persisted in seeking a statement from the prime minister—but without success.

Mr. Stanfield asked if in view of the serious allegations made by Trudeau on Sept. 11, "Canada has received a satisfactory explanation of assurances from the government of France regarding the activities of Mr. Roussillon while in Canada."

Mr. Trudeau replied, "I should confess that I did not think of asking about the Roussillon affair yesterday when I talked with the prime minister of France."

Snapped Mr. Stanfield: "Are we to assume from this answer that in the view of the prime minister this matter does not today seem to have the importance that it had on Sept. 11?"

Mr. Speaker Lucien Lamoureux ruled the question out of order.

Outside the house later Mr. Stanfield ripped into the prime minister. He described it

Carter Sells Colony Inn

Mr. Carter could not be reached for comment today. Nothing could George Lantz, former manager of Halfway House, Enid, Okla., who has taken over the management reins at the Oklery.

Motel officials confirmed that Mr. Carter was no longer with the motel and that Mr. Lantz was the new manager. They were unable to comment on an estimated price paid for the Donald and Gordon Carter's established motel.

GRAIN

WINNEPEG (CF) — Rapeseed prices were steady today on the Winnipeg grain exchange.

Flax offerings were limited today in offerings on the commission floor and buyers took less on the auction. Flax prices were generally steady.

Domestic shippers bought barley at steady prices. Oat followed a similar pattern with lighter volume. There was local and commission bid action in rye at fractionally stronger prices.

Total futures trading volume today: Barley 2,523,000 bushels, rye 675,000 bushels, flax 22,000 bushels, feed grains 1,000 bushels. Total for the week ended Feb. 28: Barley 2,590,000 bushels.

Lakehead prices for class 1 IWA and domestic wheat were unchanged except No. 1 Northern which was down 1 cent.

CHICAGO (AP) — Soybean prices advanced for the second straight session, moving about 1 1/2¢ on the board of trade to under active buying that frustrated a demand for meal and oil.

Most of the trade was directed at the soybean complex. Wheat and corn prices weakened at the close under moderate selling.

Arthur Mayse

A reader who correctly assumes that our news is on the level has called my attention to a three-line squib tucked into last Friday's paper. It is headed, "Giant Among Birds," and its polemic type informs the reader thus:

"The mature bald eagle may be 10 feet across and weigh one ton."

Such a King Kong among birds would constitute a shocking peril to mankind, and I for one would dive into the nearest body of water at the first sight of such a creature. You will, however, be relieved to learn that in actual fact, the mature bald eagle falls far short of these proportions.

To set the record straight, I called Dr. Cliff Carl, director of our splendid new Provincial Museum. Dr. Carl compared notes with ornithologist Frank Beebe, and they came up with the following specifications:

The fully-grown bald eagle has a wing span of six and a half to eight feet, and its weight according to sex, ranges from seven pounds for the male to 12 for his mate.

"The male," said Dr. Carl cheerfully, "is just a little squarer."

He then went on to tell me that the "rain-curtain" at either end of the disjuncted Noctua, whaling scene, far from over-humidifying the museum atmosphere, are serving a very useful purpose.

The building lacks a humidifying system, but by manipulating the flow of water down the rain-curtain tubes, museum experts have found that they can supply the required degree of moisture to the air.

A makeshift, certainly, but a useful one.

Going back to where we started, the item that so greatly misinformed the eagle to what we call a filler. I doubt there's a newspaper composing room in the land that doesn't have a tray or two of those well-named capsules within reach.

When the clever insertion of metal strips called "leads" won't bring a story into the column space allotted to it, the printer may grab a filler of the correct length from his store of unrelated facts.

The rough skin of the shark, it may read, was widely used as a smoothing agent before the invention of sandpaper.

Since we usually have current news items in all sizes, filling for precious space, fillers are used only once in a blue moon, and then on a way-back page. They aren't staff-written; if fact I haven't the least idea who produces them.

Little old man in square-cut glasses, I expect, with a vast stock of reference works beside him, and a tricky sense of humor.

Camp Protest site on well-manicured turf by University of Victoria's ring road. Its term eloquent of a problem that our growing university has not yet faced up to.

This is the death of low-rental housing in Victoria for the boarding student whose funds will not stretch to meet standard rates.

"Yummy, yummy" said male passers-by as Times photographer Irving Strickland posed Phyllis Binnie, left, and Carolyn McDermott. The Vancouver girls will visit 14 cities. They will high-tail it out of here Thursday.

'Something for Servicemen Always Knocked' by Chamber

Servicemen deserve a break in the price of consumer goods and to heck with the Chamber of Commerce.

This was the reaction today from a Belmont Park housewife who favors service-run retail stores—featuring lower prices on armed forces bases.

"It's something for the servicemen, they've got to know it," she said.

Greater Victoria Chamber of Commerce at its annual meeting last week reiterated concern that the defence department outlets known as Canex will be unfair competition to the public business community.

Reservists in the DND housing project at Colwood say the chamber is taking a characteristic narrow view.

They acknowledge Canadian Forces Exchange System is meant primarily for personnel serving in areas with inadequate retail facilities.

INCONVENIENCE But they say service people should get some consideration for the inconvenience of service life.

"People in the service deserve something like this," a wife said. "We are pushed from pillar to post and some don't have the opportunity of getting to know the local stores in the short time they are here."

It was pointed out that servicemen pay income taxes like everyone else; they are frequently transferred from one part of the country to another, which is hard on personal and household effects; they don't have the same opportunity to possess a place of their own.

FOOD, TOO Another service wife said she would favor the Canex system for buying household appliances, clothing, radios, TVs, cameras, toys, fishing gear and gifts.

It would be a "good thing" if it included food as well, she said.

"In Halifax I have known the grocers to raise their prices when the services were granted a pay increase," she said.

The existing base store outlet, which has operated about five years, has a limited range of consumer items, but will order those not carried in stock.

"I imagine there are a lot of people who take advantage of it. They are foolish if they don't," the woman said.

Will Real Supremes Come Forward?

Pop music lovers in Victoria will face the Supreme Temptation Oct. 21.

In fact without The Supremes, Diana and the swinging group she sings with are playing the Flaxton Club at Lake Tahoe on the night most people think they are playing Memorial Arena.

The facts emerged Tuesday when the Times alerted to the fact that Diana Ross and The Supremes are the real Supremes and that Lake Tahoe was their Oct. 21 playing spot, phoned Los Angeles to talk to their agent Bert Zil.

He confirmed that Diana and The Supremes will be a long way from Victoria Oct. 21.

The show appearing at the local arena on that date advertised "the sweet soul music of the Temptations and Supremes."

Promoters are Inter-High Agencies Ltd. of Vancouver, but arena manager Jack Morgan says he can't reach anyone there who can tell him what sort of show is coming to the arena—at $4, $5 and $6 a ticket.

The Times wasn't able to reach anyone either. In Los Angeles, Mr. Zil said he doesn't handle The Temptations but he understands they are playing in Detroit Oct. 21.

British Israelites To Gather Thursday

British Israelites from across Canada will gather in the Empress Hotel Thursday for the annual meeting of the Canadian British Israel Association.

Chief speaker will be Harold Stough, secretary-general of the British Israel World Federation in London, England.

He will address a public meeting in the Georgian lounge, Empress Hotel, Sunday at 3 p.m.

Cuthbert Gladwin from North Vancouver, president of the Canadian British Israel Association, will also address the Sunday meeting.

Thursday and Friday will be devoted to business sessions, the presentation of reports and the discussion of resolutions. Saturday the visiting delegates will be taken on sightseeing tours, including a visit to the Uniforum Gardens.

"We are mainly concerned with Bible prophecy," Don Mackinnon, president of the Victoria branch, said today.

"We believe the British and Scandinavian races are descendants of the Children of Israel and that all Bible prophecies, relating to the Israelites, relate to us."

No groceries would be offered in a proposed expansion, he said, but the final decision on what range of items would be available had not been made.

Mr. Holmes noted in his report that a government decision has not been made on the scope of Canex. But he added "there is every indication that its retailing operation will go into general merchandising including electrical appliances, TV sets, garden tools and machinery, household furnishings, service stations and new car purchases through the Service Auto Club."

Asked when all 50 houses might be acquired under the program, Mr. Dowling said "I really don't know. It may be some time at the rate we are going."

DISPERSED The low-income housing scheme is unique in British Columbia because it disperses those who need such accommodation in different areas, rather than grouping them together in one project.

The list of persons who benefit under the scheme is provided by the Saanich welfare office. Both the persons and the locations of the houses are kept confidential.

Welfare administrator Mrs. Bunt Marshall says priority is given to those in most need of the accommodation.

"We are limiting them to welfare families and we still have many waiting in a desperate situation," she said.

Saanich housing commissioner Roy Brockhouse, a member of the three-government agency handling the scheme, said rents match the shelter component of social assistance benefit.

600 MONTHLY A mother with two children, for example, would have a shelter component of $30 a month and this becomes the rent for the low-income house.

"Most welfare people are paying $30, $35 and $100 (for private accommodation) but in our low-income scheme they can get better accommodation for whatever is the size of their shelter component," he said.

The Saanich program, which is financed by the federal and provincial governments, was initiated two years ago by Ald. Edith Gunning, then chairman of the health and welfare committee, and former welfare administrator Frank Heaton.

They said that some Saanich residents live in semi-slum conditions in houses which should be torn down. As much as half the welfare allowance was being spent on rent and heating.

Dam Proposed To Hold Back Polluted Water

Tough Sledding For Low-Income Housing Plan

The increasing shortage of low-priced houses plus a lack of sewerage in Saanich has cut deeply into a $700,000 50-house low income project.

In eight months, only 11 of the planned 50 houses located in different areas have been acquired and rented to families on welfare.

"The price of houses went up and they are harder to obtain than we anticipated," said Chris Dowling, manager of Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation which is handling the acquisitions.

"There are just not that many available in Saanich because they've got to be on sewer."

To fit into the $700,000 approved by the federal and provincial governments, the price for each house must be approximately $14,000.

Asked when all 50 houses might be acquired under the program, Mr. Dowling said "I really don't know. It may be some time at the rate we are going."

'Major Alternative' In Study of Gorge

By JIM HUME
A dam across the Gorge to hold back polluted water from Victoria's Inner Harbor could be the first major step towards restoration of the famed waterway.

Design engineer Frank Neate, a member of a team at present preparing a report on the future of the Gorge and Portage Inlet waters for Saanich Municipality, said Tuesday the building of a dam is one of the major alternatives that could be taken to eliminate pollution.

He was commenting on a brief submitted to the Victoria public works committee Tuesday morning by John Bullivant, 1141 Harwood Street.

Mr. Bullivant was asking Victoria City council to consider the possibility of a dam to prevent the heavily polluted waters of the Inner Harbor from flowing into the Gorge on a rising tide.

The committee referred the brief to Mr. Neate's Saanich committee studying the problem.

MAJOR ALTERNATIVE "We are aware of Mr. Bullivant's thoughts on the problem," Mr. Neate said. "The general idea of a dam is one we have had under consideration for some time and will be one of the major alternatives we intend to offer."

Mr. Neate did not reveal what the other "major alternatives" would be when his committee presents its report towards the end of this year. But he did state that the often proposed canal linking Portage Inlet with Esquimalt Harbor would not be among them.

"The canal idea is as dead as a door nail as far as I am concerned," Mr. Neate said. "Unless I am instructed otherwise by council I do not intend to waste any more time even considering the proposal."

SETTLEMENT AT YARROWS?

A tentative agreement between unions and management at Yarrows-Burrard shipyards has been reached, it was learned today.

No details were immediately disclosed.

One union source said it had been agreed to withhold public statements until after a meeting of the shipyard union council in Vancouver this Monday.

Thousands 'Let George' Do Miracles

Let George Do It.

Such was the working slogan of George Cox when he spearheaded his own auto body building workshop at the corner of Vancouver and View Streets.

His slogan, posted outside the workshop, was backed by fine craftsmanship. Privately said today.

Mr. Cox died in St. Joseph's Hospital Tuesday at the age of 53.

Requiem Mass will be celebrated in St. Andrew's Roman Catholic Cathedral Friday at 10 a.m. and followed by interment in Hatley Memorial Gardens.

HAND TOOLS Born in Selkirk, England, Mr. Cox was apprenticed as a coach builder at Wolverhampton, when this work was arduously performed with hand tools.

With the advent of the motor car, he turned to auto body building and worked with the Sunbeam auto manufacturing company.

Soon after he came to Victoria in 1912, Mr. Cox opened his "Let George Do It" shop at Vancouver and View. Some years later he built a modern shop on Pandora Avenue and operated in successfully until his retirement 15 years ago.

Mr. Cox is survived by the widow, Mary, at their residence, 1254 Fort Street; a son, John S. (Jack); a daughter, Mrs. J. E. (Evelyn) Phillips; nine grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren, all of Victoria.

Prayers will be offered in McCall Brothers Chapel Thursday at 8 p.m.

The engineer added that even if the $2 million required to build the canal, lock gates and controls, were available the "flushing" action claimed by some proponents of the scheme, would not take place.

"I have been claimed that by introducing the waters of Esquimalt Harbor into the Gorge we would establish a flushing action which would clean the Gorge and Portage Inlet," Mr. Neate said.

"Unfortunately that is not true.

"There would be a flushing action, but not of sufficient strength in the water flow to move the sediments we need to move if we are to have a relatively pure body of water.

"And I think we should remember that the waters of Esquimalt Harbor are not exactly the cleanest in the world. Because of these things, and because of the tremendous cost, we have dismissed the canal proposal entirely."

CONTROL DEPTH What would a dam across the Gorge achieve?

"Basically it would give us a controlled water depth of around eight feet," Mr. Neate said. "At present, on a low or even medium low tide, most of the Gorge and Portage Inlet is covered by only very shallow water—in fact much of it isn't covered at all."

"By holding back the tide we would also be holding back one of the major sources of pollution. The fresh water flowing into the Gorge and Portage Inlet would, over the course of roughly a year, give us a fresh water body with pollution considerably reduced."

Mr. Neate is attached to the Saanich municipal engineering staff and is engaged on special projects as opposed to routine administration.

The team studying the problem of the Gorge and Portage Inlet is comprised of engineers, fish and wildlife experts and scientists.

NEVER RELEASED In his brief to Victoria council Mr. Bullivant calls for a dam to rise two feet above maximum high tide level "to plug the Gorge and prevent polluted water from backing up with every rising tide."

Mr. Bullivant notes that because of the nature of the inland waterway the already polluted waters of the Gorge are never really released.

"A large proportion of the volume of water in this waterway is never, never, carried out before the tide reverses and starts to flow the water back into the waterway again thus increasing the amount of pollution," his brief states.

Mr. Neate said his committee's final report on the Gorge should be ready for presentation to council towards the end of November or by mid-December.

Q. Would you put me straight on this government tax? I know it's five cents on the dollar, a cent on the first 15 cents and the rest of the tax escapes me. —H.V.

A. The tax is simply a mechanical calculation of 5 per cent of the consumer purchase price. In calculating the amount, figures are rounded to the nearest whole number. For example, 24.8 cents would be 25 cents, and 24.4 cents would be 24 cents. The calculation is provided for purchases of 15 cents or less. The first bracket of which is 15-20 cents, and each bracket thereafter simply jumps 20 cents.

EVERYBODY GETS INTO THE ACTION

SILVER THREADS PLAYS BIG ROLE

Special Services for Special Needs

By W. RALPH THOMAS

The Silver Threads Service is usually just a little busier than Grand Central Station.

Old age and inactivity synonymous? Don't believe it. Any day of the week in the Senior Citizens' Activity Centre at 4000 Central Square, as many as 700 of Silver Threads' 5,000 members are engaged in a wide variety of constructive efforts, offering proof that human productivity does not end with retirement.

The people at Silver Threads are busy. And the youngest member is 65.

Mrs. Catherine Burns, director, says that although the over-60s of the centre is recreation, she and her staff are concerned with the whole person rather than with just one specific need.

Senior citizens, she said, often encounter special problems and the staff and volunteer workers go to almost any length to solve them.

She said that in addition to the extensive recreational program for senior citizens, more than 2,800 members took advantage of the counselling service last year.

Nursing and medical services are offered twice weekly at the centre, and a registry of housekeeping, repairs and householding establishments has been set up.

"We are heavily interested in the total person. If any member needs assistance in any area we try our best to help. Usually we can work something out," said Mrs. Burns.

The list of activities and services supplied by Silver

Threads is almost as long as the list of its members' needs. Arts and crafts, chess, bridge, gardening club, oil painting, carpentry, basket-weaving, quilting, sewing, library facilities, choral groups, films and dancing are but a few of the 37 recreational activities available.

The Silver Threads can-can dancers, led by an 84-year-old, are gaining fame through recent television performance and hospital tours, and their 20-voice choir, conducted by a retired music teacher, projects a better sound than most choirs twice the size.

Added to this are groups of senior citizens who attend classes in the night school program at the centre. Taught by qualified teachers, Silver Threads members may study

English literature, French or Spanish.

"The notion that older people haven't the inclination or interest to learn new subjects is nonsense," says Mrs. Hiron. "With the exception of a very few in their 80s and 90s, they have both the ability and the desire to increase their learning."

She added that the 300-member Silver Threads Volunteer Corps visits shut-ins in hospitals and rest homes, prepares lunches and afternoon tea at the centre, operates the library and transports handicapped members to the centre or to doctor or clinic appointments.

They also make daily telephone calls to shut-ins to ease the loneliness of many older people who cannot come to the centre for companionship.

"We couldn't operate without our volunteers," she said. "They are tremendously valuable people. Can you imagine what it would cost to pay 500 people to work here part-time?"

The expense of such a proposition would indeed be impressive, consuming a large portion of the United Appeal's $553,000 objective. But mainly due to the 500 citizens who volunteer their time, efforts and interest without pay, the Community Chest's allocation to Silver Threads this year is only $15,000.

This is not a great deal of money, yet without it Silver Threads could not maintain its program.

And without it, 5,000 senior citizens would be deprived of something they value highly.

CLOSING AVERAGES

Quebecers Air Canada Candidates

Former president and managing director of the Colony Inn, Gerald Carter, has stepped out of the hotel business following a transaction believed to total $1.25 million.

Mr. Carter could not be reached for comment today. Neither could George Laak, former manager of Railway House, Esquimalt, who has been named the management reins at the Colony.

Hotel officials confirmed that Mr. Carter was no longer with the motel and that Mr. Laak was the new manager. They were unable to confirm the estimated price paid Gerald, Donald and Gordon Carter for the established motel.

2.2 Per Cent Hike In Wages

OTTAWA (C) — Labor increase for June was estimated by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics at $2,971,600,000, an increase of $84,300,000 or 2.2 per cent over May.

After adjustments for seasonal variations, wages and salaries decreased by 0.1 per cent in June.

Motel officials confirmed that Mr. Carter was no longer with the motel and that Mr. La-was the new manager. They were unable to confirm the estimated price paid Gerald Donph and Gordon Carter for the established motel.
